12 Millions D.C. Revenue Bill Passed By Congress

House Action Today Seen on $95,930,130 Spending Measure For This Fiscal Year

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Congress yesterday gave final approval to the 12-million-dollar Washington revenue bill. With that, decks were cleared for House action today on a record-breaking $95,930,310 city spending bill for this fiscal year.

Both Houses gave unanimous approval late yesterday to the final conference report on the revenue bill. It now goes to the White House.

The spending bill would eat up all the money raised by the new revenue bill, and also bite deep into the city's invested construction fund.

Revenue Sources

The revenue would come from:

1. A 4-million-dollar boost in the annual Federal payment, making the new total 12 million.

2. Increased property taxes. The Commissioners have already ordered the boost called for in the bill from $1.75 to a new rate of $2 per $100, to raise $4,500,000 a year.

3. A 4-cent tax on each gallon of gasoline, raising $1,600,000 a year more than the present 3 cent rate. Also doubled auto inspection fees, with the new $1 fee applied to both autos and trailers.

4. A 25 per cent increase in water rates, to get $800,000 a year.

5. A franchise tax of 5 per cent on the income of unincorporated businesses, to parallel the 5 per cent rate now on corporations, and raise $900,000 a year. Extension of the individual income tax to District residents who are not Federal employes, and who live here seven months or more in the year and pay no income or intangible property taxes to a State. Federal employes would be exempt from the local income tax law if they have a legal domicile in a State.

Earlier the bill for the biggest city appropriation in Washington's history was approved by the full House Appropriations Committee. It was presented to the House by Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the House District Appropriations Subcommittee which drafted the money bill.

For Fiscal Year

The money is for the fiscal year which started last week, but after House approval it must still go to the Senate for more hearings by the Senate District Appropriations Subcommittee, followed by Senate action and probably a joint conference.

In the bill, Representative Horan won committee backing for his drive to make a major start at eliminating the city's shortage of school buildings which now keeps some 7000 pupils in part-time classes.

Funds for school building were more than doubled over what the Commissioners had recommended—a boost from $2,123,000 cleared by the Commissioners to $4,719,830 in the money bill, including construction money for 20 schools. The Commissioners' plan called for 11 school building projects.

Horan said a move had been started in the Appropriations Committee to cut the school building funds back to the Commissioners' figure, but that it had been dropped without reaching a vote.

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), a member of the Appropriations Committee, conferred with Horan and then announced he will move to write into the bill today authority for the District to borrow up to three million dollars to prevent a possible dip "into the red" during the next 12 months.

Dirksen said figures on which the budget bill was based did not check with figures used by his committee in drafting the new 12-million-dollar city revenue bill. The revenue bill was linked to the idea of a budget cut of at least two million dollars.

Horan's report on the spending bill said the proposed general fund spending, $81,218,410, would go above present general fund reve-

'Most Amazing Thing'

D. C. Police Statistics Baffled Horan, Young Before Expose

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Skepticism over accuracy of police statistics was indicated in the text of budget hearings made public yesterday by the House District Appropriations Subcommittee.

Chairman Walt Horan (R., Wash.) compared them to fish. And even Commissioner John Russell Young confessed they were a "most amazing thing."

The hearing occurred June 3, 16 days before The Post exposed the police practice of hiding crimes.

Testimony ran as follows:

Commissioner Young—"I often wondered about crime going down during the war years. It went down during the war years. That was a most amazing thing."

Representative Horan—"At least the statistics went down."

Commissioner Young—"The figures we have; yes, sir. Now it is coming up again."

Representative Horan—"It is like saying the fish population in the ocean is going down because they are not catching them."

At least two members of the House District Committee, The Post learned, were concerned with the accuracy of the statistics which gave Metropolitan Police an impressive record of preventing and solving crimes. Both asked to remain anonymous.

But they admitted trying to discover why Washington, with its huge influx of military and civilian population during the war years, remained among the leaders of large cities in curbing crime.

The Post found the answer in at least one category—robberies. Reporters discovered that from July 1, 1946, to May 31, 1947, the police reported 761 robberies while the actual total was more than 1350. The remainder had never been reported to the statistical branch

Safe Cracking Attempt Marked 'Hold' by Police

Here's another crime complaint marked "hold" by p' and, therefore, never reported in police statistics:

The office of the Logan Motor Company branch at 2017 Virginia ave. nw. was entered during the night of June 16-17.

A 1200-pound safe containing about $600 was dragged out of the office into the garage. The thieves used a heavy sledge and beat off the hinges but couldn't open the safe. Instead, they stole several flashlights.

Records of the Third Precinct show the case was never sent on the teletype and is still marked "hold."

House Passes Second Tax Cut Bill, 302 to 112

Veto-Proof Majority Gained With Switch Of 29 Democrats

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House yesterday rolled up what looked like a veto-proof majority for the GOP's second-edition Knutson bill, slashing income taxes four billion dollars on January 1.

The vote was 302 to 112—just 26 more than the two thirds required to override an expected presidential "no."

The Administration's fight on the bill thus shifted to the Senate, where only initial passage is certain. Senate GOP leaders still cannot count an absolute overriding majority.

Chairman Eugene D. Millikin (R., Colo.) called a meeting of the Senate Finance Committee this morning to report out the bill, probably by a 10 to 3 vote. Senate passage of the measure, without change, appeared equally certain, probably early next week. The overriding tussle—acid test of whether the bill actually becomes law—may not come until the President has held it another 10 days.

69 Democrats Leave Fold

In the House, 69 Democrats jumped the aisle to vote with 233 Republicans for the bill on final passage. Two Republicans and one American Laborite joined 109 Democrats against it.

Just before the final vote, Administration Democrats put forward a $3,379,000,000 counter proposal, providing larger benefits in the lower brackets. Their recommit motion—a virtual substitute for the Knutson bill—lost, 151 to 261.

As repassed by the House, the Knutson bill ranges tax cuts from 30 per cent in the bottom income brackets to 10½ per cent at the top. The only change in the vetoed original postpones the effective date from July 1, 1947, to January 1, 1948.

The Democratic recommit motion, finally drafted at a morning meeting of the Ways and Means Committee, was offered by Representative Aime J. Forand (D., R. I.) chairman of the House Democratic conference. Forand

FBI Assists Plank Death Investigation

Police Quiz Eight In Suspected Slaying Of D. C. Court Clerk

A murder theory probe into the death of 29-year-old Norman Plank yesterday sent fingerprints and the death weapon to the FBI.

Plank, a clerk in the District's Small Claims Court, at first was adjudged a suicide when his body was found in his sister's home, 4108 Forest la., Chesterbrook, Fairfax county, at 12:40 a. m. Monday.

The suicide verdict was quickly withdrawn, however, and Fairfax County Coroner Dr. Nelson Podolnick said yesterday no certificate will be issued pending a complete investigation.

Fairfax Police Chief Carl McIntosh, who has assigned three of his force to the probe, disclosed he has received statements from eight persons who attended a party at Plank's home Friday night.

Still sought is a man described as a "walkie-talkie" salesman, and a 1940 Buick sedan, owned by Plank's sister, Mrs. Nellie L. Burrer. The car, bearing Virginia license 474-521, has been missing from the garage since the night Plank's body was found.

Plank, a former soldier, was found at the foot of basement steps, a .22-caliber bullet hole in his head. Skin samples have been taken to trace possible powder burns. Donald Burrer, nephew of the dead man, found the body after calling in a neighbor about 12:30 a. m. Monday.

The .22-caliber pistol was found five stair steps from the body. The pistol is owned by Donald Burrer, who said he kept it in a downstairs drawer, easily accessible. Neighbors disclosed they had seen a stranger around the house, but none could give a definite description. Nothing was missing from the house but a pair of blue trousers and the automobile.

Plank's body was shipped last night to Ashland, Ohio, for services.

Free on $10,000 Bond

Dennis Chooses Jail and Fine Instead of Answering Queries

Communist Eugene Dennis yesterday chose a year in jail and a $100 fine rather than return to the House Un-American Activities Committee and answer its questions.

The ruddy-faced, gray-haired general secretary of the Communist Party in America was freed under $10,000 bond pending appeal of his conviction for contempt of Congress.

Before imposing sentence, Justice David A. Pine of District Court gave Dennis the chance to get probation on condition that he appear before the House Committee to purge himself of the contempt. Dennis refused the offer. The sentence imposed is the maximum allowed.

In the courtroom, Dennis talked for 20 minutes with blasts against the Truman Doctrine, the "Republican-dominated Congress" and the Un-American Activities Committee. Dennis declared the American people would see him "freed and exonerated."

Dennis had appeared voluntarily before the House committee earlier this year with a prepared statement explaining what his party thought of the committee. Instead of answering specific questions, he unsuccessfully attempted to read his statement. When he was served with a subpena for a later session he refused to honor it.

Yesterday, Justice Pine asked him, "Are you willing to appear before the committee and purge yourself of this contempt? If you are, we will consider it and take action so that you may do so."

Dennis stammered that he needed time to consider the matter. He conferred with his attorneys for 10 minutes. He returned to speak of his position generally concerning Congress.

"Answer my question," said the jurist.

"I do not consider myself in contempt of the committee and least of all of Congress, and therefore I couldn't in good conscience take an occasion to purge myself of something I have not committed. I would like to stand on my statement. I'm sorry to have delayed the court," was Dennis' reply.

Czechs Hint Reds May Go To Aid Talks

13 Nations Accept British-French Bids To Marshall Plan Conference in Paris

Paris, July 8 (AP).—Thirteen nations, including Czechoslovakia in the Soviet sphere, have accepted French-British bids to the Paris conference on the Marshall plan. Czech sources in Prague hinted that Russia herself might finally be represented.

There had been no refusals by nightfall from the 22 invited nations.

The French Foreign Ministry announced that 10 nations—Belgium, Italy, Portugal, Eire, Greece, Turkey, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Czechoslovakia and Iceland—have turned in formal acceptances.

Associated Press dispatches from Bern, Vienna and Copenhagen said that Switzerland, Austria and Denmark decided officially to participate.

Confusion concerning the Russian zone states mounted as the Thursday deadline for accepting invitations drew near. The conference will open Saturday.

Polish, Romanian and Finnish diplomats denied reports broadcast by Tass, official Soviet news agency, that their countries had rejected the invitation. They said a decision could not be known until tomorrow. An Associated Press dispatch from Warsaw said it still was a "toss-up" whether Poland would accept.

Yugoslav, Albanian, Bulgarian and Hungarian spokesmen here could not be reached for comment on the attitude of their governments, but reports from those four nations indicated their decisions still were being studied.

A dispatch from Prague said that Czech sources close to the government declared there was considerable indication Russian might send a representative—perhaps as an observer.

These sources said they based their views on the Czech acceptance of the invitation, indications in Prague that the Poles also might accept, and an about-face by the Communist Party in Prague from the earlier criticism of the proposal.

United States Underesecretary of State William L. Clayton arrived by plane from Geneva for a series of talks with high French officials. He will remain here until the conference opens Saturday, then fly back to Geneva, where he heads the American delegation to the international trade parley.

Sweden Denies Pressure

Stockholm, Sweden, July 8 (U.P.). The Foreign Office received Saturday a Russian memorandum detailing the views of Russian Foreign Minister Molotov on the Paris Big Three Conference, well informed sources said tonight.

A Foreign Office spokesman denied that Russia tried to put pressure on the government not to take part in the conference

AAF 'Flying Saucer' Merely Weather Box-Kite

Calcutta's Industry Paralyzed by New Outbreak of Violence

Calcutta, India, July 8 (U.P.).—Police and troops clashed with armed gangs in downtown Calcutta today as the bloodiest communal rioting since last August entered its second day, virtually paralyzing the city's industry.

[The Associated Press said the toll in Calcutta and the United Provinces was at least 74 dead and more than 140 injured.

[Dispatches from Lucknow, United Provinces, said that 35 refugees crammed into a bus were killed. Fifteen bodies were found in the bus, 18 were recovered from a well, and 2 have not been found.]

Calcutta's officials listed 50 dead and more than 300 injured in street battles yesterday. Casualties were expected to run higher tonight despite strong army patrols.

A five-minute gun battle between police and a gang in front of the United Press office in central Calcutta left the street littered with wounded.

Only a few buses and street cars left barns this morning. Most workers remained at home.

Near-panic was reported in some sections.

Last August, an estimated 5000 were killed in riots.

Violence broke out over partitioning Bengal Province.

The Bengal Legislature voted to set up a separate Moslem state under the Pakestan federation. Hindu delegates then voted to secede and join the Indian Constitutent Assembly, thereby dividing the province.

New Mexico Find Proves Complete Dud

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

For three hectic hours last night, the Army Air Forces—and the world—thought it actually had possession of one of those fabulous "flying saucers." But it hadn't.

News tickers yesterday afternoon flashed the word that a "flying disc" had been found on a ranch in New Mexico and was now in the possession of the 509th Atomic Bomb Group at Roswell Field, N. M.

The mysterious will-o'-the-wisp really exists—so said an announcement from Roswell Army Airfield's AAF public relations officer.

Warrant Officer Knew

Then, a few hours later and nearly two days after the "disc" had been in official hands, it was rudely exposed as an imposter.

Rushed from Roswell to Eighth Air Force Headquarters at Fort Worth, Tex., by B-29, it puzzled AAF officers there. They were about to fly it on to the Army's experimental center at Wright Field, when an Army warrant officer identified the object.

It was part of a box-kite type of weather balloon used by United States Weather Bureau and Army meteorological stations all over the country!

Rancher Lacks Phone

But there was excitement while it lasted.

Wire service teletypes brought the story of the "momentous discovery" into newspaper offices late yesterday. Bulletin after bulletin reported it as follows:

The object had fallen on a ranch 75 miles northwest of Roswell.

Lacking a phone, Rancher W. W. Brizell waited a week until he was coming into town, then turned over to the sheriff. The latter turned it over to the Army, Monday.

AAF intelligence officers pondered over the find, put out an announcement saying the disks were a "reality" and shipped it to Eighth Air Force Headquarters at Fort Worth, Tex.

Army Air Force officials here were as flabbergasted as the rest

Wheat Prospects Upped Again

First Cotton Report Indicates Lowest Supply in 25 Years

Big Meat Dollar Slice Helps Boost Farm Income 30% in Year

Don't blame your butcher for high meat prices. Figures at the Department of Agriculture show he is getting a much smaller percentage of your meat money than he got before the war.

The farmer is now getting from 71 to 73 per cent of the retail prices of meats, the figures show. In 1940 he got 53 per cent, and before that his "take" ranged from 47 per cent in 1934 to 57 per cent in 1937.

This large portion of the country's meat costs made up part of the phenomenal income American farms are experiencing this year. Yesterday the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported farmers took in about 11.7 billion dollars from the sale of their products in the first six months of this year. This is 30 per cent more than a year ago.

With Government payments, the farm income rose to 12 billion, or 25 per cent more than a year ago when farm subsidies were in effect.

Of this livestock and livestock products brought 7.9 billions, up nearly 40 per cent above 1946.

Yesterday choice beef steers went above $30 per 100 pounds on the Chicago market, the first time since the all-time record high of $31 was established on January 16.

Crop Now Expected To Be 10-11 Per Cent Below Estimated Need

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

This year's cotton crop prospects were dealt another serious blow yesterday when the year's first cotton report indicated Government hopes for a 12-million bale harvest will fall 10 to 11 per cent short.

If present indications are borne out, the Nation will experience the smallest supply of cotton in the coming marketing year in nearly 25 years.

On the other hand, reports of the heavy wheat yield indicate that previous optimistic reports of the harvest may even be too low. Some observers now predict a final yield of 1½ billion bushels, instead of the 1.4 billion all-time record forecast in the June crop report.

Cotton acreage in cultivation was reported at 21,389,000, instead of the 24 million requested by Agriculture officials. This would indicate a crop of 10,495,000 bales, instead of the 12 million the Government sought. This is almost two million bales short of estimated requirements.

The report, made at 11 a. m., was followed by a rise of $4.40 to $5.45 a bale in cotton futures on the commodity markets. Cotton textiles plunged upward a cent a yard on forward shipment deliveries.

Although the indicated acreage will be 17½ per cent above last year's, the carryover from last

House Decides After Struggle To Publish 'Fascism in Action'

By The Associated Press

The House passed yesterday a resolution authorizing publication of a document on "Fascism in Action" after a two-hour floor battle during which it was denounced as a "smokescreen" for Communists and hailed as a "danger signal" of rightwing extremist activities.

The action came on a voice vote after the House refused, 124 to 115, to send the authorization proposal back to the House Administration Committee for further study—a move which would have probably blocked publication during this session.

The document was compiled by the Library of Congress' Legislative Reference Service at the request of Representative Patman (D., Tex.).

It is designed as a counterpart to a similarly prepared treatise on "Communism in Action" which was compiled also by the Reference Service at the request of Representative Dirksen (R., Ill.).

The new document, never made public, deals primarily with the rise of fascism and nazism in Europe.

Under the resolution, approximately 1500 of the documents will be prepared at Government expense at a cost of about $1 each for official distribution. It does not require Senate approval.

The debate stemmed around the merits, costs and demand for the document's publication—as well as whether fascism exists in this country and its dangers as compared with those of communism.

Representative Williams (D., Miss.) said the document had been "played up by the left-wing press as an expose of fascism in the United States," but that it did not mention "a single Fascist organization" in this country.

He contended that all it would do "is just take the spotlight off the Communists, which really constitute a threat, and go into a witchhunt for Fascists.

Representative Mary Norton (D., N. J.) said, however, that "I think we probably have some fascism in this country, and we should be warned of its danger."

Russia Lays Greek Trouble To U.S., British

Gromyko Demands Troops of Foreign Nations Be Removed

Lake Success, July 8 (AP).—Russia charged today that the situation in Greece was the result of American and British interference and demanded that the United Nations order foreign military personnel off Greek soil.

The Soviet Union also called again for U. N. supervision of all economic aid to Greece.

"Direct intervention through the presence of foreign troops has been supplemented lately by new forms of intervention in sending to Greece so-called military instructors and in supplying war equipment," Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko said.

Rejecting a U. N. report blaming Soviet Balkan satellites for the Greek border disorders, Gromyko said the Greek government alone was at fault.

Gromyko in a 78-minute speech, one of the longest ever delivered to the Security Council, asked the council to reverse on-the-spot findings and rule Greece guilty of provoking disturbances with Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria.

Gromyko said without qualification that Russia could not accept an American resolution, growing out of the commission report, for establishment of a semi-permanent U. N. watch along the troubled frontiers, indicating that he would veto the project.

Looking toward a solution, he said Greece should take measures to stop border incidents, establish normal diplomatic relations with her three accused neighbors, and conclude bilaeral frontier conventions with the other three Balkan governments.

Greeks Discuss Compromise

Athens, Greece, July 8 (U.P.).—Political leaders conferred with their parties and among themselves today to discuss leftist proposals for a compromise settlement to end the Greek civil war.

Leaders of EAM, Communist dominated political coalition, made their overtures to Liberal Party Leader Themistocles Sophoulis.

3 of 4 Mines Sign UMW's Best Contract In History

Southerners Admit Privately They Will Have to Accept In Order to Operate

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis yesterday signed up about three-fourths of the soft coal industry to a contract which obligates his union to practically nothing, but gives his men the biggest paychecks in their history.

Docilely queueing-up to sign a phenomenally favorable contract for the union were operators representing collieries in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, northern West Virginia, Illinois, Indiana, Oklahoma and Arkansas. The only holdouts were the Southern mine owners and some scattered Far West operators. By the end of the day even six Southern mines had signed up.

The main bloc of Southerners met with Lewis in the afternoon and some of their leaders privately admitted they will have to accept his terms if their mines are to operate. At a press conference earlier in the day, Lewis left no doubt that this would be the case. It was the new "national agreement"—or else. No other document would do, Lewis said.

Acceptance of the Southern group in a few days is considered certain.

Miners Reenter Pits

Throughout the northern Appalachian area miners were streaming back to work by yesterday afternoon. They came from a 10-day official vacation plus two or three days more which most of them took, in "protest" strikes against the new Taft-Hartley labor law.

Operators estimated that the new contract will add from 67 cents to $1 for each ton of coal mined. At his press conference, Lewis declined to estimate how much of this would be reflected in higher coal and steel prices. His attitude suggested that he felt this of no concern to him.

"The profits of the steel and coal companies are larger than ever before in our history," he said, "and the degree to which they can absorb the added costs of the contract is a matter the operators will have to determine for themselves. It is a matter between the operators and the public."

Lewis' victory was about as complete as even he could wish for. The contract itself contains the most sizable wage increase and hour reduction of any in recent years. Besides a host of other concessions, it contains protection for the union from a number of the hazards they might otherwise be subjected to under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Signing in Lewis' Office

Lewis achieved the ultimate moral victory as well, in that he conducted the signing ceremony in his own office. In a baronial, early Grand Rapids Tudor hall on the top floor of what was once the University Club, representatives of the Nation's biggest coal companies, and of the world's biggest corporation, United States Steel, filed by. They took their turns at signing, like medieval barons pledging fealty during the coming year to the prince of the realm.

Savoring his triumph, Lewis followed the signing by a press con-

'Czar' Petrillo Goes Soft Over Children

But Insists They Mustn't Take Food From Musicians

By The Associated Press

James C. Petrillo, acknowledging that "I'm not an angel, I lost my wings a long time ago," displayed a soft heart toward school children yesterday but not for their appearance on commercial broadcasts.

Testifying before a House Labor Subcommittee, the fuzzy-haired czar of the American Federation of Musicians declared:

Makes 2 Concessions

Called onto the congressional carpet to explain his alleged "dictatorial powers," Petrillo made two concessions to the lawmakers on behalf of children. He promised:

1. To "work out a deal" with educators to allow music broadcasts over the radio by school children. But he specified that it must be "a deal that's fair to the children and to the professional musicians."

2. To confer with the chiefs of military service bands on a plan for recording band music to use in training school children, but not for commercial broadcasts.

Petrillo also said he believes that the new Taft-Hartley labor law bars his union from requiring stand-by hiring of union musicians.

Radio Industry Aroused

Heretofore, the AFL federation has insisted that union men get regular pay for idly standing by while nonunion musicians perform. The radio industry has vented particular ire at this practice.

"I believe the Taft-Hartley bill says no employer can pay anyone who does not peform any service," Petrillo remarked. "I believe the bill stops stand-bys entirely."

The slubcommittee, headed by Representative Kearns (R., Pa.), is investigating Petrillo's union to determine whether additional legislation be needed to curb what Kearns termed the union's "abuses."

Representative Barden (D., N. C.) told the union chieftain that "theer are abuses the American people are not long going to tolerate."

Complains of Press

Asked what he could suggest to "correct all these things," Petrillo said:

"Of course the correction must come from the federation and there is no doubt that there are many corrections to be made."

He said some corrections have already been made, and then with some bitterness he complained of getting "a bad press" on his activities.

"The press owns radio stations," he said. "The press is trying to do a little job on me personally—not a big one—just a little one."

Petrillo looked gloomy when Chairman Kearns told him that the federation was "denying school children the right of expressing their talents over the air."

He said he is willing to sit down with educators and service band leaders "any time, any place to work out a fair deal."

Lauds Chicago Schools

"We'll go to their doors," he volunteered.

"We're not opposed to educational programs," Petrillo went on. "The question is—will the (service band) recordings go back to the rado stations? The radio would get a famous band in competition with us. The more music the radio gets without paying for it, the less music you'll have in the future."

At one point, Petrillo declared: "After all, if it wasn't for the schools in Chicago, I would never have been a musician myself. I couldn't afford to take lessons at a buck and a half an hour, but the schools paid for them for me, and Jane Addams (late Chicago welfare leader) bought me my first trumpet."

Can't Afford Stand-Bys

George Jennings, radio director for the Chicago school system, told the committee that music programs have not been broadcast over the schools' FM stations in Chicago because "we didn't want to argue with the union and we didn't have money to pay union stand-by fees."

He said the Chicago union local told him that the schools were not to use nonunion musicians "unless we paid stand-by fees."

Kearns remarked that Chicago science and English teachers can lecture over the radio "but we can't have one expression of music from the children of Chicago."

"Now," Barden told Petrillo, "you see why you get a bad press."

U.S. to Return Quick-Rich Stowaway

A Danish stowaway who multiplied $50 into a $4000 business here in six months was ordered removed yesterday to New York City, where he is to be sent back to his native land.

The stowaway, Karl W. Melvgaard, 33, was placed under $2000 removal bond by United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage.

Authorities testified that Melvgaard in January bribed an American seaman with $100 and hid aboard an ocean liner, jumping ship in New York with $50 in his pocket. Melvgaard then came to Washington, where he borrowed $800 and went into the awning business here at 1801 Adams Mill rd. nw.

Melvgaard said he would soon come back here legally with his wife and two children who are in Holland.

Proctor Backs Pine's Ruling In Allis Case

A District grand jury was restrained yesterday for the second time within a month from attempting to compel witnesses to testify as to Communist affiliations.

Justice James M. Proctor's ruling was made in District Court. Two Communist Party officers from Wisconsin, Fred B. Blair and Sigmund Eisenscher, had been hailed before Justice Proctor after they refused to give virtually any testimony other than their names, addresses and maritial status.

The court's ruling is based on Constitutional safeguards against self-incrimination. Emanuel Block, attorney for Blair and Eisenscher, argued that it was possible that the grand jury might try to charge his clients, through their own testimony, in an alleged perjury plot.

Previous Ruling Questioned

The grand jury is investigating two officials in the Allis-Chalmers CIO union for possible perjury before the House Labor Committee. The officials, Harold Christoffel and Robert Buse of Wisconsin both said they had no Communist relationships. The committee said it had evidence showing the men lied about this.

Earlier, Justice David A. Pine ruled that Emil Costello, a CIO leader in Wisconsin, didn't have to divulge whether he was a Communist. In subsequent grand jury hearings, Blair and Eisenscher refused to testify as to whether they were Communists, whether they knew any Communists such as Eugene Dennis and Earl Browder, nor would they give their occupations.

Justice Is Annoyed

Justice Proctor was visibly annoyed by the hearing. He said the matter had been decided by Justice Pine and he "would not serve as a court of review for another Justice of the same court."

Speaking to Justice Department attorneys Joan Pratt and John Patton, Justice Proctor said, "The Justice Department cannot shop around among justices of this court to get a different ruling. I am sorry to say this has been going on among Government attorneys more than in the case of private attorneys. It would be utterly impossible to administer justice if this practice was allowed. It would throw the administration of justice into chaos and cause embarrassment among justices and litigants.

North American Unit's Stock to Be Offered

New York, July 8 (AP).—Dillon, Read & Co. was high bidder today for 133,383 shares of Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., common stock being sold by North American Co. with a bid of 42.133. The firm proposes to reoffer the stock at 43¼, subject to award and approval by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Disposal of the Cleveland company, formerly one of North American's principal subsidiaries, was started several weeks ago to comply with the Public Utility Holding Company Act. More than 96 per cent of an offering of 1,714,525 shares was purchased through exercise of stockholders' warrants at that time. The current offering represents the remaining shares held by North American.

Bill Cleared to End Installment Controls

By the United Press

The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared for floor consideration a bill to end immediately Government controls over installment buying.

The Federal Reserve Board now requires that consumers pay at least one third down on automobiles, refrigerators, washing machines, and other items, and pay the rest in 15 months. The board asked Congress for statutory authority to continue the restrictions.

B. & O. Buys 10 Engines From Seaboard Railway

Baltimore, July 8 (AP).—The Baltimore & Ohio announced today it has purchased 10 high-wheel Mallet locomotives from the Seaboard Air Line Railway to be put into operation on high-speed freight service between Brunswick and Cumberland, Md.

President Roy B. White of the B. & O. said the purchase reflected the fact the railroad is doing the greatest freight business in its history. It expects to get 20 new 3000-horsepower diesel freight locomotives next spring.

Signing Coal Contract

ference during which he paid his vitriolic respects to Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and the labor bill he outhored. In remarkable contrast, however, Lewis brusquely declined to comment on New York's Governor Dewey and his role of silence during the passage of the Taft-Hartley bill.

Three different questions on Dewey were put to Lewis. He flatly refused to say anything at all about this leading aspirant to the Republican presidential nomination.

But he was in no way loath to air his opinion of "the redoubtable and ubiquitous" Taft, and the "Taft Slave Act." The Senator, he said flatly, has forfeited his chance to become President. He sought, in his legislation, to classify working Americans as "second class citizenry," a classification they will "forever resent and will forever seek to have set aside in future Congresses."

The labor law "is, of course, a monstrosity," Lewis continued. The effort will be made to "wipe it from the statute books so that its shame may be forever forgotten."

He said he held every member of the House and Senate who voted for the act responsible, and hoped that the AFL would raise what funds are necessary to "educate the American people to the extent that they have been betrayed."

"Obviously," he added, "the Republican Party sold out to industry for cash contributions in the last congressional elections. One thing about the present Republican Congress—they stay bought."

A reporter asked Lewis: "Why did the operators give you such a favorable contract?"

He replied in mock solemnity: "Who can look into the minds of the coal operators?"

Blandly he assured the press that the United Mine Workers had never made any demands on the operators; they just accepted the contract offered them. After all, he pointed out, when the period of Government operation ended, the "miners were unemployed" and looking for work. The mines were shut and the operators were looking for persons to man them.

In high good humor he went on to suggest that the operators might have considered getting 400,000 displaced persons from Europe to this country to work the pits, but that there were some drawbacks to this scheme. (The dig at President Truman's program for American acceptance of displaced persons was unmistakable). Accordingly, Lewis continued, the operators came around to offer the UMW a new working contract.

A Remarkable Document

Looked at as a whole, it is a remarkable document, less of a contract (which implies mutual obligations), than a statement of the working and pay conditions which will apply in the event a miner is "willing" to work.

The union itself makes practically no promises. Its men will work if they are "willing and able." All reference in previous contracts to "no strike" pledges, "penalties" for contract violations, "guarantees" and fine for what once had been "illegal suspensions of work" are "rescinded, canceled, abrogated and made null and void." For good measure, the contract makes this statement in the separate actions.

In doing this, the contract removes from the operators' hands many of the weapons with which the Taft-Hartley Act proposed to endow them. That law permits suits for damages for contract breaches or violations. Lewis in effect undid those sections of the act by omitting from the contract any provisions which could conceivably be violated by the workers. Furthermore, the contract expressly agrees that the UMW is the workers' "exclusive bargaining agency," so that it is not obliged to follow the law's detailed procedure before the National Labor Relations Board to obtain such recognition.

In a few respects, however, Lewis was obliged to bow to the new statute. He agreed not to try to unionize bona fide foremen (the law does not encourage recognition of foremen) and agreed to obtain written authorizations, as legally required, from each worker in order to permit his union dues to be checked off his pay and remitted to the union.

Lewis calculated that the contract represented an increase of $3.55 a day to each miner. Added to his day's pay is $1.20, or a jump from his former $11.85 to the present $13.05. Then there is the amount of $1.63, the new hourly rate, coming from the fact that the miner actually works one hour less than he used to. The third item is 42 cents, for a 15-minute expansion of the lunch period during which he does not work.

Senate Group Votes Army More Money

Heeding Army pleas for restoration of heavy cuts voted by the House in the War Department budget, the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday approved a $6,160,108,799 military supply bill for 1948.

By a unanimous vote, the group added $335,636,376 in cash and 263 million dollars in contract authorization to what the House allowed. The total of $5,616,618,799 cash and $543,490,000 contract authorization approved by the Senate Committee, Senator Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.) announced, will:

1. Provide 1100 more planes than allowed by the House—about 1800 in all.

2. Restore 10,000 of a 17,000 officer cut approved by the lower body.

Restores Civilian Jobs

3. Allow the full budget allotment for 5205 warrant officers—halved by the House—and restore 35,205 of the 74,806 civilian jobs abolished by the House.

4. Give additional contract authority for purchase of tanks and combat vehicles costing five million dollars, 100 millions for new planes and seven millions for guided missiles.

5. Provide $51,535,176 more for the National Guard—25 millions in contract authority and the rest in cash—plus $25,706,084 additional in cash for the Organized Reserves.

The committee offset the increases to some extent by voting to rescind $338,966,500 in carry-over Army appropriations still available for expenditure.

Bill Approved In Full

Except for minor adjustments in wordage, the full committee approved the bill yesterday exactly as it was recommended by Senator Gurney's subcomittee last week.

Gurney, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said if the Senate and House accepted the recommendations, the Army would be able to maintain 55 air groups in a "ready" status, instead of 70 as requested, and equip a full force of 1,070,000 officers and enlisted men "if they can be found for service."

The committee also voted to give the Army authority to hire up to 25,000 civilians for one year to augment the services of military personnel. This was in direct response to Eisenhower's request. He told the group that lack of the authority would put the War Department in "an untenable and desperate position" in trying to support its soldiers in the field.

Voluntary Wage-Profit Limit Urged by National Grange

The National Grange yesterday proposed a program of voluntary ceilings on wages and profits to cut prices, but Senator Taft (R., Ohio) suggested this would put industry "in a strait-jacket."

Albert Goss, master of the Grange, outlined the farm organization's proposal to the joint committee on the economic report, which is studying ways and means of stabilizing the economy.

Goss testified after the American Federation of Labor told the committee that the "feast and famine policy of industry" has pushed prices and profits to the brink of an economic recession.

"How on earth," Taft said in commenting on the Grange suggestion, "can you put people in a strait-jacket as to what their profits should be? How could you apply a formula which would apply equally to all companies?"

Free Competition Favored

Taft, chairman of the joint committee, said Goss was "assuming that an abnormal condition today is a normal condition." The Ohioan added that if "we restore free competition," rather than turn to the Grange plan, that ought to provide a solution.

"You haven't seen it (free competition) in a number of years and therefore you are discouraged," Taft continued, "but I still think we are going to get it back one of these days."

Goss proposed that labor and major industrial firms agree on wage and profit ceilings and pass on the savings in the form of lower prices. He emphasized to Taft that such ceilings would have to vary from industry to industry.

Goss said the "interests of the public would be served if some method of economic regulation such as this should be adopted, rather than expending so much effort to regulate monopoly and profiteering through punitive measures."

AFL Views Presented

Matthew Woll, an AFL vice president, expounded his organization's views. He said:

"The AFL is convinced that the feast and famine policy of American industry which in general has allowed prices and profits to climb to such unprecedented heights that consumer buying is dangerously lagging, will inevitably lead to economic recession unless corrective action is taken immediately."

Woll said the AFL believes "that moderate increases in wages in 1947, accompanied by a price reduction policy industry by industry according to their ability to lower prices, will assure continuing prosperity with high lveels of production and employment."

Declaring food prices "must come down," Woll added that if they continue upward, "rank and file worker pressure for wage increases will be inevitable."

He said wage hikes this spring "have not been accompanied by price increases" and have "served to take up the slack and offset the danger of a sharp collapse of economic activity."

The result, Woll said, "has been healthy for the economy as a whole."

Goss said prices for some foods are too high and others too low, mainly because of what he called the inadequacy of the present parity formula—the standard used to gauge whether farm prices are fair in relation to each other and prices for other commodities.

Rationing Possibility Cited

The Grange official said food rationing may have to be restored 'if we have a shortage such that food cannot be bought at prices which will promote reasonably maximum production."

"We believe, however," he added, "that if the Government, in connection with its purchases for military forces and world needs, would pursue a sould policy in selecting foods in greatest abundance and avoid excessive use of foods in short supply, rationing probably would be avoided."

Goss said price controls should be restored "only as a last resort to prevent profiteering.'

Special Venire Called Today To Eisler Trial

Gerhart Eisler, reputedly the Kremlin's chief agent here, will go on trial this morning in District Court on cahrges that he made false statements in seeking a permit to go to Mexico in 1945.

Meanwhile, summons have gone out to 150 prospective jurors who are to report in the court to make up a special venire for the case if the regular panels cannot provide a suitable jury. The order for the special panel was signed by Justice James W. Morris.

Eisler is free under $20,000 bond pending appeal from a contempt of Congress conviction, for which he is to serve the maximum sentence of one year in jail and pay a $1000 fine.

Prosecutor in the passport-fraud case is Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz, who obtained the contempt conviction against Eisler.

The passport charge penalty is up to five years in pail and a $5000 fine. According to the indictment, Eisler hid his numerous aliases and Communist affiliations when he sought to leave this country

Greeks Expect U. S. To Solve Problems

World As One

Bevin Calls Marshall Plan Step to Unity

London, July 8 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin today hailed the Marshall offer as a step toward "a great unity of peoples throughout the world" and declared that the door still was open for Russia to participate in a continent-wide recovery plan.

"Europe is bleeding to death; it must be stopped," Bevin declared in an address to the Wandsworth Rotary Club. "And in the stopping of it you have got to rule out any prejudices, either religious or ideological."

The Secretary said that unity in Europe had appeared impossible, because of racial and historical differences and the "awful devastation" of war, until Secretary of State Marshall made his aid-Europe proposal.

Bevin brushed off as "political propaganda" the proposal by former Prime Minister Winston Churchill for a "United States of Europe."

Politics Not Involved

"On the other hand," he added, "there is a prospect—and a very happy prospect, I think—now, of trying to produce something without touching the political side at all, without even raising it and certainly not accentuating it, to have an opportunity of approaching the problem from an economic basis.

"If built upon rightly and worked out properly, this may yet make the biggest contribution to the unity of the peoples of Europe.

"By working on the basis of unity, it may be that even in our day and generation we shall find that we have contributed at last to a great unity of peoples throughout the world."

Bevin said the Marshall proposal, originally put forward by the American Secretary in an address at Harvard University, was contained in an "unrehearsed speech, like a bolt out of the blue."

He welcomed Czechoslovakia and other countries which have accepted a British-French invitation to the Paris economic conference opening Saturday.

He added:

"I do not know what others will come, or who will stay away. But I can assure you and the British public and the great public of the United States, which is behind Mr. Marshall in his great offer, that having put our hand to the plow we are not turning back."

Without mentioning Russia by name, Bevin reiterated that the door was still open for those who had declined to cooperate and that "we shall try to prove to them by example where we cannot now satisfy them by argument."

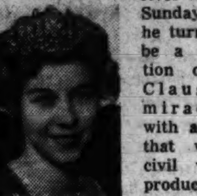
He said Britain was determined not to "quibble" over the details of the Marshall offer and not to "become annoyed" at criticisms. This apparently was a reference to critical articles which have appeared in the Russian press.

"To tell us now we are dividing Europe really is nonsense," he said.

Griswold Awaited With Extravagant Hopes by People

By M. W. Fodor

Athens (By Press Wireless).—Dwight Griswold, head of the American aid mission, is going to disappoint the Greeks when he arrives here next Sunday unless he turns out to be a combination of Santa Claus and a miracle man with a formula that will end civil war and produce prosperity.



Frederika

Extravagant expectations of the people will make more difficult his Herculean task. It would be troublesome enough at best. Valuable time has been lost since Paul Porter left three months ago. Much rehabilitation work could have been done in the summer now already far gone. By mid-September snow and heavy rains will make roads impassable and add to the costs of reconstruction.

Measures that might have been undertaken by the government have been put off. Unpopular reductions in the costs of government and the size of the bureaucracy have been deferred deliberately on the theory that it will be better to "let Uncle Sam be blamed for it."

Queen Shows Courage

Queen Fredericka is about the only personage in this leaderless country who had the courage to appeal for help for the suffering population of the stricken northern provinces. She demanded that the rich give to their neighbors not only their surpluses but aid representing real sacrifice. She alone has tried to institute some self-aid.

Miracles are expected from Griswold both in the economic and the military field. The problems raised by the civil war are extremely troublesome. Communists are considering a proclamation of a "Free Greek Government" in the mountains. Many intelligent liberals feel this may boomerang. When Greek Communist leaders Nicholas Zacharaiades and Eugene Porphyrogennis announced at the Strasbourg Communist conference a possible proclamation of "Free Greece" the result was a split in the party.

A wise government could easily exploit this split because the Greeks are great nationalist patriots and even the extreme Leftists hate the renunciation of territory they firmly believe Greek.

Quick Amnesty Essential

If the present government could be induced to act generously, the civil war could be liquidated. Quick amnesty is essential, but those extending such an offer must have the trust of the Greeks in the mountains. Quick relief in the poverty-stricken north would also diminish the threat of civil war. The patriotic Greek Leftists might be detached from the Communists by exploiting their fear that Greek territory may be turned over to Slavs.

Military action alone will not settle the civil war. The Germans were better organized than the present Greek army but could not defeat Andartes in the Greek mountains.

Griswold thus will find plenty of problems when his plane lands at Hassani airfield next Sunday.

Halsey Stuart Awarded N. Y. Telephone Issue

New York, July 8 (AP)—An investment syndicate headed by Halsey Stuart & Co. today was awarded 125 million dollars of New York Telephone Co. refunding mortgage bonds, due 1982, on a bid of 102.55199 with a 2¾ per cent coupon.

Another group led by Morgan Stanley & Co. bid 102.229 for 2¾.

It was understood in financial circles that Halsey Stuart planned to reoffer the issue publicly at 103, or an indicated yield to the purchaser of 2.62 per cent.

Not Vikings, But 'Vi-queens,' Turn Heads at D. C. Yacht Club

THE CREW RELAXES—Mary Ann Olson, left, and Svea Erikson, both from Sweden, take a short break from their duties as the crew of the luxury yacht Safari at the Capitol Yacht Club. The girls are working on the yacht during their vacations

Focus of all eyes along the Capital Yacht Club front these days are tva svenska sjomansflicker.

Even veteran Harbor Police, who should have seen everything by now, tack in their watery tracks to get a bettery squintful.

Source of all the salty stir is the eye-arresting crew of the sleek, luxury cruiser Safari.

The 72-foot craft, all quarter of a million dollars worth of it, is manned by two handsome young girls, Swedish sailorettes mentioned in the first paragraph.

Svea Erikson, 21, and Mary Ann Olson, 22, can be seen—and heard—humming Svenska sea chanties as they go about their nautical duties most any early morn on the boat owned by Lieut. Col. Herbert Schinkel, air attache at the Swedish Legation.

Their honey blond hair lashed in bright bandannas, attired in rolled-up dungarees and amply filled halters, the sturdy sailorettes interrupted their hull and deck swabbing yesterday long enough to tell a reporter:

"Yah, ve lak it here much, America. We tank it underbart!" (Wonderful, says the dictionary).

On vacation from household jobs with Swedish diplomatic families, the girls are fulfilling a life-long ambition, to live on the water as did their Viking forbears. (That's one interpretation, anyway of their English-sprinkled Swedish conversation).

They're spending their off duty hours plowing through manuals on boat handling, they said, to augment the nautical lore they learned earlier sailing their own small craft on the Baltic.

Enough conversation. Back they went to scrubbing and swabbing, preparing the Safari for a cruise to Maine and Canada later this month.

Anglo-Soviet Trade Talks Reach Crisis

Chicago Sun Foreign Service

London, July 8.—The British cabinet, with Prime Minister Clement Attlee presiding, is understood at its meeting today to have discussed a new crisis in Anglo-Soviet relations. Negotiations for an important British-Russian trade agreement are threatening to break down.

Their failure would be a blow to British hopes of saving precious dollars by buying from the Soviet Union.

Things also are appearing black in connection with the negotiations of a new Anglo-Soviet political and military treaty to supersede the outmoded alliance signed in 1942.

Harold Wilson, now in Moscow conducting commercial talks, cabled a very unfavorable report to the British Cabinet today.

According to reliable British sources, Russia drastically reduced the volume of food and lumber deliveries she had originally suggested she might supply to Britain. And Moscow has ceased discussing a four-year British-Russian trade pact and is now mentioning only a one-year agreement.

Russia is asking Britain to provide steel rails, which simply are not available here.

Wilson is said to be inclined to call off the whole deal, but he has received instructions to stay and refrain from breaking off the talks as long as possible.

One theory here is that the Soviet Union will need any surplus to compensate those eastern European countries which in compliance with Moscow's wishes refuse to join the new European reconstruction program.

Burpee to Resign As Aniline Head

New York, July 8 (AP).—George W. Burpee said today he would relinquish the presidency of General Aniline & Film Corp. late this month to resume his position as partner in the New York Engineering firm of Coverdale & Colpitts.

Recalling that he was loaned to the Government by the engineering firm to manage the corporation, which had been taken over by the alien property custodian in 1942, Burpee said this was with the understanding that he would be released from these duties at the conclusion of hostilities.

"Now that Jack Frye has been chosen to succeed me as chairman of the board of directors," he said, "I am happy to turn over the reins of management of General Aniline to his efficient hands."

Frye, former president of Transcontinental & Western Air, was elected chairman of General Aniline last April 14.

Food Parcels From Greece Being Probed

By George Durno

International News Service Staff Writer

The House Foreign Affairs Committe was informed yesterday by the State Department that two New York corporations are under investigation in connection with the shipping of thousands of food parcels from Greece to the United States for "starving Americans."

This was disclosed as the State Department announced the signing in Athens of an agreement between Greece and the United States covering distribution of relief there under the 350 million dollars United States assistance act for war-devastated European countries.

Under the agreement, Greece specifically pledged that American relief would not be diverted to the maintenance of armed forces, and gave the United States complete supervision and control over the distribution of food, clothing and similar supplies.

Rogers Demands Probe

Investigation of the Greek food parcel mystery was demanded in a resolution introduced in the House by Representative Rogers (R., Mass.) The Foreign Affairs Committee is now preparing a report on the basis of information supplied by the State Department.

Durward E. Sandifer, on behalf of Secretary of State Marshall, stated in a letter to Representative Eaton (R., N. J.) committee chairman, that the New York inquiry is being conducted by the Federal Trade Commission.

He said the two corporations under investigation are understood to be the principal commercial firms in this country involved in the shipments from Greece, and that efforts are being made "to ascertain whether unfair trade practices and fraud have been employed."

State Department Helps

The State Department is cooperating in the investigation by arranging for inquiries to be made in Greece, and the Treasury Department is also taking a hand in determining the reason for the sudden influx of food from Greece.

The American Embassy in Athens said the shipments were authorized by the Greek government "as the result of the large public demand."

In announcing revocation of the order at the end of May, the Greek Minister of Coordination said that approximately 48,351 packages had been sent.

Sandifer's report said that an examination by the Greek authorities of 848 packages, weighing approximately 15,350 pounds, revealed that they contained mainly specialties and that all but 232 pounds were products of which Greece had a surplus.

The New York corporations under investigation were not named.

Laborite Asks Quick Boost In Production

London, July 8 (U.P.).—Herbert Morrison, defending the government's trade and economic program in the Commons, warned today that "not only Britain, but the world must produce or perish."

Answering opposition leader Anthony Eden, Morrison said, "It is all very well for us to set up long-term organizations to insure . . . the welfare of mankind . . but "if producers of the world do not expand their production more quickly in the next three or four years the whole opportunity of building a tolerable civilization may be lost"

The only remedy for Europe's economic troubles pending restoration, he said, is to devise a plan under which "billions of dollars worth of North and South American production could be transferred across the Atlantic without the necessity for immediate payment in the form of an equal and opposite flow of European goods."

Eden Decries English Attitude

Eden said the Marshall plan was no cure-all and asserted "our own concern at this moment should be with . . . what we are going to do to help ourselves.

"If this Marshall offer should encourage continuation of our present wholly artificial basis for refusing to face facts then the breathing space it may give us will prove to be rather less than a blessing."

"We cannot afford to become permanent pensioners of the United States of America. We have a role of our own to play as a great empire."

Morrison blamed high prices for the reduced value of United States loans. He said further a 25 per cent cut in British living standards might be necessary.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton, winding up the debate, referred obliquely to the United States, in saying "nations are getting more and more like a lot of children playing marbles, except that one of the children has all the marbles. If one of the children has all the marbles the game cannot go on except by redistribution of the marbles among the children."

Belgium Hits U. S., Britain

Geneva, Switzerland, July 8 (AP). Belgium accused the United States and Britain of violating the Bretton Woods Agreement in a written memorandum on commercial relations with Germany circulated today to the delegates at the Economic Commission for Europe meeting here.

The Belgian note blamed lack of trade with Germany on British-American red tape, absence of a rate of exchange for the reichsmark and an artificial price structure based on American dollars.

[The Economic Commission put off discussion of the Marshall plan for European aid until tomorrow afternoon at least. The delegation chiefs agreed that they all should be given an opportunity to consult their governments on what stand to take, the United Press said.]

Big Iceberg in Atlantic

New York, July 8 (U.P.).—A mammoth iceberg has drifted into one of the main northern shipping lanes between the United States and Europe and all ships in the North Atlantic area have been warned to follow their courses with extreme caution, the U. S. Coast Guard announced tonight.

Disarmament, Atom Control Kept Separate by U. N. Council

Lake Success, N. Y., July 8 (U.P.). The United Nations Security Council, ignoring Russian warnings, today adopted an American-sponsored work plan to keep disarmament talks separated from atomic control negotiations.

The Council voted 9 to 0 for the American resolution. Russia and Poland declined to vote.

By abstaining, Gromyko deliberately refrained from killing the plan with his veto power.

However, he caustically attacked the American plan for being vague. Even backers of the American proposal conceded that it did little more than direct the disarmament commission to study disarmament.

Red-Inspired Land Reform Splinters Estates In Hungary, Advances After Near-Failure

By Daniel De Luce

Tata, Hungary (AP).—A Red-instigated reform that splintered the feudal estates of 50,000 aristocrats in Hungary among nearly one million poor tenants is slowly advancing today from the brink of failure.

Leftist politicians claim the worst is over. Men behind the plows predict hard times for at least 10 more years.

Half the Nation's arable land—about seven million acres—has come in for redistribution. Landlords with more than 1000 acres were entirely dispossessed. Others could keep up to 140 acres.

The peasants received tracts ranging from six to twelve acres, including some sort of housing.

Seat of Esterhazys

Tata is an ancestral seat of the titled Esterhazys. The family once held 453,000 acres in the Danube basin. Elegant, 23-year-old Count Miklos Esterhaby alone had 34,000 acres. This is what happened.

A state mental hospital moved into the baroque yellow-walled palace where his parents entertained emperors and kings.

Eighteen thousand acres of hunting forest were taken over by the forestry department.

Count Keeps Brickyard

Eleven thousand acres of cultivated land were parcelled out gratis to former employes.

The count was allowed to retain a champagne factory and a brickyard. His income still pays fancy checks at Budapest night clubs.

His departure from the land stirred no intoxicated joy among the peasantry; for they live in black, grinding poverty.

Much of Stock Gone

Half the cattle and horses, 66 per cent of the pigs and 75 per cent of the sheep were lost. Over half of all farm tools and machines disappeared.

In 1946 a drought reduced Hungary, the bread basket for central Europe, to begging for foreign wheat.

Now you find such an embodiment of agrarian misery as Geza David, father of nine children, looking with bafflement at 10 acres—the first that he or his forefathers ever possessed.

David has no horse or cow for plowing. His wheat yield last year was so poor he failed to pay his taxes and was fined $16. He tried raising two hogs. Both died. He broke his arm in the spring and his pregnant wife had to do all the chores.

His ambition is to buy a cow. But the government has no funds yet for this kind of loan.

Works on Railroad

Now he is a railroad section hand at $1 a day. Sundays he works on the land. His family is shoeless and in tatters.

"It was better," he sighed, "when I was coachman for the count. We had milk and meat and wine. The count had the worries."

Next door is Janos Szabo, with two horses, 12 acres, more optimism.

"Yes, everybody had more to eat before the war," he asserted. "But I am my own boss now. I like it. In 10 years most of the people will feel like I do."

David and Szabo are dead set against farm cooperatives, which the Government half-heartedly tried to foster.

"They might start as cooperatives, but in the end," they declared, "we'd be as bad off as the Russian farmers."

U. S., Russia In 'Stormiest' Korea Debate

Seoul, Korea, July 8 (U.P.).—American and Russian delegates to the joint commission for Korea remained deadlocked today after three hours of the "stormiest debate to date" on which Koreans should be consulted toward forming a provisional government, a reliable source said.

The Russians, armed with clippings from Seoul newspapers, insisted the Koreans who opposed the trusteeship provision of the Potsdam declaration should not be eligible for consultation with the commission, it was reported.

Presumably anti-Communist Leaders Syngman Rhee and Kim Koo, who have a large following in south Korea, would be among those the Russians would bar.

VICTIM OF "REFORM"—Geza David, with his barefooted wife and one of their nine children, is a Hungarian who acquired 10 acres of land in a Russia-instituted reform which split an old Hungarian feudal estate. David can't make the acreage self-supporting. He'd rather have his old job, driving a coach for Count Miklos Esterhazy

Nagy Ex-Aide Plans 'Middle' Party

Budapest, Hungary, July 8 (U.P.). The Rev. Stephen Balogh, Catholic priest who was considered former Premier Ferenc Nagy's top political adviser, said today he would form a new Hungarian party, which would oppose the leftist-dominated government coalition, yet maintain friendship with the Soviet Union.

Father Balogh, purged from the majority Small Holder Party a year ago by order of the Russians, said he believed there was a need in Hungary for a middle-of-the-road party for dissatisfied peasants. Laborers who oppose the Marxist parties and white collar workers who fear both the extreme left and right.

He said his new party would not have church backing. It was generally believed here that the church would not support him, especially since his platform will be based on collaboration with Russia.

Father Balogh said he would not have "anything to do" with extreme rightist parliamentary opposition leaders Deszoe Sulyok and Zoltan Pfeiffer.

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights
Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.
When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.
Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Evatt Plans Protest Visit To MacArthur

Canberra, Australia, July 8 (AP). Minister for External Affairs Herbert V. Evatt will sail Saturday for Japan to protest to Gen. Douglas MacArthur against his alleged "dictatorial" occupation policies, diplomatic sources said today.

A ministry announcement said Evatt planned to return to Canberra for the British Commonwealth Conference on the Japanese peace treaty, scheduled for August 26.

The announcement said Evatt was going to Tokyo as a guest of MacArthur and would consult Australian representatives in Japan for "on-the-spot facts essential to consideration of the Japanese peace settlement."

Diplomatic sources said Evatt would denounce MacArthur's practice of making major decisions on occupation policy without consulting Australia and other nations which participated in the Japanese war.

The Australian press has been especially bitter about plans for a second Japanese whaling expedition, which was protested so strongly that the Far Eastern Commission in Washington announced it would be reviewed, and resumption of Japanese phosphate mining in the Palau Islands.

The forceful Evatt will give the supreme commander a "friendly but nevertheless pointed ear-bashing," a reliable diplomatic source said.

The Independent Sydney Daily Mirror expressed hope Evatt "would lose perspective."

"Australia will always remember," the Mirror said, "that it was the weight and might of American arms, with doughty assistance by Australia, which smashed the Japanese and, to our everlasting gratitude, saved Australia from invasion."

Guatemala Breaks Off Relations With Trujillo

Guatemala City, Guatemala, July 8 (U.P.).—President Juan Jose Arevalo today ordered suspension of diplomatic relations with the Dominican Republic because he said he refused to maintain friendship with a government that has turned Republican practices into monarchical ones.

He added that through his recent reelection, President Trujillo would be able to govern "for the next four centuries."

Doctor Works by 'Ham' Radio

Audubon, N. J., July 8 (U.P.).—An amateur radio hookup spanning the 6000 miles to tiny Palmyra Island in the Pacific probably has saved the life of an American soldier on the lonely weather outpost.

The unidentified soldier was the radio operator of an Army plane which crashed on Palmyra. One arm and a leg were torn off and his head was injured.

There was no physician on the island, but a weather observer, Steve Barnes, 32, Phoenixville, Pa., used his amateur radio to call Joseph Bonsted hear.

Bonsted called Dr. Ralph W. Davis, chief surgeon at Audubon Hospital. With the telephone and radio circuits open, Davis delivered instructions to the men on Palmyra.

They had novocaine, but Davis cautioned them not to use it because of the soldier's condition.

"Just pull the scalp back as well as you can," he said. "Then apply clean dressings."

Zionist Leader Backs Partition of Palestine

Jerusalem, Palestine, July 8 (U.P.).—Dr. Chaim Weizman, scientist and former president of the world Zionist organization, told the United Nations special committee today that partition was the only answer to the Palestine problem.

"All parties to the Palestine dispute are weary of perpetual tension and friction and want a solution in which stable relations can be established," Dr. Weizman said.

"I am convinced that partition is such a solution because it is final.

"With us it is question of survival and brooks no delay," he said.

India's delegate, Sir Abdur Rahman, a Moslem, questioned him about the possibility of strife between Jews and Arabs as a result of partition.

Weizman admitted there was a chance of conflict, but was hopeful partition could be worked out "with a minimum of difficulty."

David Ben Gurion, Jewish Agency spokesman, reiterated the Agency's desire for an "independent state of our own" and membership in the United Nations.

[The New York Herald Tribune said the committee appealed to the Arabs of Palestine and the whole Middle East, to drop their boycott and testify before the committee.]

As the committee met, Gen. G. H. A. McMillan, British troop commander, confirmed the death sentences of three extremists convicted in the Acre Prison raid.

All police and army cars were ordered to guard against reprisal kidnapings of Britons. Acre Prison was cordoned by several hundred British soldiers to resist any last minute attempt by Irgun Zvai Leumi to free their comrades doomed to death and two others sentenced to 15 years each.

Nazi Sterilization Permanent for 30%

Frankfurt, Germany, July 8 (U.P.). Thirty per cent of the thousands of unwilling victims of the Nazi sterilization program are doomed to a life of impotency, two German doctors reported Monday.

Drs. Otto Weiss of the Stuttgart Health Department, and Hermann Gundert, Stuttgart psychiatrist, stated that refertilization was medically impossible in 30 per cent of all sterilization cases.

Eve-and-Apple Story Fails to Win Divorce

London, July 8 (U.P.).—Walter Trudgeon failed to get a divorce today on his plea that his wife seduced a 20-year-old "Adam" by luring him into their home with an apple, held enticingly from a kitchen window.

"The Biblical account of Eve tempting Adam with an apple is not a story which is very creditable to Eve," Judge Scobell Armstrong said at Bodmin. But he refused the divorce for lack of evidence.

Senate Group Scored on Perlman Hearings

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Conduct of hearings into the nomination of Philip B. Perlman of Baltimore to be Solicitor General have been "a disgrace" and have violated Perlman's constitutional rights and hampered the Supreme Court, Senator J. Howard McGrath (D., R. I.) charged yesterday.

McGrath, former Solicitor General and a member of the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee handling the nomination, angrily voiced his criticism on the Senate floor after he had waited in vain for a hearing called for 10 a. m. to get under way.

Witnesses, one brought under subpena from Jamestown, N. Y., waited until 12:10 p. m. before Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) appeared for the hearing. Ferguson said he was detained at a Republican policy meeting.

After a 10-minute open hearing, the committee went into closed session, and set 2:30 p. m. for another open hearing. The meeting was adjourned by Ferguson at 3:41 p. m., without hearing further witnesses.

Says Privacy Is Violated

McGrath told the Senate: "Some of the things that are going on now in subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee, of which I am a member, are a disgrace to the American way of doing things.

"I refer to what is happening to Mr. Philip Perlman, whose name is before the Judiciary Committee today, and what has been happening to him for the past three or four months at the hands of a subcommittee of the United States Senate, which has seen fit to tear up this man's constitutional rights, to pry into the privacy of his clients, to pry into the privacy of his own affairs, to investigate matters that are none of the committee's business to investigate, and to have delayed the confirmation of that particular nomination during all these long months."

Calling Perlman a "distinguished American and a lawyer," McGrath insisted that he should have been confirmed many months ago.

"Yet we have had the temerity to sit here and deny to the Supreme Court of the United States during practically a whole term of that court the services of a Solicitor General.

"I know something about the duties of the office of Solicitor General because I had the great distinction of serving in that position for a short period of time. I know that the Supreme Court relies greatly upon the availability of a Solicitor General.

"The court has no one else with whom to discuss the various ramifications of procedure in cases in which the United States is a party before that court—cases which involve the life and the liberties of our people, and millions, yes, billions of dollars."

When Ferguson adjourned the recessed hearing yesterday afternoon, he announced the committee would hold three night sessions, all closed, this week, and one open hearing. He said he hoped the committee could end its hearings with the Saturday session, and then act on the nomination.

Suspects Deliberate Plot

Saying that the committee does not meet when its meetings are called, that it meets only when it is convenient for the chairman to appear, regardless of the time it is specified, McGrath told the Senate that he suspected the plan is "to delay and drag out these hearings" until adjournment.

If the Perlman nomination is not acted upon by the end of the session, it dies and is returned to the White House. The President, according to Capitol Hill and Justice Department authorities, will be able to name Perlman to serve in the interim, and send his name back up during the next session.

Friends of Perlman pointed out yesterday that he is suffering considerable financial loss by the long delay in the hearings, since he has been forced to refuse nearly all legal business because of the pending nomination.

One Witness Heard

McGrath resigned as Solicitor General last fall before he was elected Senator. President Truman nominated Perlman in January, but the Ferguson subcommittee did not open hearings until May 14. The office has been vacant since McGrath's resignation.

Sole witness yesterday was P. A. Ahlstrom, secretary-treasurer of the Automatic Voting Machine Co. of James Town, N. Y., who gave his company's permission for the committee to study his company's and Perlman's files concerning the nominee's legal work for the company. This unusual procedure was also followed in the case of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which also authorized Perlman to divulge all information concerning his legal work for the railroad. Under all usual rules, the relationship of attorney and client is held sacred and inviolate.

McGrath said he was staying away from the hearings because he could not "be a part of what was happening."

Ferguson said the night executive sessions were being held so that the subcommittee could examine all the files concerning Perlman's legal work.

Timetable for yesterday sessions:

Hearing called	10:00 a. m.
Hearing opened	12:05 p. m.
Ahlstrum testifies until	12:10 p. m.
Ferguson closes hearings	12:10 p. m.
Afternoon sessions called for	2:30 p. m.
Ferguson arrives	2:50 p. m.
Ferguson and counsel leave room	2:50 p. m.
Ferguson returns	3:36 p. m.
Hearing adjourned	3:41 p. m.

Confirmation Delayed Again

Latin Beauty Sixth 'Dahlia' Victim in L. A.

Los Angeles, July 8 (U.P.).—The nude and mutilated body of pretty Mrs. Rosenda Mondragon, 20, was found in the old Mexican section within a few blocks of City Hall today. She had been strangled with a silk stocking.

The Latin beauty was the sixth victim in a murder cycle that started with the "Black Dahlia" slaying of Elizabeth Short, 22, January 15. One maniac was believed responsible for all six.

Evidence of Rape Attempt

From bruises on her body, it appeared she was strangled first and then thrown from an automobile. There was evidence of attempted rape.

The slain woman's estranged husband, Tony Mondragon, told police his wife visited him briefly at about 2 a. m. and appeared slightly intoxicated. Mondragon said he saw her get into a coupe with a strange man and drive off.

Quarreled Violently

Mrs. Mondragon's sister, Mrs. Trinidad Vigil, 25, told police the couple had quarreled violently.

Her identity was established by fingerprints in the police department. She was arrested on a drunk charge March 19, 1946.

House Passes Tax-Cut Bill

said it would give 80 per cent of its benefits to taxpayers earning $5000 or less. He said only 62 per cent of the Knutson big tax relief went to this group.

In two parts, the Democratic substitute provided:

1. An increase in personal income tax exemptions from $500 to $600. (Cost, $1,646,000,000.)
2. A three-percentage-point cut in each income tax bracket. (Cost, $1,734,000,000.)

In lieu of the percentage cut, Forand originally proposed repeal of wartime increases in excise taxes and authority for married couples in all States to divide their incomes equally for tax purposes. In a conference before the House met, the Ways and Means minority dropped these points.

Across the Capitol meanwhile, Senator Scott W. Lucas (D., Ill.) introduced a Democratic substitute varying only slightly from the House-defeated recommit motion. Lucas proposed:

1. Upping individual exemptions to $650. (Cost, $2,300,000.)
2. A four-percentage-point reduction in each income tax bracket. (Cost, $2,200,000,000.)

Crowds Protest As Martial Law Holds Iran in Grip

Tehran, Iran, July 8 (AP).—Martial law was imposed in Iran today on the order of Premier Ahmed Qavam and shortly afterward angry crowds gathered in Tehran's public squares to protest the reenactment of military rule.

Following the order, Gen. Ahmed Sepehbod Amir Ahmedi, war minister in Quavam's cabinet, submitted his resignation to Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlevi, who accepted it.

Iranian newsmen predicted the government's first move under martial law would be the suppression of newspapers and the arrest of editors who recently have made editorial attacks on Qavam.

Some foreign observers, who recently have predicted a possible coup by the army, said Ahmedi's resignation removed a strong nationalist from the cabinet and left a group of extremists in power.

Swedish Boy Seeks to Win Bicycle Here

Fred Fleisher is a boy who knows opportunity when he sees it, even when it's 4000 miles away.

Like a thousand other youngsters who have written to The Post Fred wants to earn himself some sports equipment by selling subscriptions. But unlike the others Fred lives in Stockholm, Sweden.

Fred's application to become a junior representative was received yesterday by The Post circulation department. Fred said that he lived at Linnegatan 86, Stockholm, and listed his telephone number.

The Swedish boy indicated that he wanted to earn a bicycle. More than 60 boys and girls in the Washington area have won bicycles by working for The Post. Fifty trips to New York City and a large volume of sports equipment, including baseballs, bats and gloves have been earned by other boys and girls.

So sure was Fred of being a winner that he said his prize should be sent to his aunt, a resident of New York City, if it was too difficult to send it to Sweden.

Although the offer of a bicycle which caught Fred's eye has elapsed, would-be Post salesmen can now win a trip to Atlantic City.

Cotton Outlook Disappointing

year's crop is the smallest since 1929, and 60 per cent below the carryover a year ago.

A crop of the size indicated, together with the carryover, would give a total supply of about 13,495,000 bales. This would be the smallest since 1923, when it was 12,788,000.

At the same time the department reported that a "critical situation" exists in the wheat areas in Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, due to a shortage of custom combines.

(A "custom combine" is a mobile threshing or harvesting outfit owned by professional harvesters who move northward with the wheat harvest. It is estimated there are now 5000 such machines, including 1100 big combines brought in from Canada, in the wheat areas.)

Weather Delays Harvesting

Although there are about 1500 more farm-owned and custom combines now operating in the Great Plains area than last year they are delayed in operations by two factors:

1. The unusually heavy wheat yield per acre, with heavier-than-usual straw, cutting down the daily average by 15 to 25 per cent.

2. Bad weather during harvest season in the Panhandle area. This delayed harvesting by several weeks.

From the Weather Bureau came a report last night that "fair weather, abundant sunshine, and mostly favorable temperatures over the greater portion of the country stimulated crop growth and were favorable for farm activities.

"A few nights in northern and middle sections," it continued, "were too cool for corn, but moderately warm weather followed.

"In Iowa condition was rather poor compared with 1946, but progress during the week was fair to good, but practically all acreage cultivated one or more times."

Farm Income Jumps 30%

went up from $1.50 to $3.50 a bushel, although corn dropped from Monday's high of $2.17¼ to $2.13¼ a bushel.

Last night the Agriculture Department reported that during the last week in June the price of 100 pounds of hogs had reached a level equal to 10 bushels of corn. In the last week of February, the same report showed, 100 pounds of hogs was equal in Chicago markets to 18.8 bushels of corn.

This was accompanied by a warning that corn prices were way out of line with present livestock prices, which may result in a great reduction in meat in a few months.

Senate Confirms Jones as Justice

The Senate confirmed yesterday President Truman's nomination of Marvin Jones of Texas to be chief justice of the United States Court of Claims. He already is a member of the court.

The President's appointment of John Caskie Collet of Missouri to be judge of the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals also won Senate approval. Collet succeeds Judge Kimbrough Stone, retired.

The Senate also confirmed the nomination of James Earl Wells, jr., of South Dakota to be cooperative bank commissioner of the Farm Credit Administration.

Governor Lane Names Galt To Head Sanitary Commission

DWIGHT B. GALT — LELAND G. WORTHINGTON — J. LEE BALL

NAMED YESTERDAY—In three appointments affecting Prince Georges County residents, Galt became chairman of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission; Worthington replaced Galt as a commission member, and Ball was named State Land Commissioner

Dwight B. Galt, Hyattsville, a member of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, was elevated to the chairmanship of that body yesterday by Governor Lane in one of three appointments affecting Prince Georges County residents.

Other appointments, made on the recommendation of the county's Democratic State Central Committee, were Leland G. Worthington, Berwyn, to replace Galt as a commission member and J. Lee Ball, Landover Hills, to be State Land Commissioner.

The vacancies were caused by the recent deaths of WSSC Chairman Frank B. Smith and Land Commissioner Henry W. Cord.

Galt, a patent attorney, was a member of the Maryland-National Park and Planning Commission before receiving his appointment to the Sanitary Commission earlier this year. Worthington is a retired faculty member of both the University of Maryland and the Hyattsville High School. Before that he was a surveyor and engineer.

Telegraphy 'Push-Button' Now a Reality

Philadelphia, July 8 (AP).—The Western Union Telegraph Co. unveiled today a two-million-dollar installation here which it described as marking "a new era of push-button telegraphy." At the same time it announced a radio beam telegraph network ultimately will replace pole lines, long a symbol of the telegraph.

The push-button system here is the first in a projected nation-wide network and triples the capacity of present facilities. The mechanical marvel will permit clerks to relay messages to any of 270 destinations by merely pushing the designated button.

Tomorrow the first circuit will be placed in actual operation to New York, and other circuits will be added until the change-over is completed by September.

Philadelphia will be the clearing house for all messages to and from Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and the countless counties of Maryland and Virginia on the Del-Mar-Va peninsula.

With the new system, for example, a message from Wilmington, Del., addressed to San Francisco, will be teletyped in Wilmington and received in Philadelphia simultaneously on a telegraph device called a printer perforator, which prints the message, and at the same time and on the same tape, punches combinations of holes which activate the teletype. A clerk will read the destination as the message begins to come in and will push the button marked "San Francisco." Pressing the button will cause the perforated tape to run through an automatic transmitter. In San Francisco, the signals will print the message, ready for delivery.

Make the salad make the meal

Summer time is salad time. The abundance of fresh fruits and vegetables makes concocting salads a pleasure. Add a cup or so of sea food, fresh or canned; strips of cheese, chicken, or hard-cooked eggs and they're filling enough for a whole meal. Dress them up on a big platter surrounded by crisp lettuce leaves, or arrange them on individual plates, and they're good-looking enough for special luncheons or informal suppers on hot evenings.

A PAIR OF TRIO SALADS—One a vegetable medley, the other a fruit trio. Serve them with hot orange rolls, lemon chiffon pie and hot or iced coffee. Arrange 3 chilled, cupped lettuce leaves on a small luncheon plate. Fill one with shrimp or crab salad, one with asparagus tips marinated in French dressing, and the third with alternating slices of tomatoes and cucumber. Pass mayonnaise or French dressing. Or try this combination: Crab or tuna salad in one lettuce cup; ground raw carrot salad in another; and drained, chilled, cooked peas in the third. Serve with Thousand Island Dressing. For the Fruit Trio: A generous serving (about ⅓ cup) cream style cottage cheese, icy cold, goes into one lettuce cup; melon balls into a second cup, and a fresh peach half with red raspberries nestling in the center into the third. Serve with salad dressing or mayonnaise to which fruit juice has been added.

CHINESE CHICKEN SALAD—Toasted buttered crackers or corn muffins, fresh peach slices on gingerbread squares and coffee bring the meal to a tasty finish. Combine 2 cups each diced cooked chicken and bean sprouts, 1 cup each pineapple chunks and chopped cucumber, and ⅔ cup toasted shredded almonds; chill. Just before serving, add sufficient mayonnaise to moisten and season to taste with salt and lemon juice. Toss lightly to mix. Serve on Chinese fried noodles for a crisp, nut-crunchy flavor. Serves 6.

Child Tells of Seeing 'Big Boy' Kill Babies

Canton, Ohio, July 8 (AP).—A 5-year-old boy today repeated in court his statement that he saw a "big boy in a white coat" drop one of two girl babies found dying of crushed skulls at Massillon City Hospital June 6.

Roger Gue of Navarre, Ohio, a patient at the hospital at the time the babies died, estimated the boy was about 15 years old.

D. C. Police Statistics Baffled Horan, Young Before Expose

by the simple method of keeping it off the teletype. They were hidden in precincts and the Detective Bureau.

Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.), chairman of the District Committee, called a meeting for 2 p m. today to determine, among other business, if members want to dig into reasons for the doctored statistics. It will be an executive session.

The Fire and Police Subcommittee of the Federation of Citizens Associations also became interested. They met last night to mull over the finding made by The Post.

The Criminal Justice Association awaited a reply from Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett on its letter asking for a conference.

The letter, released to the press yesterday, declared:

"The Executive Committee of the Washington Criminal Justice Association requests that you meet with its representatives as soon as it is practicable to discuss methods of crime reporting for statistical tabulation.

"It is our belief that unless we receive complete and accurate reports of all serious crimes reported in the District of Columbia, our value to the community is seriously impaired.

"We desire to work cooperatively with the Metropolitan Police Department in presenting to the public a valid perspective of the crime situation."

Signed by Remon

The letter was signed by John A. Remon, president of the association and vice president of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The association was expected to be interested in the possibility of finding "Willie Pye" cases, a practice first exposed by it in 1937. Willie Pye was a Negro who confessed to six robberies. But police at that time, eager to write off their books a large number of unsolved cases, credited him with several dozen more which he had not actually committed. Pye was tried on two offenses and the other cases were marked down to the credit of the police as closed.

In an effort to curb false complaints of crimes, police have begun using a year-old law which makes it a misdemeanor, The Post learned yesterday.

Previously, all complaints suspected to be false were held. Police Chief Barrett last week issued an order permitting them to be held without being reported if the complaint was suspect, despite FBI instruction that all crime complaints were to be included in uniform crime reports gathered from all cities.

Follow Procedure Now

The instructions, published in the Uniform Crime Reporting Handbook for May 1947, declared that when a crime complaint is found to be untrue, it should be included among the closed cases. Thus, police would have a means of eliminating all "phoney" cases, and would still be aware of the number.

This procedure apparently has been followed since The Post investigation.

Spurgeon Ross Hawkins, 24, Brentwood, Md., forfeited $25 at the second precinct after he was charged with falsely reporting he had been robbed in his bakery truck of $215. And the case was reported on the teletype, thereby being included in statistics as a crime complaint and as a closed case.

Joseph E. Cash, 35, a laborer of 505 4th st. sw., forfeited $25 for falsely reporting he had been robbed and assaulted last Thursday. Police of the Fourth Precinct said he had a fight and was not robbed.

Movie of Bikini Test Is on Free Program Tonight

"Operation Crossroads," a motion picture record of the Bikini atom bomb test, will be shown at 8 p. m. today in the Interior Department auditorium, 18th and C sts. nw.

Three other films also will be presented, in the second of a summer series of documenary movies sponsored by The Washington Post and the D. C. Public Library. Admission is free.

Other films on tonight's schedule are: "Music of India," presented by the India Information Services; "Expanding World Relationships," dealing with cooperation among nations since Jefferson's time, and "Salmon Run," a Canadian Film Board release describing the spawning habits of the salmon.

AAF Flying Saucer Exposed As Box-Kite Weather Balloon

of the world. But under the personal direction of Lieut. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, acting AAF chief, who dropped into the Washington AAF public information headquarters in the midst of the excitement, they burned up the wires to Texas and New Mexico . . .

They got from Brig. Gen. Roger Ramey, Eighth Air Force Commander a description of the object. It was "of very flimsy construction—almost like a box-kite", made of wood and with a cover "like tinfoil". . .

Ramey said he hadn't actually seen it himself as yet. He went to take a look, and called back that it was about 25 feet in diameter. He said he was shipping it on to Wright Field, Ohio, but would have one of the meteorological officers look at it first. . . .

Story Falls Flat

That's when the story fell flat, with a thud heard 1500 miles away in The Post city room.

Warrant Officer Irving Newton, a forecaster at the Fort Worth Army base weather station, stepped up, and identified the object as port of a weather balloon. It was of a type used by United tSates Weather Bureau and AAF meteorologists to determine the direction and velocity of winds at high altitudes.

He said it could have come from any one of 80 weather stations in the United States using such equipment.

Newton said the object, a ray wind target, was used "because they can go so much higher than the eye can see." A radar set is employed to follow the balloon and through a process of triangulation the winds aloft are charted, he added.

Looks Like Star

When rigged up, Newton stated, the object looks like a six-pointed star, is silvery in appearance, and rises in the air like a kite, mounted to a 100-gram balloon.

General Ramey then took to a Fort Worth radio station to explain that the "flifyfling disc" was a weather balloon.

Earlier, it was announced that he would broadcast over the National Broadcasting Company, but this was not done.

Brazell, found the broken remains of the weather device scattered over a square mile of his land three weeks ago. He bundled the tinfoil and broken wooden beams on the kite and the torn synthetic rubber remains of the ballon together and rolled it under some brush, according to Maj. Jesse A. Marcel, Houma, La., 509th intelligence officer at Roswell, who brought the device to Fort Worth.

Goes to Sheriff

On a trip to town at Corona, N.M., Saturday night, Brazell heard the first reference to the flying disks, Major Marcel related.

Brazell hurried home, dug up the remnants of the kite and balloon on Sunday and Monday headed for Roswell and the sheriff's office.

This resulted in the Army entering the case.

Col. William H. Blanchard, 509th commanding officer, reported the incident to General Ramey.

At that time, Lieut. Warren Haught, public information officer at the Roswell Field announced that a "flying disc" had come into possession of the Army Air Forces.

Lieutenant Haught said in a statement to newsmen that "the many rumors regarding the flying disc became a reality yesterday when the Intelligence Office of the 509th (atomic) Bomb Group of the Eighth Air Force, Roswell Army Airfield, was fortunate enough to gain possession of a disc through cooperation of one of the local ranchers and the sheriff's office."

Air Forces public relations men here were puzzled when newsmen reported the statements from Texas.

At first they gave the bare details of the finding of the object. Theen they clamped a security lid on any further information, on grounds that it was "high level stuff."

As it turned out, they were absolutely right.

International News Service said a Shreveport, La., auto salesman found a spinning gadget of aluminum about 16 inches in diameter containing wires and turned it over to intelligence officers at Barksdale Field.

INS said the White House officially announced that President Truman doesn't know anything about the saucers.

Rear Admiral Blandy, who commanded the Bikini atom bomb tests, was skeptical the disks existed at all and said he couldn't be blamed for them.

A Roanoke, Va., toy maker, Kyle Walker, said the saucers were rubber rings his sales crew is using to promote a new game in which aluminum rings are thrown at posts in the ground.

Walker said he told his salesmen to fill the rubber rings with helium so they would blow about and create interest.

Lloyd Bennett of Oelwein, Iowa, claimed a reward for his discovery—a piece of metal six inches in diameter which he said swished through the air. A metallurgist said it took 6300 degrees of heat to melt it.

An Australian professor of psychology, F. S. Cotton, leaned to the spots-before-the-eyes theory. Reports of disks also came from South Africa, Denmark and England.

Philippines Held Able to Pay Own Way, With Higher Taxes

By The Associated Press

The joint Philippine-American Finance Commission yesterday recommended higher taxes and a campaign against tax evasion as part of a broad program for strengthening the economy of the new Philippine republic.

The commission reported that if the substance of the program is adopted the Philippine government will not require additional foreign loans to meet internal budgetary deficits.

It said the Philippine economy "should be able to finance itself" through a period of construction and expansion greater than it has ever experienced.

The commission, of which Edgar G. Crossman is American cochairman, advised the Philippine government to meet next year's budget by taxation and internal borrowing.

Suggests Rigid Enforcement

It suggested "rigid enforcement of present tax laws, prosecution for tax evasion, and increases in the corporate income tax, taxes on luxury goods, and processing and other taxes."

President Truman transmitted the report to Congress for its information in identical letters to the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House.

A White House summary said the President "expressed confidence" in the ability of the Philippine government to achieve the objectives of the report, which was forwarded to him by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder.

"The most significant finding of the commission," the summary said, "is that the Philippines is among the five countries of the world having the highest dollar balances in the United States, and that more than two billion dollars in foreign exchange will accrue to the Philippine economy over the next four years.

Sources of Funds

"The commission estimated that more than one half of these receipts will result from war damage payments, veterans' benefits, back pay to guerilla troops and other United States Government outlays. Most of the balance will arise from Philippine exports."

The commission recommended that the new republic concentrate on speeding up its rate of economic growth to bring about "a rapid increase of production and a corresponding rise in the standard of living which these foreign exchange receipts will make possible."

Observing that the present debt of the government is relatively small, the commission proposed creation of a broad market for government securities, "initially to meet budgetary deficits and later to provide funds for economic development."

The report included a plan for a limited issue of Philippine treasury certificates in excess of the present 100 per cent dollar and silver backing, if additional funds are required to cover the budget for the fiscal year 1948.

Guarantee Recommended

"To preserve the 100 per cent reserve principle pending the working out of more comprehensive monetary and banking reform," the summary added, "the plan recommends a temporary guarantee, in effect, of the limited issue of treasury certificates by the United States exchange stabilization fund.

"The guarantee would remain in force only until a central bank is established in the Philippines, and in no event for more than two years. The issue of treasury certificates could not exceed 100 million pesos or 50 million dollars."

Another proposal was adoption by the Philippines within a year of a monetary system in which authority and responsibility would rest in a central bank.

Lewis Lords It in UMW's Ritzy Office

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Staff Writer

John L. Lewis has as many sides as a lump of coal.

And yesterday he had his best, or contract-signing, side forward.

He smiled at reporters, was polite to photographers, and at times—but only at times—talked almost kindly of coal mine operators.

Lewis met reporters in his ritzy office on the sixth floor of the United Mine Workers building.

This room looks like the result of a dream the interior decorator of a movie palace once had about a coal mine. And maybe it is.

There are panelled walls and overhead beams to delicately suggest a mine's innards. Special safety lamps are on the wall, on each side of the big fireplace. A fancy chandelier is made out of picks, shovels, sledgehammers, dynamite borers and miners' safety lamps.

Lewis Dominates Setting

Especially Lewis.

For Lewis manages to dominate any setting, no matter how fancy.

Yesterday he was in his prime as he explained this is the best contract ever.

He slowly rolled out his words, tasting each one with obvious satisfaction.

A reporter asked:

"Why did the operators give you such a favorable contract?"

"Who can look into the mind of a coal mine operator?" returned Lewis. And he later amplified this to: "Who knows what a coal operator thinks—if he thinks." But all this was said rather jovially.

Just to show that, as usual, he had a mad on, he opened up on Senator Taft (R., Ohio) for his part in the passing of the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill. But all this was done in the mood of an old sharpshooter who can't let an opportunity go by for a little target practice.

Lewis obviously was pleased—and he didn't care who knew it.

The other side of the picture?

Walter Jones, an operator from Altoona, Pa., came in to the building and asked:

"Where's the funeral to be?"

"The funeral parlor," said Clarence Donaldson, the miners' sergeant-at-arms, "is on the third floor." Donaldson laughed heartily.

Educators Give Security Plan, Reject UMT

Cincinnati, July 8 (AP).—The educational policies commission of the National Education Association today advocated a four-point program for national security, but said it could "discern no evidence to warrant endorsing universal military training."

Dr. A. C. Flora of Columbia, S. C., a member of the NEA group, told newsmen the commission's stand had been incorporated in a letter to President Truman's advisory commission on universal training.

The commission's program for national security proposed:

"A greatly enlarged program of scientific and technical development.

"Achievement of the highest level of health and intellectual competence of all our people, especially our youth, through improved programs of nutrition, medical care, housing and education.

"Adequate support of the diplomatic services and the development of a comprehensive program for the preparation of diplomatic personnel.

"Wider understanding by all our people of national and international problems and policies, including emphasis on full and unremitting participation in the United Nations."

In a separate panel discussion at the NEA's annual convention here, Dr. Virgil M. Rogers, superintendent of schools at Battle Creek, Mich., and William H. Lemmel, Baltimore (Md.) school superintendent, stressed the need for unity of educators if they were to be a powerful force for good.

[Delegates condemned merit rating systems as destructive of teaching moral. On the final vote, only a few scattered voices were heard in favor.]

$10,000 Tax Fine Levied

Norfolk, Va., July 8 (AP).—Samuel Albert Levin of Portsmouth was fined $10,000 in U. S. District Court today on a charge of filing incorrect income tax returns for 1942 and 1943.

Andrew J. Bordon, jr., intelligence service agent of the Treasury Department, testified that Levin's income taxes for the two years were approximately $26,000 short of the amount that should have been paid. The Government claims Levin owes a total of $42,000 for back taxes, penalties and interest. Russel T. Bradford, Levin's attorney, said the true amount would be approximately $20,000.

1 Killed and 6 Injured In Circus Train Wreck

Hubbard, Nebr., July 8 (AP).—Eight cars of Clyde Beatty's 15-car circus train were derailed in the early-morning darkness today, killing one circus worker and injuring at least six.

The animals, most of them in the fore part of the train which stayed on the tracks, did not escape their cages.

ELEMENTARY ECONOMICS

The MORE People we sell . . . the LESS we can charge for our merchandise.

America's position as a world economic power was built on mass distribution . . . the economic formula that gets more goods to more people for "less money." ACE BEVERAGE CO. has lived by this rule of business. We began as a cut-rate store and continued that way . . . until we built up a large volume of business. It stands to reason that more people will buy your goods if your mark up is low. That's the way we do business, and frankly, our business is continuously growing. 9 D. C. Department Stores Not Collecting Md. Sales Tax

Representatives of Washington's nine largest department stores disclosed yesterday that they have not applied for Maryland sales tax licenses, are not collecting the tax, and are continuing deliveries into Maryland.

Ralph L. Goldsmith of Lansburgh & Bros., chairman of the department store division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, said not further action on the tax will be taken until a study is made "of the practical problems involved."

The representatives met for two hours yesterday, but "no final conclusion was reached," Goldsmith said. He said another meeting will soon be held by store officials to consider the tax again.

When informed of the merchants' action, Maryland State Comptroller James J. Lacy said he "planned no action at the moment" to enforce the State tax regulations, but "was hoping for cooperation." He said he felt "we will get cooperation, eventually."

Lacy said his staff was "available for conferences" with the District retailers if their aid was requested.

Stores represented at the local meting, according to Goldsmith, were the Hecht Co., Kann's Department Store, Lansburgh and Bro., Wodward & Lothrop, Julius Garfinckel & Co., Jelleff's, Sears, Roebuck & Co., Goldenberg's and the Raleigh Haberdashery.

Maryland's sales tax chief, Walter E. Kennedy, speaking here last week said that the State can not collect on deliveries made by common carrier or parcel post, but did have authority to stop store-owned trucks carrying merchadise into Maryland which had not been taxed.

Meanwhile, in Baltimore, Kennedy and Edward Engelbert, sales tax attorney, instructed 40 investigators and auditors on enforcement of the levy.

Four Baltimore hotels filed a petition yesterday seeking to invalidate most provisions of the tax act as applied to hotels. Comtroller Lacy was named as defendant in the suit which charged that the title of the act was defective and that in many instances both the hotels and their guests were paying tax on the same article.

The hotels said that if they paid the sales tax when they bought at wholesale, and the guest paid 2 per cent on bills for rooms and meals, the State would be collecting the impost twice on the same goods.

Child Labor Unit Polls Assembly Candidates

Richmond, Va., July 8 (AP).—The Virginia child labor committee has mailed a questionnaire to 100 candidates for the Virginia General Assembly asking if the candidate, if elected, will "support the efforts" of the committee "toward passage" of amendments to the existing State child labor law.

The committee has proposed amendments which would make the child labor law (minimum working age, 14) conform to the compulsory school attendance law (minimum age for leaving school, 16) and provide a 30-minute lunch period.

Girl Gives Clew

Boy, 4, Found Drowned as Many Search

FREDDY ZLOCH, Jr.,

Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., July 8 (U.P.).—Four-year-old Freddy Zloch, jr., was found drowned today in the Tarpon River two blocks from his home after a 24-hour search which had been joined by hundreds of police, civilians, Boy Scouts and soldiers.

The boy's body, clad in swimming trunks, was discovered near the spot he was last seen alive late yesterday afternoon by Sylvia Reinarz, 10-year-old playmate.

Montgomery Employes to Get 10% Pay Incre

Montgomery County employes will receive a 10 per cent "cost of living" increase in their salaries effective July 1.

The Montgomery County commissioners yesterday adopted a formal resolution directing payment of the increase as of July 1. The increase is authorized by a law enacted at the last session of the Legislature.

In a move designed to bar Capt. Earl H. Burdine, retiring police official, from participating in the increase, the board had decided to make the effective date July 15. It later reconsidered and moved the date back to July 1.

Means $180 a Year

Burdine has applied for retirement as of June 4 when he completed 25 years of service on the police force. He would retire at half pay, and the 10 per cent increase nets him an additional $180 a year. His retirement pay is from the police retirement fund, to which all county police pay 5 per cent of their salaries each month.

County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr first denied that postponement of the effective date to July 15 had anything to do with Burdine, but later it was revealed that this was the objective of the proposal.

County Attorney F. Barnard Welsh admitted he was the author of the idea as a saving for the county. He said he felt it was inequitable that Burdine should get the increased pension while Capt. D. L. Snyder, who retired several weeks ago, would not.

Costs $50,000 a Year

Burdine said he had been asked to retire and contended he is fit and capable to command any county police substation.

The salary increase will affect approximately 280 employes and will cost the county about $50,000 a year.

The increase will not extend to Andrew J. Kissinger, chairman of the Silver Spring parking lot committee, justices of the peace, clerks of trial magistrates courts, circuit court employes, members of the Board of Zoning Appeals, public health nurses, employes whose salaries are set by statute, heads of departments and their assistants and those whose salaries are paid in whole or in part by the State or Federal Governments.

Members of the Board of Assessments will receive their increases on the portion of their salaries paid by the county, but Supervisor of Assessments Wilton T. Allen and his assistant are exempted from the increase.

The commissioners appointed Francis B. Maloy, 8705 Reading rd., Silver Spring, an assessor at $3000 per annum effective July 15. Maloy formerly was a county building inspector and superintendent of the refuse division of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission and at one time was a deputy clerk in Silver Spring.

Dog Law Move Opposed

Leesburg, Va., July 8.—The Loudoun County Board of Supervisors went on record this week as unanimously opposed to the recent proposal for relieving State game wardens of the enforcement of the dog laws. The board chairman, I. W. Baker, will attend a hearing in Richmond Thursday on the proposal.

The board has decided to employ an attorney to enforce the collection of delinquent property taxes for the years 1943 and 1944.

Two Million School Bond Sale Approved by Prince Georges

Sale of two million dollars worth of school construction bonds to a Philadelphia syndicate was approved by the Prince Georges County Board of Education yesterday.

The bonds were purchased by a group headed by the Philadelphia National Bank for $2,000,740 at an effective interest rate of 1.567 per cent.

The board also awarded a $464,000 contract for construction of an elementary school in Landover Hills to Herring & McCall of Hyattsville. Part of the funds for this project will be supplied by proceeds of the bond issue, Superintendent of Schools G. Gardner Shugart said.

The school, to be built largely of glass brick to provide a maximum of light, will contain nine classrooms, a cafeteria, a combination gymnasium-auditorium and a library. Each classroom will have its own entrance from the playground and its own lockers, drinking fountains and toilet facilities.

Dates for the opening of bids on construction of three other school projects were announced.

These were: July 29, 8 p. m., at the County Service Building, Hyattsville, for an addition to the Laurel High School, including six classrooms, a gymnasium and cafeteria; August 12, 2 p. m., at the board's offices in Marlboro, for the new Frederick Sasscer High School in Marlboro; and August 26, 8 p. m., at the County Service Building, for the new Oxon Hill High School.

All four of the projects are expected to be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1948, Shugart said. Work has already been begun on an addition to the Fairmount Heights Elementary School, which is also included in the program to be financed under the bond issue.

Appointment of four new principals and the transfer of another was announced by the board. New principals, to assume their duties at the opening of the fall session, are Mrs. Leo C. Bennett, Bowie Elementary; Orval Smith, Columbia Park Elementary; Spicer Peterson, Lincoln Junior High, and James Johnston, Oxon Hill Junior High. William A. Price, principal of Baden Elementary, will be transferred to Brandywine Elementary.

'Discs' Startle Richmond

Richmond, Va., July 8 (AP).—Dozens of "flying discs" soared over midtown Richmond during the afternoon rush hour today and several were recovered by astonished residents.

The discs were described as "flying plates"—paper pie plates—as differentiated from the "flying saucers" sighted in recent weeks, one of which was reported in possession of Army Air Forces in New Mexico today.

Local wags propelled the "plates" from the top of a tall building. The structure, that of the Virginia State Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Referendum Ordered

Cumberland, Md., July 8 (AP).—The Allegany County commissioners received notice today a law passed by the General Assembly directing use of voting machines in the county must be acted upon by the voters in a referendum.

The Secretary of State's office in Annapolis advised the commissioners the necessary signatures had been filed on a petition for the vote. The proposition will be put on the ballot in 1948.

The commissioners opposed the law which made the machines mandatory.

Tenants to Hit At Rent Boost

More than 45 tenants of the Spring Knolls Apartments, 8007 Eastern ave., Silver Spring, Md., will appear before the area rent director today to protest rent increases.

The hearing will be held at 3 p. m. in the area rent control office at 8634 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, Md. The tenants claim their rent was increased 13 per cent July 1 "without prior notice."

The rentals were raised from $67 to $75 a month for the two-bedroom apartments, they said. A spokesman for the apartment owners said the increase had been authorized by the Rent Control Board in Baltimore.

Attorney Isadore Bassoff, acting for the tenants, said there was no basis for the increase and his clients would seek revocation of such an order.

The case will be heard by Walter Heath of the regional office.

BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST

Buy your new 1947 Chevrolet from us. Buy it where you are asked to pay only the low delivered price—and not a single penny more! That's the American way—that's your way—and that's our way as well.

True, you may have to wait a little while for delivery, but you'll save a lot of money by purchasing your Chevrolet from us at the low price, instead of paying a premium price to someone else just for the sake of getting it a bit sooner.

Obviously, it's wiser to save a lot of money on your new car investment than it is to save a little time on your new car delivery!

Moreover, we are receiving our fair share of cars from the Chevrolet factory, which is out-producing all other makers—we are filling orders at the low delivered prices, day after day and week after week—we are doing our level best to get cars to you and to all who have ordered them—and so, even though the demand still exceeds the supply, you may not have to wait so very long for your car, after all.

That's why we say—pay only the low delivered price, and enjoy the full benefits of BIG-CAR QUALITY AT LOWEST COST. And—yes—we'll get in touch with you the very moment your new Chevrolet is ready for delivery!

Truth About Crime

One would think from our headline yesterday, "Reported Robbery Complaints Jump 500 Per Cent," that the District had suddenly erupted in a crime wave. Nothing of the sort, of course, has happened. What has occurred is that for the first time for many years the Police Department is now recording the truth about our local crime situation. It may be that as a result of the decision to disclose the facts, the people may recover their faith in the Police Department sufficiently to register complaints about offenses of which they are the victims. Mr. Eric Sevareid's letter in an adjoining column suggests a lack of reliance upon the law on the part of a segment of the population that is altogether deplorable. Such a situation was bound to arise along with pretty obvious abuses as the result of the practice of "pocketing" crimes.

We are glad to hail the police decision, in spite of the Barrett order, to be open and aboveboard. But the situation has not been cleared up just because the department has decided to turn over a new leaf. In this connection, of course, the rank and file of the police are not to blame. Many of them, as we know, feel that there has been no more demoralizing factor in their work than the practice of hiding crimes. What is of interest to The Post now is the answer to these questions: Why were these distortions practiced? At whose instigation were they instituted? By whose direction were they continued? We again suggest, in view of all the implications connected with the doctoring of crime statistics, that these are questions that should be explored by the proper authority, viz, our governing body in Congress.

Peron's Pap

President Peron's glorification of Argentine generosity must have made suffering people everywhere hold the nose that Peron has been making them pay through for Argentine supplies. Argentina is the leading exporter of linseed. On the eve of Peron's oration, the Corn Trade News, of London, said in its weekly review that "seemingly Argentina is at length beginning to see" that importing countries may refuse to pay exorbitant prices for linseed oil. Not because of any change of feeling, but because of competition. In contrast to the 47.8 cents a pound that Argentina charges, business is now being done with Sweden at 31.8 cents. Argentina's holdup on wheat is notorious. Wheat is sold to hungry Europe at $5.24 a bushel, or about twice the American price.

The Argentines don't get this money. Oh, dear, no! Most of it goes into Peron's treasury, giving him the wherewithal to finance his four-year plan for militarizing Argentina. He buys wheat from the Argentines at $1.25 a bushel, the additional $4 representing profit for the Peron exchequer. About the same differential inures to Peron's pocket out of purchases at home and sales to needy Europe of linseed. Peron, moreover, is not above holding back supplies in order to make Europe pay more. Witness the following from the last report of the International Emergency Food Council:

> A very important factor contributing to the difficult position in this quarter and the succeeding quarter is the shortfall in shipments from the Argentine. Official reports indicate that the Argentine has harvested a record rye and barley crop, a wheat crop that was 50 per cent above that of the previous year, a corn crop double that of last year and a very good oats crop. Yet exports during January-March were much lower than had been expected and even below last year's reduced level of shipments. The Secretary-General has appealed to the President of the Argentine to exert his government's utmost effort to speed the rate of shipment in this most critical time of the grain year and bring it up if possible to a million tons a month in the May-July period.

For this kind of extortion the Pope has just given Peron the Grand Cross of the Order of Pius IX, second in the Vatican's medallic order. He accompanied it by a papal pat on the back for Peron's generosity toward Europe's hungry. Evidently Peron has come to believe himself that he is brimming over with the milk of human kindness. Or he may have taken a leaf out of Hitler's copybook which says that if you say something loud and long enough you will eventually be believed. We sympathize with the Argentine people who know they are being rooked along with the importing countries and who must be aware the more keenly of the way Peron is exposing himself and his country to ridicule. Peron ought to get some guidance from the church on its concept of the "just price" before he launches himself again on any more claptrap about his own generosity.

Arbitrary-Capricious

Release yesterday of the House Appropriations Committee's report on the District budget for this year points up the inadequacy of the local tax bill now in the final stage of enactment. With all the additional taxes to be collected in compliance with that measure, general fund revenues will fall $3,067,210 short of matching expenditures called for by the House bill. The committee proposes to meet the deficit by the sale of securities valued at $3,698,307, which the District now holds. The problem can be met in this manner in fiscal 1948, but new revenue legislation will obviously have to be enacted next year.

So far as the income tax is concerned, moreover, estimates of funds to be raised must be very uncertain. The faction in the House which succeeded in drastically amending the bill appears to have made it as difficult as possible to administer. In addition to exempting the salaries of Federal employes from the tax, it has required the filing of returns within 60 days after notice from the assessor has been received. The difficulty of proving that persons liable to the tax have actually "received" their notice apparently gave the authors of this amendment no concern. The bill actually gives the impression of being drafted to embarrass and confuse the District in its effort to collect an income tax.

So gross is its discrimination against some groups and its favoritism to others that it may fail to meet the test of constitutionality. In 1932 the Supreme Court considered it settled doctrine "that a Federal statute passed under the taxing power may be so arbitrary and capricious as to cause it to fall before the due process clause of the fifth amendment." Those terms, "arbitrary" and "capricious," fit the District's new income tax like a glove. We pointed out yesterday how one policeman who works in the parks will not be taxed, while the policeman who works on the streets will be. Such examples of gross discrimination can be multiplied many times over.

It is true that the courts have been properly loath to upset any tax law passed by Congress for want of conformity with due process. Yet a number of tax provisions have been invalidated on this ground. We hope that the current measure will be challenged, for we can think of few, if any, taxes in American history that have been more outrageously unfair. It is a pity that the District itself cannot carry the case to the Supreme Court, but that is doubtless too much to expect of a government that has little power and none of the drive of an organized electorate behind it.

Taxing Family Income

Under the present Federal income tax law, married persons living in community property States are able to reduce their tax liabilities by dividing their earned and investment community income on a 50-50 basis and filing separate returns. In the noncommunity-property States earned income is taxable only to the earner, although taxes on income from investments may by various devices be made payable by other members of the family. The inequalities resulting from these different methods of treating family income for tax purposes have long called for remedial action. So far nothing has been accomplished, but the Treasury's Division of Tax Research has now completed an exhaustive study of the problems connected with taxation of family income, intended for the use of the Ways and Means Committee in connection with a contemplated general revision of the tax structure.

The most conspicuous and widespread inequities result from the situation which is the subject of the Treasury study. Public attention is concentrated at the moment on proposals to achieve equality of treatment for residents in noncommunity property States, either by making joint income tax returns mandatory in all States or else by permitting married people in the noncommunity property States to split their income for purposes of taxation. The latter proposal has currently been attracting widespread interest. A number of bills have been introduced at this session of Congress to put married couples in all parts of the country on the same basis for tax purposes as those residing in community property States.

The objections that we have previously advanced to this solution are amply supported by the Treasury findings concerning the effects of such a proposal on revenue and the incidence of the resultant benefits. The report points out that in case of a married couple with no dependents where one spouse owns the entire income, the tax reduction from splitting would be zero at the net income level of $3000. It would be only $38 at the $5000 level, but it would exceed $6000 at the $50,000 level and approximate $24,000 at the $500,000 level. In other words, the proposal would be a windfall for the rich. And it would cost the Treasury about 744 million dollars in loss of revenue from income taxes.

The alternative plan of making joint income tax returns mandatory for all married couples would increase the tax liability of about 1.4 million couples whose combined income exceeds the first surtax brackets, who either live in community property States where they automatically obtain an equal division of community income, or else reside in noncommunity property States where they have separate incomes from properties, business, wages and salaries. Instead of losing income, the Treasury would under this plan receive an estimated 542 million dollars of additional revenue. Furthermore, the joint return proposal recognizes the fact that family income is a better measure of the tax-paying ability of married couples than individual returns.

The Treasury study discusses other methods of correcting tax discriminations in the treatment of family income as well as problems resulting from the treatment of the income of minor children. Reading this very exhaustive report makes it obvious that a good many changes in the methods of taxing family income are needed to put the system on an equitable basis. Neither mandatory joint returns nor the so-called split income tax plan can be regarded as a comprehensive corrective.

Divide And Conquer

John L. Lewis has won another victory in his ceaseless battle to get more and more concessions for his miners. To be sure, he has abandoned efforts to obtain Nation-wide agreements, but by following the policy of divide and conquer, it looks as if he were in a fair way to achieve his ends while incidentally avoiding a Nation-wide strike that would have tested the efficacy of the emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The contract negotiated with the Northern soft coal operators provides for substantial wage increases as well as other concessions that will necessitate further increases in coal prices. Luck is on the side of Mr. Lewis, as it has so often been in the past. Coal shortages have been aggravated by earlier mine strikes and the current miners' vacation. That is all to the good from Mr. Lewis' viewpoint, since existing gas and fuel oil shortages have silenced all talk about a flight from high priced coal to substitute fuels. The eagerness of the steel industry to insure a steady supply of coal to satisfy pressing demands has also worked to the advantage of the miners in negotiations with the steel company owners of "captive" mines. With an important segment of the industry now on contract terms with the United Mine Workers, it is more or less taken for granted that the rest of the industry will fall into line rather than run the risks of indefinitely prolonged shutdowns.

Again it is the public that will have to shoulder the cost of the wage and royalty increases to which a great majority of the operators have agreed. How long this practice of raising coal prices to satisfy the insatiable head of the UMW can continue is anybody's guess. But the longer it continues the greater becomes the danger of a business recession induced by the high cost of living. If the feared depression does materialize, Mr. Lewis and other labor leaders like him will have to take a large share of the blame because of their refusal to moderate their demands in the public interest.

Atomic Deadline

Andrei Gromyko's impassioned insistence on the complete prohibition of all atomic weapons—extending even to the projected international police force—would seem a good deal more interesting if he had earlier addressed himself to some of the more basic problems of atomic control. At the moment, his contention seems somewhat academic, or at least peripheral. No international police force now exists—thanks in large measure to the obstructionism of Mr. Gromyko's government. And there is no atomic development authority to hold or withhold such atomic weapons as might be transferred to it by the United States if it ever came into being.

Mr. Gromyko's habit of nibbling at the circumference instead of attacking the nub of the atomic energy problem has come to seem contrived and deliberate—as though he were bent upon utilizing talk as a means to delay action. Unhappily, it is impossible to mark time in respect of the issues involved. They present what William James used to call a forced option. We cannot tread water while deciding in which direction to swim, for we must either swim at once or sink. We must act as though an international agreement for control of atomic energy were genuinely in the making or act as though it were not and pursue such alternatives as we may find open to us. The fact that these alternatives seem unsatisfactory and disagreeable is beside the point. Mr. Gromyko's consistent conduct is making them seem inescapable, and we had better conform to the uncomfortable fact.

The Bulletin of the Atomic Scientists has adopted as a symbolic design for its cover the hands of a clock pointed to a few minutes before 12. Better than any of us, the scientists know the imperatives inherent in the tremendous force they have unleashed upon the world. They know that a momentous deadline is approaching and that one way or another we shall have to deal with it.

THE HERMIT THRUSH

The sunset hours come softly now
Between the brilliant light of afternoon
And the darkness that is folding in.
Dew falls gently on the meadowlands,
Bringing a sweet new freshness
To the fields again. The west turns
Golden and serene; the bell-like song
Of the hermit thrush comes clear
And deep from the cool dark woods.
This is the evening hour that inspires me
To dreams; before I close my heart
To them, the moon comes, and the stars.
Quietly I take leave of bills that echo
With the loveliness of flute-like tones.

"Pocketed" Crimes

In your list of examples of suppressed crime complaints, you included one involving a Negro man who worked for me, so I am taking the liberty of inserting a comment of my own.

You have pointed out that many actual cases of felonies were never openly acknowledged or reported as such by the police. The police have pointed out that many complaints brought to them are of a frivolous nature and are therefore not reported, and that some are not reported because of the risk of uselessly damaging an innocent name. You have pointed out further that many thugs must be encouraged to more thuggery when they observe that their crimes are not even mentioned in the papers.

Let me carry this one step further. Personally, I feel convinced that many complaints are never even brought to the police by the victims in the first instance, that many assaults and holdups occur in the District that the police never hear of—particularly among Negroes. I can't document this claim, but the experience with my employe was most revealing.

After being robbed at the point of a knife, he (he's from the North) rushed instinctively to the precinct station. One brush with the District police was enough. He was made to feel he was the criminal, instead of the victim, and he was most reluctant to confront the police again. It was revealing to me that his wife (she's lived years in the District) urged him not to go to the police. His friends here also told him it would do no good. Perhaps a hundred District Negroes heard of this case and discussed it. Do you think that anyone of that hundred is likely to go to the police if he is victimized himself?

The true crime statistics for the District are probably far higher than even The Post has revealed them to be.

Most people interpret democratic government in terms of what happens to them in their block, in their precinct. For many citizens of the District the President's demand at the Lincoln Memorial for democratic rights for all Americans must seem like somebody else's President talking about somebody else.

ERIC SEVAREID.

"Inheriting The Earth"

Permit me to call your attention to what seems to be a misunderstanding in your July 3 editorial, "Inheriting the Earth," of the contents of our June Population Bulletin "Is American Intelligence Declining?"

While i believe there is a misunderstanding in the first paragraph of your editorial, I shall confine my comments to your last paragraph, which reads:

"Thus the moral seems to be that if the privilege of reproduction could be limited to members of Phi Beta Kappa, persons with a credit rating of A or better, and residents of Chevy Chase and Spring Valley, we might in a couple of generations achieve a society in which every citizen would be comfortably housed, well educated and have good, refined white-collar jobs. Of course there is the question how in such a society any coal would be mined or any farm chores attended to; but it seems obvious that any society with such a high level of intelligence could think its way out of such small difficulties like that."

If this is the moral arrived at by the editors of The Post they are welcome to it, but please do not associate it with the Population Bulletin, of whch I happen to be the editor. My studies do not suggest that the reproduction of the race should be limited to any social, economic, education, I.Q., or occupation group in the population. It would seem reasonable and just that all such groups reproduce the race on a fairly equal basis. But, as I have attempted to point out, the least equipped third in these groups is having about twice as many children as the best equipped third. This means that the former must carry more than their share of the financial and physical responsibilities of reproducing the race. And it also means that the least equipped third is contributing much more than its share to the future population of the United States.

GUY IRVING BURCH,
Director, Population Reference Bureau.

Terminal Leave Bonds

In a July 3 editorial concerning the immediate payment of terminal leave bonds, you take a negative view. It may be unwise, economically speaking, to allow the former service personnel to cash these bonds; but this money is not a grant from the Federal Government. This money belongs to the servicemen and women.

Consider the Government a bank and the holders of these bonds the depositors. The bank will not release the depositors' funds because this procedure may accentuate inflation—would you consider the bank's action legal or democratic?

JAMES L. WHITE.

Rent Increase

Judging from the arithmetic used by the real estate interests in attempting to justify a 16 per cent rent increase, we had better keep our hands in our pockets when dealing with them.

Three reasons are advanced as justification of a general rent increase in the District:

1. Increase of tax rate from $1.75 to $2 per $100 assessed valuation.

2. Reassessment, increasing assessed valuation by 20 per cent.

3. Possible increase of 25 per cent in water rates.

A prewar house in the District renting for $80 per month would have an assessed valuation of approximately $4000. This figure would vary considerably, but I believe that it represents an approximate average. The assessed valuation is considerably less than the sale value, especially for prewar homes. I assume that well over 95 per cent of all D. C. homes are prewar.

The annual tax on this house would be $70 at the $1.75 rate and $80 at the $2 rate, an increase of $10. A 20 per cent increase in assessed valuation would increase the tax an additional $16. A 25 per cent increase in the water rate would cost another $2.50. This adds up to $28.50, which is less than 3 per cent of the annual rent.

In other words, a 3 per cent increase in rent would more than compensate for the increased taxes and water bills. Apparently the real estate lobby adds 13 per cent for good luck.

"Tideland Oil"

This is a comment, not so much on your June 25 editorial praising the Supreme Court tidelands decision, as on the decision itself.

You consistently have upheld so-called Federal claims as against State claims. Though I seldom agree with you, you at least are arguing your convictions, not necessarily the law. But in the case of the court, we laymen have a right to expect its decisions will be based on law, not on convictions.

Deliberately I avoided reading the dissents of Mr. Justice Reed and Mr. Justice Frankfurter so that I could weigh as impartially as possible the basis for the court's finding. Well, it's a good thing for the prestige of the court that the text of this decision was not printed in the newspapers, for it probably would take a prize for illogic and plain drivel.

1. Considering the historic and until recently undisputed claims of the States to the marginal seas, is this language judicial or is it a buildup to justify the Federal suit: "The case principally relied upon by California . . . does not support its contention. For here is a claim by the United States, admitted by California, that California has invaded the title or paramount right here asserted by the United States. . . ."

2. Doesn't the following, carried to its full import, mean there can be no proper defense of the country as long as there are maritime States, that statehood certainly should be withheld from Hawaii and Alaska, that indeed the Government can only properly defend property it owns: "The crucial question on the merits is not merely who owns the bare legal title to the lands under the marginal sea. The United States here asserts rights in two capacities transcending those of a mere property owner. In one capacity it asserts the right of responsibility to exercise whatever power and dominion are necessary to protect this country against dangers to the security and tranquillity of its people incident to the fact that the United States is located immediately adjacent to the ocean."

3. Isn't this a gem: "The very oil about which the State and Nation here contend might well become the subject of international dispute and settlement." (I thought, also, the suit involved land, not oil.)

4. How about the implication of Federal domination over the entire mainland in this: "The ocean, even its 3-mile belt, is thus of vital consequence to the Nation in its desire to engage in commerce and to live in peace with the world . . ."

5. Can anyone call this logic: "If this rationale of the Pollard case is a valid basis for a conclusion that paramount rights run to the States in inland waters to the shoreward of the low-water mark, the same rationale leads to the conclusion that national interests, responsibilities, and therefore national rights, are paramount in waters lying to the seaward in the 3-mile belt."

6. But the biggest bit of drivel of all followed discussion of an old decision holding that Florida could permit sponges to be taken from its waters, "presumably the 3-mile belt," in violation of act of Congress: "But the opinion in that case was concerned with the State's power to regulate and conserve within its territorial waters, not with the exercise of the right to use and deplete resources which might be of national and international importance." Will the court or you explain how there can be a right to conserve apart from a right to use and deplete or what resources on land or sea—oil, sponges or common earth—might be of national or international importance?

On such points as these the court built its case for Federal control. It also had an explanation for failure to exercise such control in the past. "The record," Mr. Justice Black said, "plainly demonstrates that until the California oil issue began to be pressed in the thirties, neither the States nor the Government had reason to focus attention on the question of which of them owned or had paramount rights in or power over the 3-mile belt."

So it seems that my holding of a third acre of suburban Maryland is secure unless the Federal Government finds something of value to itself in or upon it. At that time its courts will be able to prove to their satisfaction, if not mine, that Maryland never had a right to grant that land to anybody.

Budgets Spur Job Seeking

By Malvina Lindsay

Problem Women

THE WOMAN past 35 who is willing to do "just anything," but is untrained to do it, is making the rounds of employment offices again. If she doesn't get a job her confused and perhaps resentful family will have to lower its wartime living standards. For the shrunken dollars in her husband's pay check won't stretch to buy inflation-priced meat and clothing, and keep up payments on the new refrigerator or motor car.

The present surge of women into the job market is a signal of two national problems now developing. One is what to do about those increasing job hunters—unskilled, mature people who need to work. The other is how the average family can hold its new rung on the living standard ladder that the last war brought it.

Many wives and mothers are answering the living standard problem by getting or seeking jobs. While some of the present increase in women's employment is seasonal, wives generally are showing a tendency to go to work.

REPORTS from throughout the country emphasize the number of middle-aged and older women wanting work. Women with young children stay home if they possibly can. But those with older children to feed, dress, put through high school, college if possible, provide with music and dancing lessons and the constantly increasing advantages the neighbors' children always seem to have, find they must seek additional income.

Of the five million families in which husbands and wives both work (one-fifth of the normal families of the Nation) women working who have children between 6 and 18 are almost as numerous as those having no children. Also swelling the lists of working mothers are those who are heads of families.

Showing up at job offices are many women on their own who yet have no special skills. In wartime, with jobs on every bush, they had no trouble. Now with employers beginning to pick and choose, the skilled worker, preferably the younger one—in many cases preferably the man—gets first chance. Yet, the country is crying for trained women, especially stenographers, office workers, school teachers, nurses. Jobs for domestics continue to go begging.

WARTIME thinking is impeding many women who are seeking pay checks again, or for the first time. Some are accustomed to wartime industrial wages. Yet the work they did is no longer needed, or is performed by men. Some seeking work have heard exaggerated accounts of wartime factory wages and expect similar compensation. Both classes hesitate to enter the lower paid service trades where jobs are available. Housewives who were importuned in wartime by employers to help out in store, office, factory still imagine their vague, undeveloped talents in demand.

Many of these unskilled women have to work. Divorce or death may have taken their wage earners. Husbands may have lost jobs or become ill. Other family emergencies may have arisen.

One change in thinking that might help these women and other unskilled workers would be to recognize that the country is changing from a sellers' market to a buyers' market, that jobs of distribution rather than of production are likely to be more abundant. On every hand is heard the call for the courteous, efficient sales person. Most stores seem as short of these as in wartime.

Yet training to some degree is needed here also. The big truth women of all ages have to face is that while it is becoming increasingly necessary for them to work outside the home, yet the untrained person is a fifth wheel in the world. Bernard Baruch's recent proposal that arrangements be made to draft all citizens, women as well as men, for some form of work in event of war shows the emphasis being put on women's economic powers.

Vocational authorities say that persons past 35—past in fact almost any age—can learn new skills. Those seeking to hold their own in the economy now developing will need to fit themselves to do something more special than "just anything."

Little White Mice

This will announce the organization of a new society—"The Society of the Little White Mice." It has, as motto: "Hear nothing, see nothing, think nothing."

Naturally, the charter members are the vast but diminishing army of Government clerks who would be in trouble had they unwittingly bought a book or record in the wrong book store; who would be fired for belonging to anything which had been joined by anyone belonging also to anything else which they should not have belonged to; who would not dare to disagree with anyone elected to Congress or appointed to any high office.

The Society of Little White Mice opens its door, though, to a number of other people who become appropriate candidates with the progress of time. A labor leader, or other speaker from those people who labor, who mentions a Congressman and hence commits a felony, is now eligible . . .

We don't discuss housing. That is economics, hence politics. Only bad people get fussed and bothered about what they earn and what they pay. Not the Society of Little White Mice. We can live the wainscoting in cellars, attics.

Struggle For Italy

By Sumner Welles

Job For Voice of America

AT THIS crucial moment when a two-world order looms before us, nothing could have been more tonic than Secretary Marshall's address of July 1.

For the first time the man who is directing American foreign policy has told the European peoples in concrete and simple terms exactly what the United States has done to help them since the end of the war. And for the first time, in language which can neither be distorted nor misinterpreted, he has pointed out the fundamental difference between the records of the Soviet Union and of the United States in their dealings with the independent peoples of Europe. It was high time that this contrast should have been drawn.

These facts must be brought home to the masses of the people.

As I have previously written in this column, the crisis which will decide whether Italy will adhere to the principles of individual liberty or become a Soviet-dominated police state will probably reach its climax during the coming months. There is no country in Western Europe where American propaganda has been more hopelessly deficient. Notwithstanding all of the advantages which it has possessed, this Government has fallen down lamentably in getting across to the Italian people the nature of American policy and the extent of the help which this country has given them.

AT THE present moment less than one third of Italy's 45 million inhabitants support communism. Yet because of the ruthless fanaticism and ability of its leaders, because of its far superior organization and, above all else, because of the unlimited funds at its disposal, the Italian Communist Party is beginning to shape the thinking of a large majority of the Italian people.

The United States has time on the Italian radio networks. It has information centers in a few of the larger Italian cities. But desirable as this may be, the effects of such activities have so far been negligible in comparison to the impact on Italian public opinion of the six Communist dailies and of the 100 Communist weeklies now being circulated in Italy, of the propaganda being carried on by Soviet emissaries, and of the fact that the six-million-member General Labor Confederation is Communist-controlled.

Communists agents have been maneuvered into key administrative positions in every branch of the Italian government. In the earlier days when American supplies were being shipped to Italy in vast quantities, the local distribution of relief was frequently in the hands of these agents. They have led innumerable Italians to believe that the assistance coming from America was actually help rendered by the Soviet Union.

THE STATE Department's information service has been inefficient. The qualifications of its administrators have been justly open to serious question, but at a time when it is more than ever essential that the truth with regard to this country be made available to other peoples, and particularly to those in Europe, it would surely have been the part of wisdom for the Congress to insist upon a radical overhauling of the propaganda machinery in the State Department rather than to reduce the appropriations for that service.

What is needed is that the masses of the people in Europe be given the opportunity of digesting the kind of information contained in Secretary Marshall's speech.

As a brilliant Italian statesman—a true democrat of the younger generation—said to me a few days ago, the great bulk of the Italian people have as yet had few chances to know such facts. They do not realize, for example, that the United States favored a just peace with Italy and that it was the Soviet Union that insisted on the present harsh and unfair terms, and demanded the severance from Italy of Trieste. They have not been told that many thousands of the Italians taken prisoner by the Russians were slaughtered in cold blood.

Only a few have learned of the humane and friendly treatment given Italian prisoners of war in the United States. Only a small percentage have ever heard of the contraband organization which the Communists set up along the frontier between Italy and Yugoslavia through which a large part of the wheat sent from the United States to feed the starving Italians was filtered into the Balkans to further the Soviet Union's policies in that area.

FOR LACK OF resources and for lack of a sufficient medium of information the democratic parties in Italy have been able to do little to make these facts known. As was recently demonstrated in Venice, when Prime Minister de Gasperi's efforts to speak at a great public demonstration were halted by Communist riot squads, the Communists will make every effort to prevent the democratic leaders from enlightening the people. For that reason statements such as that made by Secretary Marshall will be especially helpful if they can be be made known to the people as a whole. Every facility available to the State Department should be used so that the facts contained in them may reach the European peoples this summer.

If the truth can be told to the man in the street, to the worker in the factory and to the peasant on the farm, the effects of Communist coercion and of Communist propaganda can be far more readily combated.

Mr. Welles' articles will appear hereafter on Tuesdays, starting July 15.

Appropriations Committee Hurdle

Childs

DWIGHT P. GRISWOLD, who will administer the United States aid program for Greece, is a patient man. As a politician and former Governor of Nebraska, he knows how hard it is to get things done under our system of checks and balances.

For a good many hours Griswold was interrogated by the House Appropriations Committee in closed session. Committee members, particularly Chairman John Taber, wanted to know why so much money was necessary for Greece. They wanted an itemized statement of how Griswold intended to spend the funds Congress might make available to him.

This went on for several days, at a time when Griswold was struggling to get his staff together for the mission to Greece. Finally, in his quiet, patient way, he spoke his mind. According to one member of the committee who heard him with sympathy for his plight, what he said went something like this:

"GENTLEMEN. I think I know your problem. I've sat on the other side of the table. I understand your desire for economy.

"But the program we will be administering in Greece cannot be spelled out in advance in exact needs and exact commodities. We will be doing a day-to-day job on the spot.

"The money that is requested is not a large sum in terms of the need. There is certainly no guarantee that we will succeed in Greece. We may fail in our objective which is to help in the restoration of economic stability and political order. But, gentlemen, let me say this to you. If we fail in Greece, and if our occupation in Germany fails because it is starved out, then all of Europe will fall to communism. If that happens, you will come back here and appropriate billions of dollars for armaments. You will do it because the American people will demand it for their security."

Spoken in Griswold's quiet voice, this made a deep impression on the committee. After all, Griswold is a Republican who was drafted for the trying assignment in Greece by the Democrat in the White House. He was addressing his fellow Republicans with all the earnestness at his command.

At the end of one of these closed sessions, Chairman Taber told reporters that the State Department had not justified more than a small amount of the 400 million dollars authorized for Greece and Turkey. He said the same thing was true of the 350 millions authorized for general relief in Europe.

HERE IS an extraordinary situation. It is little understood in the midst of the general confusion that prevails in Washington.

Congress took nearly three months to determine whether the Greek-Turkish program should be approved. It was debated pro and con from every possible angle. The die-hard isolationists had their say at great length. The risks of the policy were pointed out, and its limitations. Then, finally, the Senate and the House voted by sizable majorities to approve the program. What few people understand is that this was authorization, but not appropriation.

Now comes the Appropriations Committee of the House to exercise a second veto. It is a veto not merely of the Chief Executive but of the policy agreed upon by Congress.

Supposedly, after funds are authorized, their appropriation is a routine to be carried out in the accepted legislative manner. If every policy is now to have two hurdles, the pace at which we are moving in the world crisis will be slowed from a walk to a crawl.

Taber is usurping this power because he happens to stand in the all-powerful position by the turnstile. It would be hard to find any honest justification for the action by the committee in setting up a new road-block in front of a policy on which so much has been staked.

A large part of this obstructionism can be put down to the division between Republicans in Congress and the Democrat in the White House. It is the kind of division which has occured on the average in one out of every three years in our history. In 1919-1920 it may have cost us the peace. This time it may cost the peace and something more.

Perhaps the Taber attitude is merely part of the irritation that goes with the ending of the congressional session. Perhaps the committee will approve the money Congress authorized. But those who, like Griswold, are waiting on the outcome may be pardoned a certain nervousness.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph and Stewart Alsop

The Home Front

DESPITE Molotov's huffy walkout, the brilliance of planning and conception which lay behind the Marshall proposal is becoming ever clearer abroad. Indeed, the enthusiasm of the European response has surprised even those who helped Marshall to plan the policy. As one of the planners put it: "We expected them to jump 6 inches or so. But we never thought they'd jump 10 feet." Yet while the news from abroad is more hopeful than the most sanguine expected, there are signs of real trouble ahead on the home front. This fact was recently underlined by one of the most capable and best informed Senators, himself deeply convinced that the Marshall proposal is our last, best chance.

"The State Department," he said, "is failing to protect its rear. If Bevin and Bidault and the Europeans came up with a first-rate plan tomorrow and Marshall asked for the necessary appropriations the day after, he'd be turned down flat by an overwhelming majority in both Houses."

The meaning of such a congressional veto on the European plan can be summed up very simply. All of Europe, in the view of the most experienced observers here, would move with mathematical certainty into the Soviet sphere. And as one expert put it, "It's as though you had asked Bidault and De Gasperi and the other non-Communist leaders to line themselves up against a wall to be shot."

NOR IS A flat, total rejection of the plan the only danger. That there is another, perhaps more pressing threat was demonstrated in a recent meeting of freshman Senators, organized by able Senator Cabot Lodge, to discuss the whole problem of American aid to Europe. Present at this meeting, as a guest star, was Harold Stassen, contender for the Republican presidential nomination. Stassen repeatedly expressed the view, which he has already put forward in speeches, that countries applying for aid must abandon attempts at socialization before becoming eligible. A few days later Senator Joseph Ball, who is exhibiting a somewhat pathetic eagerness to demonstrate his true blue conservatism since his slip in supporting Roosevelt in 1944, played the same tune in a radio intervew. "If the real issue in Europe is between socialism and communism, rather than communism and a free society," Ball announced, "then it is hopeless, and we had better conserve our resources for the inevitable conflict."

The suspicion exists in some well-informed quarters that Ball, with his international reputation, is being used as a stalking horse by those Senate conservatives and isolationists who privately would like nothing better than to see the Marshall plan fail. At any rate, to attach the sort of strings clearly implied by Stassen and Ball to American participation in the forthcoming European plan would have an entirely foreseeable result. The American position would be furiously rejected by the British, the French and the other western European peoples who have voted overwhelmingly for some degree of socialization of their countries. This in turn would mean Soviet domination of the continent.

IN THE FACE of these perils on the home front, what can be done? One view is that it should be left up to Secretary Marshall to carry the day at the last moment. Marshall is envisaged, figuratively, at least, as placing his five stars back on his shoulders. Then, in a dramatic joint session of Congress, he would give a detailed exposition of the meaning to the United States of the failure of the European plan, in primarily military terms. The highlight of such an exposition would be the cold-blooded assessment that the United States would be obliged to devote at least half its national income to provide a shaky minimum of defensive security in case of Soviet domination of the European Continent.

Yet this technique of terrorizing Congress, at the last minute, into doing what must be done, has been used before. It has been used so often that it can no longer be relied upon. Both in the State Department, and in the more enlightened and far-seeing quarters on Capitol Hill, the conviction that there must be a better way is gaining strength.

One such way is now under discussion at both ends of Pennsylvania Ave. That is the appointment of a high-ranking State Department official with a thoroughly competent staff, whose first and only duty would be to explain to Congress factually and in detail what American foreign policy is, and why.

Such an official must have certain qualifications. He must have rank; probably at least an Assistant Secretaryship. Otherwise most Congressmen, not unconscious of their own political rank, would remain unimpressed. He must have real experience of foreign affairs, for he must be capable of making his case convincing. And he must have that mysterious quality which men like William Benton have so conspicuously lacked, and men like Dean G. Acheson have conspicuously possessed, of winning confidence and trust on Capitol Hill.

Such a man, if he is indeed appointed, will have an enormously difficult assignment. He must persuade the Congress that the choice confronting American policy is not between spending money and not spending money, nor between communism and socialism and Senator Ball's version of a "free society," nor even between democracy and totalitarianism. It is quite simply a choice between an independent Europe and a Europe bludgeoned into a Soviet-dominated, anti-American alliance. And sooner or later such an alliance would surely leave to the United States the old, terrible choice; the choice between fighting, perhaps too late, or knuckling under.

Junior C. of C. Backs Universal Training Plan

President Truman talked yesterday with John Ben Sheppard of Longview, Texas, new president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Sheppard, accompanied by Frank G. Fister of Tulsa, Okla., executive vice president, said he reported to the President that 85 per cent of the members of the junior chamber saw service in the last war and that they have endorsed his proposal for universal military training.

Krug's Advisory Group On Oil Meets Today

The Interior Department will attempt to bring itself up to date on the petroleum supply situation at two important meetings this week.

Sevretary Krug's 15-man Military Petroleum Advisory Committee will gather here today, and tomorrow the National Petroleum Council will hold its quarterly meeting.

Krug established the advisory committee a month ago in response to an order from President Truman to "unify and coordinate Federal policy and administration with respect to petroleum."

Republic Accepts Dutch Plan; Indonesian War Fears Fade

Batavia, Java, July 8 (AP).—Fears of war in Indonesia faded tonight when the Netherlands published the text of a new note in which the Indonesian republic accepted with one exception The Netherlands proposal for an interim national government.

A Dutch communique said only three points remain to be settled as far as the Dutch are concerned. The main point of difference is over composition of the internal police force.

A Dutch official said the new note "contains such evidence of good will that the danger of military action seems to have been avoided."

New Teletype Machine Boosts Efficiency of Rockville Police

Montgomery County, Md., yesterday officially became a part of the 13-State Eastern States Teletype System. The Teletype machine installed in the dispatcher's office at police headquarters in Rockville went into service.

The system provides coverage for police from New England States to North Carolina and as far west as Ohio and West Virginia and includes the District of Columbia police system. In addition, the station may contact, through a Time Wire Service hookup, any police station in the country equipped with Teletypes.

The new system will also be available to the county sheriff's office, the juvenile court and the Welfare Board. These messages must be authorized by the officer in charge of the headquarters.

It is planned later to install teletypes at Silver Spring and Bethesda substations to provide inter-station communication.

"Reinforcement of the Montgomery County Police communications by the teletype system will immeasurably increase the efficiency of the department if properly used," said Chief of Police Charles M. Orme.

Dewey Leads In Arkansas, Leaders Say

Sapulpa, Okla., July 8 (AP).—A majority of Arkansas' 13 delegate votes will be cast for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for the 1948 Republican presidential nomination, two GOP leaders from that state predicted today.

After a conference here with the New York governor, William T. Mills, Arkansas GOP gubernatorial nominee last year, and Claude M. Williams, a member of the Arkansas State Committee, reported to newsmen there was a "heap" of rank and file sentiment in their state for Dewey.

They said that while it was too early to tell how the political situation finally would jell, they believed Arkansas would go for the governor.

Dewey interrupted a chain of hotel room conferences with political leaders late this afternoon to shake hands with several hundred persons at a civic reception for him and Mrs. Dewey.

It was the first public function attended by the governor since he arrived here Sunday with Mrs. Dewey, whose parents live here, and the two Dewey boys on the first leg of a month's western tour that will include participation in the governors' conference at Salt Lake City next week.

So far on the tour, Republican leaders from four states with a total delegate vote of 102 have indicated to Dewey their belief that their states will support him at the National Convention in Philadelphia next June.

Sentiment Divided

The states are Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas. Leaders from the last three states were careful not to predict unanimous delegate support for the New York chief executive. They said it still was "too early to tell" definitely what the final line-up would be.

Southwestern political observers interpreted this to mean there is sizeable sentiment for Senator Robert A. Taft and other potential candidates in these states. And in Missouri, the Republican state committee treasurer claimed there was "considerable support" for Harold E. Stassen, former governor of Minnesota.

GOP May Creat Committee To Probe Mo. Election Fraud

GOP Policy makers yesterday discussed the creation of a special committee to investigate election fraud charges in President Truman's home bailiwick of Kansas City, Mo.

Chairman Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.) told reporters the Republican conference had been informed that a stalemate had developed within a Senate Judiciary subcommittee which had held preliminary hearings.

The conference, it was reported, decided that if the deadlock wasn't broken by the full Judiciary committee in the near future, there would be a showdown on the Senate floor with a proposal to discharge the committee and create a special investigating group.

2 Reports Criticize Clark

The subcommittee, of which Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) is chairman, will meet this morning in an attempt to resolve a conflict among three separate reports.

Ferguson has drafted one tentative report strongly critical of Attorney General Tom Clark for ordering only a limited FBI investigation into charges of fraud in the Kansas City Democratic primary last August.

This was the primary in which President Truman took a direct hand to defeat incumbent Representative Roger C. Slaughter (D., Mo.), and nominate Enos Axtell. Axtell won the nomination but was later defeated by a Republican.

Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), has drafted another report equally critical of Ferguson. The third member of the subcommittee, Senator William Langer (R., N. Dak.), has drafted a still different report.

In his report Ferguson charges the Attorney General with "an intentional misrepresentation of facts" regarding the FBI inquiry.

He also asks why the Attorney General decided on January 6 that further FBI investigation into the frauds was not warranted, and then changed his mind after a safe containing the ballots in the primary was blown open and the ballots removed.

Ferguson also insists that the facts disclosed in the preliminary FBI inquiry disclosed very clearly that there were numerous violations of the Federal law.

Kansas City, July 8 (AP).—A special Federal grand jury, charged by Judge Albert A. Ridge to make a "most thorough and painstaking investigation," began today an inquiry into alleged fraud in the 1946 democratic primary election here.

Agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation were the first persons to go before the grand jury this afternoon.

Judge Ridge told the jurors that "politics must not enter this investigation" and declared: "If our Government is to prevail, vote frauds cannot be condoned."

The grand jury was requested by Richard K. Phelps, special assistant attorney general, appointed by Attorney General Tom Clark after a State grand jury had indicted 71 persons upon evidence gathered chiefly by reporters for the Kansas City Star.

County PUC Opposes Boost In Bus Fares

The Arlington County Public Utilities Commission yesterday interposed formal objection to fare increases being sought by the Arnold bus lines, which operate between Washington and Arlington points.

The county commission asked the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has the fare-increase proposal under advisement, to consider alleged "questionable practices" of the bus company. The plea was similar to one entered previously by an association of bus riders.

In a brief filed with ICC, the county commission asked the governing boar dto consider the "many pages of testimony relating to the financial structure of the respondent (company) which indicates mismanagement, irregularities in accounting procedures and other questionable practices."

The bus company is seeking a five-cents-a-zone increase in cash fares and a 2½-cents-a-zone raise in token rates.

'Slave' Happy While in Mass., Witness Says

San Diego, Calif., July 8 (AP).—A defense witness in the Federal slavery trial of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls testified today that their Negro maid, Dora Jones, appeared "always happy" when the Ingalls lived in Boston.

Miss Doria St. Jean, who was a tenant of the Ingalls from 1940 to 1944, said Mrs. Ingalls used "please" in asking Dora to do anything. She added that she never heard a harsh word between mistress and maid.

Dora herself admitted she had seen her name on a bank account book.

She stated that Mrs. Ingalls had told her they had a joint account and admitted she used to write marketing checks in Lynn, Mass.

The Government charges that Dora, 58, was reduced to slavery under threats based on an old affair with Mrs. Ingalls' first husband.

Miss St. Jean said she offered to pay Dora number of times for small services but that Dora declined to take anything, saying "I don't need money."

Court Defends Investigations In Adoptions

Members of the adoption committee of the Montgomery County Community Chest and Council appeared yesterday in the Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville to explain their views on procedure in investigating adoption cases.

The hearing was held before Judges Charles Woodward and Stedman Prescott after several groups had criticized the judges for their use of probation officers as investigators instead of trained social workers.

Miss Margaret MacGregor, assistant director of the Chest and Council, said that until Maryland passed the adoption law June 1 the State had lagged behind in using social workers. Only four States and Hawaii, she said, do not use them.

She urged the Court to employ the facilities of the Social Service League whenever the two probation officers appointed by the court were too busy to investigate all the adoption cases before them.

Mrs. Dorothy Kurtz, executive secretary of the Montgomery County Welfare Board, concurred with Miss MacGregor in the value of the county's social workers to the court, but added that "we would not want our services used unless the court wants to use them."

The judges said it was the policy of the State Parole Commissioner to have all court investigations conducted under the State parole system, and that it was possible—if it proved necessary in the future—that the Parole Commissioner would set up added qualifications for investigators in adoption cases.

Judge Prescott said he felt the present method of conducting investigations was sound. He pointed out it had been the Court's practice for many years to give prospective parents a six-month adoption trial, although such interlocutory period has become law only recently. He added he had supervised adoption cases carefully and had made many investigations personally.

High Nazi Officers Plead Innocent in Killing of Civilians

Nuernberg, Germany, July 8 (U.P.). Two German field marshals and nine generals today pleaded innocent in the reprisal killings of thousands of civilian in Greece, Yugoslavia, Albania and Norway.

The defendants, following the lead of Field Marshals Wilhelm List and Maximilian von Weichs, entered their pleas before an American military tribunal in defiant tones. The others were:

Gen. Lothar Rendulic, Lieutenant Generals Walter Kunze, Hermann Foertsch, Helmuth Felmy, Hubert Lanz, Ernest Dehner, Ernst Leyser, and Wilhelm Speidel, and Brig. Gen. Kurt von Zeitner.

All were in command of occupation troops and are accused of combatting underground resistance by ruthlessly ordering their armies to murder civilians and burn entire villages.

N. Y. Hotel Rents Frozen To June 30 Level

New York, July 8 (U.P.).—A bill which freezes hotel and rooming house rents to the June 30 level was passed by the city council today and the sponsor of the bill announced he will introduce another bill which would provide city controls of rents in general.

The hotel rent control bill, which includes apartment hotels, was drafted after hotel residents complained of rent rises ranging above 100 per cent following the lifting of Federal controls on hotel rates June 30.

Park Pup-Tent Family Gets Home for Month, Other Offers

The homeless Ahearns, who publicized their plight by pitching tent in Lafayette Park here, found friendly shelter last night.

The picture of the parents, their three small children and their dog in yesterday's edition of The Post brought them haven, at least till mid-August, in the ample home of a Lyon Park, Arlington, Va., benefactor.

And in the offing are prospects of a more permanent home, the offer of a prefabricated house, "at cost," by a Washington distributor of such homes. He, too, said he was prompted to act when he saw The Post picture.

Thomas J. Ahearn, 26, Arlington butcher, said happily last night that he and his wife, Winifred, both former Marines, hoped "to work this out, now." The two, with their children, Frederick (3 months), Timothy (20 months) and 3-year-old Thomas, jr., had no more than set up a shelter-half tent Monday night when park police stepped in. The family had lost their home of 4 weeks that morning in Arlington.

Charles E. Planck, Civil Aeronautics Administration employe, 3234 North Pershing dr., Lyon Park, picked the family up last night at the Washington Tourist Camp, where kindly park police had taken them. He said they could use his home until he returned with his family, now vacationing in Alabama.

Murray L. Kotch, head of Murray L. Kotch Associates, 1116 F st. nw., distributor of prefabricated homes, offered to deliver a prefab of their choosing at their lot "at actual cost." Details, he said, could be worked out under a GI loan.

Other offers came yesterday to the family, some direct, some through The Post, and the Kotch offer through the Veterans Housing Center. But, Ahearn admitted, for the most part they just cost him precious nickels turning them down over a public telephone.

One on the Aisle—

Travel Is Maddening

Planets Follow British Abroad

By Richard L. Coe

WHENEVER YOU TALK to someone newly arrived from England these days you get to wondering. Precisely what you're wondering about isn't quite clear.

For instance, the other day John Mills, the Kip of "Great Expectations," arrived on the Queen Elizabeth with his wife, Playwright Mary Hayley Bell. They went direct from the ship to LaGuardia Airport, and Pittsburgh was the first city they really got into.

Then they went back to New York, saw three plays in two nights and went up to Canada. The next day they came to Washington for five hours, most of them at a cocktail party.

At the party everyone talked of flying saucers and jet-propelled ashtrays. Then someone asked Playwright Bell how plans were coming for an American production of her London success, "Duet for Two Hands."

"Well," said blonde Mrs. Mills, "the producer told me he couldn't discuss it on Friday. The stars weren't right. But he said that by Wednesday the heavens would have cleared and the stars would be propitious for us to talk about it."

All very matter of fact she was, giving perfect respect to Producer Robert Reud's belief in astrology. Reud is the producer, you may recall, who upset Elisabeth Bergner something terrific when, after "The Two Mrs. Carrolls" opened to huzzahs, he ascribed the entire success of the venture to his astrological faithfulness.

Now Reud is handling next season's production of Miss Bell's curious drama about a poet who loses his hands in an accident and by a miracle of surgery receives two new ones—those of a man who has been hanged for murder. Mills scored a big hit in his wife's play, but will not be free to play it in New York.

More Unreality

To the unreality of quick changes in climate and talk of saucers in the sky, add the exchange problem for visiting Britons. Technically, they're not working while here, only visiting, and as a result have a very limited amount of money to spend. Hence, no lightweight suit for John on a warm Washington day and mainly just window shopping for Mary.

Things on the English stages sounded equally peculiar to us.

For instance, Mary's latest play, "Angel," based on the Constance Kent murder trial, was taken off after 10 days. Mary grants she should have tackled it differently, but thinks that one factor in the failure was Britain's current stagehand maze. Because the stagehands over there are not as unionized as ours, it is a sort of sideline venture, with heads of departments employed regularly but the mass of hands coming to work at will.

Since after you earn so much the government gets the rest, there's little incentive for regular stagehand work, reports Miss Bell. Each crew has to become accustomed to the job and opening night ran an hour overtime. Finish "Angel."

Nobody came right out and remarked that the world is getting screwier by the minute, which we think was right polite.

SPEAKING OF BRITAIN, look at our movie line-up for the rest of the week—four from England: "Odd Man Out" at the Metropolitan and "Great Expectations" at the Earle Thursday, "The Years Between" Saturday at the Hippodrome and "Storm in a Teacup," continuing for a second week at the Little. The others: "Cynthia," Thursday at the Capitol, and "The Macomber Affair," Friday at the Palace. "Ivy" stays on at Keith's.

"LIFE WITH FATHER" closes Saturday night in New York with 3213 performances chalked up, but don't think Los Angeles admits this is the record. . . . Nosireesir. . . . "The Drunkard," out at the Theater Mart, is in its fifteenth year with 5257 performances as of last Saturday night. . . . "Which," boasts our wire from southern California, "is twice that of its nearest competitor of long-run rivals, 'Life With Father.'" . . . It started July 6, 1933, when beer was coming back. . . Ah, Los Angeles, never content with anything but the most terrific. . . Plus beer.

MARGARET MAYORGA'S latest "Best One-Act Plays" edition is out, which the inexhaustible compiler usually manages every year, but paper shortages forced two years in one for "'46-'47." . . . So it's all the more to the credit of Jack Jacobs, the Delafield Place playwright, that he's represented with "Bride-Ship." . . . Jack's just finished his year at Yale's drama school and is off for Ohio, of all places, where he claims it will be easier to settle down to writing than in his home town.

BACK TO F st. tomorrow comes the best comedy we've seen this season—"Miracle on 34th Street," which opens at the Columbia . . . On his finest stationery, Loew's Leo writes us a challenge, calling it "difficult to sell because the cast has no great box office potency and the title is rather trite . . . However, the reviews of you and your colleagues and word of mouth comments have created a demand. Here's a picture you fellows can really 'make' . . . If the picture has a big week, we'll know who to credit." . . . Gee, gosh, we're a influence! . . . But it is a swell little picture.

PAULINE OR PEARL: It's really Betty Hutton, but in "The Perils of Pauline" she plays Pearl White, who plays Pauline. Clear?

Beery and Rooney Reach Milestones

Hollywood.—A couple of Hollywood film veterans—Wallace Beery and Mickey Rooney—added new chapters to their careers this week on the sound stages.

Beery wound up what the records say is his 250th motion picture, Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer's "Alias A Gentleman," and Rooney started "Killer McCoy," his most mature screen assignment to date.

Rooney gained much of his early screen prominence in roles with Beery, first in "Ah, Wilderness!" then in "Stablemates."

G-String Girl Drops Her Pearl of Wisdom

New York.—Last year Henry Luce abandoned the magazine project which he planned for the Nation, New Republic, Harper's and Atlantic Monthly trade. Last week Luce decided to revive the project, and it resulted in a shakeup at Time magazine. Roy Alexander will become managing editor, succeeding T. S. Matthews, who will be placed in charge of the new project. And Luce returns to the active editorship of Time . . . Paul Lukas will be the first screen star to make a film in Germany. He leaves August 1 . . Gypsy Rose Lee addressed a drama group about her contribution to the theater and said: "There is a hairline of difference between straight burlesque and comedy. Well, I've broken that hairline."

Dorothy Patrick's singing in the picture, "New Orleans," was done by Teddy Lynch, wife of J. Paul Getty, the hotel owner. Miss Lynch was in Rome, studying for the opera, when the war broke out and she was interned . . . John Royal leaves for Europe this week for a television survey. Royal, head of NBC's television, was asked about the newly announced Zenith system of charging the consumer by a linkup with his phone line—so that television stations will be able to afford the Jack Bennys and others. "That's sheer Rube Goldberg," said Royal. "Furthermore, we won't start with a Jack Benny. In television we intend to make our own Jack Bennys."

A Hollywood producer whose wife divorced him agreed to pay her 20 per cent of his income, until she remarried, as alimony. After two years word came from England that she was engaged to marry a London broker. A few weeks later the engagement was called off . . . The producer's friends held a meeting and decided: "Maybe the broker called it off because he has no dough. Let's all help him—set him up in a new business, or else maybe arrange to buy a lot of stocks through him until he marries her." The producer's former wife now has remarried in England. His Hollywood friends were so pleased by their successful plot that they've written a screen play about it, sold it, and cut the producer in for 20 per cent.

Ferenc Molnar was asked to fly to Hollywood. He pulled out a batch of clippings about recent plane disasters and said: "I will fly when the airplane is invented" . . . After her performance in "Alice Sit by the Fire" with her mother, Helen Hayes, Mary MacArthur was presented with an award by a theater club—which the spokeswoman, in a long speech, said was to encourage young actresses. The award was a 3x4 photo of Ingrid Bergman.

Mrs. Ed Paine, the former Natalie Wales Latham, who organized Bundles for Britain, has organized a national Ballet Theatre Foundation. Mrs. Alexander Biddle will head the Philadelphia division and Mrs. Philip Armour the Chicago branch. They will raise funds to subsidize ballet groups.

Kenney Heads U. S. Unit for Chest Drive

President Truman yesterday announced the appointment of Assistant Secretary of the Navy W. John Kenney as chairman of the Government unit for the annual Community Chest Federation drive next fall.

In announcing Kenney's appointment, Mr. Truman asked other Government officials to "give him the fullest measure of support and assistance."

In a message sent to heads of all executive departments and agencies in the Government, the President said, in part:

"The strength and health of every community demand social services of wide variety. Day in and day out the agencies of the federation help our less fortunate neighbors and fellow workers to meet problems too great for them to bear alone.

"They work constantly to prevent crime and delinquency. They safeguard and rebuild homes and family life. They fight disease. They form a constant bulwark of protection for the welfare of children, yours as well as those less privileged. . . .

"Knowing that you feel healthy communities make a healthy Nation, I request all persons in authority in the offices of the Federal and District governments in the National Capital area to extend their full cooperation to the coming campaign.

"This cooperation should include both the organization of effective solicitation and the setting up of an adequate collection method for the convenience of those who wish to make subscriptions on an installment basis.

"In asking all officials and employes to give generously I call your attention to the fact that for private humanitarian service the Community Chest plan is conceded to be the best method yet formed for raising, handling and budgeting the funds for contributors. The Chest unites all races, creeds and social groups in a cooperative effort to meet urgent human needs.

"Lets us all give generously."

Southern Democrats To See Truman Today

Democratic Party leaders from six Southern States will discuss current issues, plan party strategy, see President Truman and hear Attorney General Clark here today.

Clark will speak at a luncheon after the National Committee members and State party leaders from Arkansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Texas have made an informal midday call on the President.

In the morning and afternoon, Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Democratic National Committee, and George Killion, committee treasurer, along with other committee officials will discuss party matters with the visitors.

Great Britain to Make Olive Honest Woman

London, July 8 (U.P.).—George Oliver, parliamentary Undersecretary of State, announced in the Commons today that the Home Office would permit German prisoners of war to marry English women but that the newlyweds can not live together.

Oliver said steps would be taken to help Miss Olive Reynolds marry the prisoner of war who fathered her child. Her lover, Werner Vetter, is now serving a 12-month sentence for improper association with an English girl despite his protestations that he wished to marry Olive.

A PROGRESS REPORT

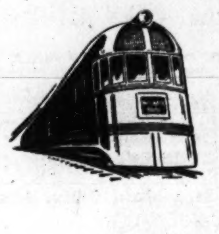
from the Burlington to All America

We address this report to all America because every man, woman and child shares in the progress of America's backbone transportation system—the railroads.

Millions of people ride trains every day. Most of the things we eat and wear—the things with which we build and maintain our homes, factories, schools and churches—move as freight over the gigantic network of America's railroads. It's a strong, flexible network, quickly adjustable to the challenges of war, flood and ever-changing transportation requirements.

The progress recorded in this Burlington report typifies the advancements of alert railroads throughout the country.

America's First Diesel-Powered Streamlined Train



The Burlington's Pioneer Zephyr entered service in 1934, opening a glorious new era of diesel-powered, streamlined trains for all America. This original Zephyr is still in regular daily service with more than 2,100,000 miles to its credit.

Today—a Fleet of 28 Modern Diesel-Powered Trains for Burlington Passengers

Serving America to the tune of 20,663 miles a day, these modern trains are establishing new standards of luxurious, high-speed travel. Already, Burlington passengers are enjoying the comfort and performance of ten post-war trains. And eight new Zephyrs, featuring Vista-Dome cars, are on the way.

Burlington Introduced the Vista-Dome Car

When the first of these cars went into service in July, 1945, we said: "If the public likes the Vista-Dome idea, the Burlington will build a fleet of such cars." The public did like the idea of a "penthouse on wheels," and 40 streamlined, stainless steel Vista-Dome cars are now being built for use in eight new Zephyrs.

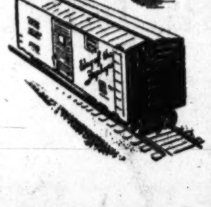
Coming… Eight Glamorous New Vista-Dome Zephyrs

New scenic thrills await you when you ride these diesel-powered, stainless steel trains; the new Twin Zephyrs, twice daily between Chicago and St. Paul-Minneapolis, along the upper Mississippi River Scenic Route . . . and the California Zephyrs, daily between Chicago-Denver-Salt Lake City-San Francisco, by daylight through the Colorado Rockies and Feather River Canyon.

Sleek Zephyrs and Mighty Freights—Both Have Diesel Power!

The first Zephyr introduced diesel power to main-line service in 1934. Today, Burlington Lines have 171 of these modern locomotives at work . . . hauling top passenger and freight trains . . . speeding switching operations. Twenty more diesel locomotives will be delivered this year.

Burlington Building 3,000 New Freight Cars

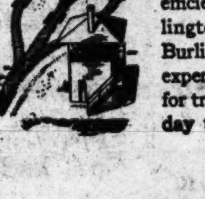


Used interchangeably by all of America's railroads, 47,000 Burlington freight cars serve consumers, industry and agriculture . . . coast to coast, border to border. This year, 2,000 new box cars and 1,000 new hopper cars are being built.

Centralized Traffic Control

In the last 10 years Burlington has invested $2,746,501 to equip 579 miles of its main line with "CTC." This enables a dispatcher, with the tip of his finger, to instantly control train movements over many miles of track. It speeds traffic, saves time and motive power.

Burlington's New "Humps" Speed Freight



As many as 9,000 freight cars are sorted daily in strategically-located Burlington hump yards, using gravity and electro-pneumatic controls. These modern freight yards represent an investment of more than $5,000,000.

Two-Way Radio Increases Efficiency

Thousands of freight shipments a day are handled faster, more efficiently—thanks to the Burlington's two-way radio. The Burlington was among the first to experiment with two-way radio for trains; now radio is an everyday tool for better railroading.

Burlington Speeds Vacationists Everywhere West

The Burlington introduced Overnight, Everynight Service between Chicago and Cool Colorado. The Burlington also provides through service to Magic Yellowstone . . . Glorious Glacier Park . . . the Evergreen Pacific Northwest . . . Sunny California, adding hours of comfort to your vacation enjoyment.

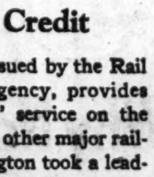
Improved Facilities

Burlington Lines now serve 14 states with 11,000 miles of roadway. In 1946, these lines expended $88,716,853 in their continuous program of maintenance and improvement of roadway, structures and equipment. A good example—the new Torsion Resisting rail, a Burlington contribution to better railroading.

Through Trains and Through Cars

For 38 years the Burlington has provided through train service between Chicago and the Pacific Coast . . . through trains or cars between the principal cities of the West. Today, this service is being speeded and streamlined, and coast-to-coast sleepers are in daily operation via the Burlington between New York and San Francisco.

Rail Travel Credit



One credit card, issued by the Rail Travel Credit Agency, provides handy "charge-it" service on the Burlington and 44 other major railroads. The Burlington took a leading part in making this service available to travelers.

Working with Industry

Burlington is working with industry in many ways beyond providing efficient transportation. Problems involving plant location, sources of raw materials and markets for finished products have assumed new importance in recent years. Burlington provides sound counsel in helping to solve them.

World's Largest Livestock Hotel

Federal laws require that livestock be fed, watered and inspected at regular intervals on long trips. Burlington has facilities for such care at more than 50 points. World's largest (at Montgomery, Illinois) has pasture and barn accommodations for 100,000 "guests" . . . serves over ten million pounds of balanced rations each year.

Improved Passenger Stations

Burlington's program of progress includes the construction or modernization of many stations. Several (like those in La Crosse, Wis. and Burlington, Iowa) have won national acclaim.

Rail-Auto Service

This service, which provides a rented car at station destinations, was first introduced by the Burlington in 1940. Discontinued during the war years, this travel convenience is again available to business and vacation travelers on the Burlington and other major railroads.

Working with Agriculture

Proud of its traditions as a "granger railroad,' Burlington has worked with farmers for almost a century . . . investing time and money in programs to improve livestock and crops—to conserve and improve the soil—to improve transportation for farm and ranch products. Agricultural and livestock agents are constantly in the field helping solve current problems.

REAL ESTATE TIP. Nick Gaston, sagacious owner of the Old New Orleans, is a shrewd judge of business and real estate trends. It's his belief that upper-bracket home developments will boom along the Potomac Palisades in the next few seasons. Nick's already a pioneer in this section. His handsome home, complete with swimming pool and terraced garden, overlooks the Potomac, seems to be nested right in the forest—but it's only seven minutes of easy driving from his office in the Woodward Building.

Bob Ellis
In the Metronome Room

Quonset Inn plans to add a swimming pool to its modernistic set-up . . . Also a ballroom to be operated as a separate unit and called "Danceland."

TOREADOR GIRL. Ruth Hart and her toreador dances head the new Casino Royal revue which opened last night. Also new to Washington are the Blackburn Twins, a pair of fast-stepping boys who have just completed a solid six months in Manhattan. Jack "Jive" Schafer and Louise Lee give comical and torchy songs and the six Elaine Shaffer Girls are flinging their pretty torsos around in fresh routines and costumes.

THE MIDNIGHT WARBLERS. Bob Ellis, new Metronome Room star, wears ties designed by Salvador Dali. We should add that his bartoning is the finest a-going . . . Glen Echo's beauteous Mildred Kirke hails from Johnstown, Pa., the town of the Big Flood that horrified America a couple of generations ago. Mildred was only a gleam in her great-grandpappy's eye then . . . Sue Milroy who chirps so sweetly at the Madrillon, is also a clever amateur actress, has appeared in Catholic U. productions . . . Walter Donak, singing drummer with Bob Knight's band at the Lounge Riviera, is one of a pair of musical twins. His brother Pete plays sax at the Riviera . . . A girl of many hair-do's is Dona Mason of the King Cole Room. She wears up-do's, down-do's, side-swirls, pompadours and bangs. Only rule is that her coiffure is different every night . . . Outside of a wartime interlude, Buddy Shaner has been singing at the Lotus almost ever since his choir boy days. He seems to get more popular every season, too.

Michel's is now open for luncheon, a pleasant and highly promising innovation. It's near enough to Washington's "Wall Street" section to lure business men and girls who like their luncheons seasoned with glamor.

The Gallup Poll

80th Congress Carries Out 2 Mandates, Lags on Others

By George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J. July 8.—Has the Eightieth Congress carried out the mandate it got from the people at last November's election?

In two respects it has—by passing labor union control regulation and by continuing support of President Truman's foreign policy.

In two other respects it has failed, at least so far, to carry out the mandate of 1946. No action has been taken yet on military training and on minimum wages, although bills on both subjects have been prepared and introduced.

From election returns it is not possible to tell what mandate the voters are actually giving the men they elect. No one knows whether people are voting on specific issues, or simply passing judgment on the abilities and personalities of candidates, or merely voting a straight party ticket without reference to issues at all.

But it is possible to define mandates through the modern instrument of the public opinion sampling poll. By these polls it can be determined, at the time an election is held, what people are thinking about specific issues, as distinguished from candidates. That was done by the institute in a Nation-wide sampling referendum last November, just before the country in the election gave Republicans control of both the House and the Senate.

With some of the major mandates defined in this way, it is possible now, seven months later, to give an accounting of the performance of the Eightieth Congress on certain major issues, as follows:

LABOR—On November 10, 1946, four days after the election, the institute reported: "The country has given the new Congress an unmistakable mandate to control and regulate strikes and labor unions."

The evidence was cited in the results of a pre-election sampling referendum on the question: "Should the Congress elected in November pass new laws to control labor unions?" The vote was 66 per cent in favor, 22 per cent opposed and 12 per cent undecided. Other polls also found the public supporting curbs on "featherbedding" and jurisdictional strikes and approving cooling-off periods before strikes, and other specific items which are found in the Taft-Hartley Act.

* * * *

MILITARY TRAINING — "Universal military training in peacetime has the 'go ahead' signal from the American people," reported the institute in the same November 10 story.

It had just polled the people on the question: "Should the Congress elected in November pass a law to require every physically fit young man who has not served in the Armed Forces to take military or naval training for one year?" The vote was more than 2-to-1 in favor—67 per cent "yes," 25 per cent "no," and 8 percent "no opinion."

Today, seven months later, the vote has risen to 74 per cent in favor, judging by the institute's latest survey. Whether Congress will take action on military training at this session is still problematical.

* * * *

MINIMUM WAGES — While favoring restrictions on organized labor, the voters when they went to the polls last November were not opposed to raising minimum wage requirements.

The institute reported at the time, "In spite of the unmistakable swing to the right politically, which the election showed, the country has not swung away completely from social and economic reform.

"For example, the same voters who went to the polls Tuesday and caused control of the House to shift to the GOP have in a sampling referendum signified their approval of legislation to raise the minimum wage level of the country from the present 40 cents an hour to 65 cents. This measure has majority backing from Democratic, Republican and independent voters alike. . . ."

In June a bill was introduced in Congress to raise the minimum wage of workers in industrial firms engaged in interstate commerce from the present 40 cents an hour to 75 cents within the next two years.

Action on the bill at this session is considered doubtful.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS—Congress has in general supported President Truman's foreign policy, which has majority approval among the voters.

Reporting that the marked Republican victory in the election "should in no way be interpreted as signifying a desire by the people to return to isolationism," the institute pointed out that the people were not divided over foreign policy, and that they continued to support overwhelmingly the program of firmness toward Russia.

* * * *

TAXES—On the subject of tax reduction the voters were in something of a dilemma when they voted in the 1946 election.

Desire for tax cuts conflicted in their minds with fear of the large public debt. On the basis of surveys at the time, the institute concluded that no clear mandate had been given by the voters one way or the other on the matter of income tax reduction.

Since that time surveys have found that when voters are asked to choose between tax reduction and debt reduction, the weight of sentiment is on the side of cutting debt in preference to cutting taxes.

While nobody likes to pay high taxes, it is significant that the President's veto of tax reduction this year did not arouse any very impressive outcry of protest from the voting population. Congress is reconsidering the tax bill, but if it is passed the tax reduction would not take effect until the first of next year.

Bird Sets House Afire With Cigarette in Nest

Bloomfield, N. J., July 8 (AP).—A sparrow which tried to build a lighted cigarette into its attic nest was looking for new quarters today.

The cigarette set off the nest and started a blaze in the attic of a two-story house here. Only minor damage was reported, but firemen hastily cleared out what was left of the nest.

Cafritz Asks Permission to Up 41 Rentals

The Morris Cafritz Real Estate Co. yesterday asked the Rent Control Board for permission to raise rents on 41 "vacant" apartments in nine properties.

Increases of from 20 to 30 per cent were requested. The company said the rent hikes are necessary to meet increased operating and maintenance costs and higher real estate and water bills.

Rent hearings generally feature protesting tenants but these were conspicuous by their absence at yesterday's proceeding. Morris Cafritz, company head, explained last night that the tenants who occupied the 41 units had either already moved out or had given notice they were leaving.

"As the apartments become vacant, we apply for permission to raise the rents," he explained.

The petition was the second on "vacant" properties to be presented to the rent board by Cafritz. Hearings were held June 11 on a request to raise the rent on 21 similarly vacant apartments at 2000 Connecticut ave. nw., and 1660 Lanier pl. nw. Increases of 23 per cent on the Connecticut ave. apartments and 18 per cent on the Lanier pl. apartments were requested. Increases averaging 10 per cent and 7 per cent were granted effective July 14.

Largest bulk of apartments involved in yesterday's hearing before Examiner James Tyson were 15 units of the Greenway Apartments, East Capitol st. and Anacostia rd. The 72 buildings forming the housing development contain 797 units. Increases averaging $10 or about 20 per cent were requested.

Other properties involved in the petition and the number of apartments in each are: Empire, 2000 F st. nw., 5; Hightowers, 1530 16th st. nw., 5; Majestic, 3200 16th st. nw., 3; Gwenwood, 1020 19th st. nw., one; Miramar, 1301 15th st. nw., 3; 2000 Connecticut ave. nw., 3; 1445 Ogden st. nw., 4, and 1660 Lanier st. nw., 2.

Neighbors Fight Fire

Frederick, Md., July 8.—Diligence of neighbors and promptness of Hyattstown and Gaithersburg firemen saved the apartment house of Mrs. Dorothy Green at Clarksburg from destruction yesterday. Before the firemen arrived, neighbors succeeded in removing furniture from the unoccupied apartments.

Woman Is 5th D. C. Tick Fever Patient

A 86-year-old woman of the 1300 block of Ingraham st. nw., yesterday became the District's fifth person to suffer Rocky Mountain spotted fever, bringing the Greater Washington total to 11 cases.

This was revealed by the Health Department. At the same time, Health officials announced the previously unreported case of a 64-year-old man of the 100 block of V st. nw., who contracted the disease June 27.

The woman was bitten by a tick while at Shadyside, Md., July 2, and was admitted to Garfield Hospital July 4, Health officials said.

In addition to the three previous District cases, two cases each have been reported in Montgomery, Arlington and Fairfax Counties. Two of the District cases resulted in death.

D. C. Leaders Cite Problems, Stay Hopeful

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington business leaders, discounting pessimistic talk in some quarters, emphasized four major problems but generally expressed confidence in this city's future progress.

The majority of those interviewed by The Post yesterday were cautiously optimistic. They stressed these problems: Government employment drop, housing shortage, high prices and labor-management difficulties.

Most expected a mild recession with some preferring to call it a readjustment. Few seemed concerned over reports of a Federal job cutback. High prices and the housing shortage were mentioned most often as major problems. The majority felt that labor-management relations were improving.

The underlying feeling seemed to be that this city, along with the rest of the country has so much work piled up that depression talk doesn't make sense.

Two questions were put to a cross-section of local business leaders: "Do you see signs of a recession here? What postwar problems still loom largest on the Washington business front?"

Over-all Picture Good

Here are some of the answers received:

Leader in building and loan industry: "I don't expect a depression here or throughout the country. If there were a recession nationally, Washington would have only a mild form of it. Housing shortage is the No. 1 problem, but this will be alleviated through the gradual availability of materials, workmen and as some folks leave the city. I feel that most of the Government workers being let out can be absorbed by private industry."

Leader in retail field: "The over-all business picture remains good here. Housing shortage, high prices and Federal job cutback are major problems here. In the retail field, merchants are watching inventories but there is no acute problem along this line."

Banker: "Labor - management troubles seem to be showing improvement. International troubles, naturally, influence business psychology . . . most businessmen in this city have so much work piled up that talk of a depression is just nonsense."

"Priced Beyond Reason"

Leader in building trade: "High price of construction is prime problem. Both materials and labor are priced beyond reason."

Investment dealer: "Readjustment likely in some lines due to overstocked inventories, but there is no general recession here despite personnel cuts in Government departments."

Auto dealer: "There doesn't seem to be any letup in demand for motor cars here . . . it will take at least five years for the industry to catch up with demand even with capacity production."

In a national survey of business leaders just completed by partners of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane in 31 States and the District of Columbia, the consensus was:

Fifty per cent thought there might be a mild recession; 20 per cent predicted a more serious depression; 73 per cent expected prices to come down; 62 per cent saw some improvement in labor efficiency.

New York Cotton

New York, July 8 (AP).—Cotton futures advanced $4.40 to $5.45 a bale today on heavy trade and outside buying stimulated by a lower-than-expected Government acreage report placing plantings for the 1947 cotton crop at 21,389,000 acres. Trade ideas had ranged between 21 million acres and better than 22 million acres, while the Government had set an acreage goal of 23,100,000 acres. On the basis of the Government figure, traders anticipated another year of tight cotton supplies with current stocks in the country already down to an 18-year low. Some quarters felt that the cotton export subsidy will be abandoned or retained at a nominal level to conserve supplies for the domestic market. Futures prices at one time reacted more than $1 a bale from the best levels on profit taking and hedging, but closed strong at new highs for the day.

Late Selling Trims 9-Day Stock Gains

New York, July 8 (AP).—Stocks pushed upward today, for the ninth successive session, a record since the boom of 1939, following signing of the coal wage pact. Late selling on the lengthy swing, however, reduced most extreme gains running to 2 or more points and put a number of market pivotals in the minus column.

Early irregularity was succeeded by a fast sprint around midday when news of the mining peace arrived. Steels, rails, motors and numerous industrial specials swung ahead with assorted favorites at peaks for the year. Dealings then tapered as quotations began to slip in the concluding hour. Closing plus marks, though, were well in the majority. Transfers of 1,390,000 shares compared with 1,050,000 Monday and were the best since May 19.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .3 of a point at 66.6, highest level since last March 6, and a gain for nine sessions of 3.2 points.

Peaks for 1947 were recorded for Chrysler, which eventually backed down and emerged off ⅛ at 113¾ as stockholders approved the proposed splitup; Superior Oil, up 2 at 126; A. O. Smith 7 at 58 (on limited sales), Acme Steel, 1¾ at 49¾, Allied Chemical 3½ at 186, Du Pont ½ at 196½, Westinghouse ⅛ at 29, Texas Pacific Land Trust ½ at 28 and Sears Roebuck ¼ at 40⅛.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, July 8 (AP).—Wheat was independently strong at the Board of Trade today, advancing more than 3 cents on reports of broad domestic inquiry for flour and that the Government would replace canceled corn export allocations with wheat and other grains.

All grains started weak, reflecting the Government announcement that corn allocations for July and August, amounting to 6,640,000 bushels, had been canceled. Feed grains broke sharply but wheat, after a sharp dip, bounded upward under commercial buying.

At the close wheat was 1½ to 3½ higher than the previous close, July, 2.22½. Corn was ⅛ to 3⅜ lower, July, 2.13½@2.13¼. Oats were ½ to 1¾ lower, July, 99½@99⅜, and soybeans were 4 cents lower, November, 2.76.

Chain Stores
Chain stores are many things to many people. To consumers, they are a convenient, economical source of supply. To manufacturers, they are a major outlet for goods. To other retailers, they are the big competition.
To the investor, they are a special kind of challenge, for chain store securities run the whole gamut of opportunity—from the speculative to the "blue chip". Right now, the changing tides of retailing complicate the problem. That's why we have just published a factual review of the field.
After examining the industry as a whole, our new booklet, "Chain Stores", analyzes the present situation and future prospects of 30 leading companies, provides pertinent investment data on 22 others. Investors may have it without cost. Just send your request for a copy of "Chain Stores" to ...

Spence's Hit Wins for American League, 2 to 1

BIG JOHN HOMERS—Johnny Mize (left), first baseman for the National League All-Stars, is greeted by Teammate Enos Slaughter (center) and the bat boy as he crosses home plate after belting a homer in the fourth inning against the American League All-Stars

A DOUBLE FOR WILLIAMS—Left Fielder Ted Williams of the American League All-Stars slides into second base with a double in the fourth inning of yesterday's game at Wrigley Field, Chicago. Shortstop Marty Marion awaits the throw-in

AUTOGRAPH SEEKERS THERE—Stan Musial (right), and Emil Verban of the National League All-Stars, oblige the customers at the major league attraction yesterday by autographing baseballs and programs before the start of the game

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, July 8.—All-Stardust:

Two Pacific Coast factions have been cruising among the major league club owners the past two days and almost hissing at each other . . . Clarence Rowland heads the Coast League delegation that is trying to gain status as a third major league, and Vincent Flaherty is spearheading the group that is interested only in putting the St. Louis Cardinals' franchise in Los Angeles . . . Cleveland Owner Bill Veeck is combining his outing at the All-Star game with the business of finding another Chicago hotel for his ball club which has been told that its colored rookie, Larry Doby, is nongrata at the hostelry . . . Leland Stanford University's first baseball captain and former infielder, Herbert Hoover, was among 41,123 Wrigley Field fans . . . Bob Feller, who begged out of the game with the complaint of a sore back muscle, will make a rapid recovery in time to start Cleveland's next game on Thursday . .. The starting lineup of the National League was a triumph for the St. Louis Cardinals. Six of the players were Cards or former Cards with Rightfielder Diixie Walker, Pitcher Ewell Blackwell and Third Baseman Frankie Gustine the only exceptions . . . The first oh's and ah's from the crowd were heard during the American Leaguers' batting practice when Williams hit the first two pitches he saw into the right-field seats.

POVICH

PRESIDENT LARRY MacPHAIL of the Yankees put the heat on Manager Joe Cronin to scratch the Yankees' Spud Chandler as his starting pitcher . . . The chief object of interest on the American League bench before the game was a patch-faced bat boy wearing a yard of court plaster after a recent accident. He looked as if he was studying to be an understudy for the much-scarred Pete Reiser of the Dodgers . . . Tommy Henrich of the Yankees, who didn't even know if he would see action in the game, was overlooking no details nevertheless. He went out into right field during the National League batting practice and studied the angles of the right-field wall, with particular note how balls were caroming off it . . . It didn't take Ewell Blackwell long to impress the American Leaguers. He struck out both George Kell and Ted Williams in the first inning . . . His last pitch to Williams was a slow curve on a 3 and 2 count that left the Red Sox slugger muttering to himself. . . . Manager Eddie Dyer, who used the Boudreau shift against Williams in the last World Series with success, didn't bother about it today.

CATCHER WALKER COOPER also found Blackwell something to contend with in the second inning. One of Blackie's cannon pitches tore through his mitt for a passed ball and the next one eluded Cooper for a wild pitch . . . Blackwell provided a contortion act along with his pitching, letting the ball go with a sling-shot delivery after a tricky motion . . . Ted Williams, who was seeing Wrigley Field for the first time in his life today, wisecracked when asked what he thought of the park, "I'll tell you better along about half past three." . . . Commissioner A. B. Chandler, who liked to be called "Happy" when he was Senator from Kentucky, says he doesn't anymore, apparently putting the dignity of his baseball job ahead of the dignity of the Senate . . . Williams began liking Wrigley field immensely at 2:04 p. m. That was when he doubled down the right-field line for his first hit . . . Right Fielder Buddy Lewis was playing far out of position on Johnny Mize's fourth-inning homer that gave the Nationals a 1-0 lead. He should have been stationed eight rows up in the right-center stands, next to the guy with the yellow shirt.

THE AMERICAN LEAGUE run that tied the score at 1-1 in the sixth inning was not quite pride-filled. Luke Appling scored from third base while Joe DiMaggio was hitting into a double play . . . Nobody ever looked worse than Pinch Hitter Stan Spence when he took the first pitch for a called strike and swung futilely at the next one and nobody looked better than Spence when he singled solidly to center on Johnny Sain's next pitch to put the American League in a 2-1 lead . . . Walter Masterson, who was considering himself a lucky guy to be in the big league three months ago, found himself pitching in an All-Star game in the seventh inning, entrusted with protecting the American League's 2-1 lead . . . He was in quick trouble with a 3 and 1 count on Pewee Reese, the first man he faced, but solved it nicely by striking Reese out . . . When Joe Cronin took Masterson out in the eighth just after he had fanned Pinch Hitter Phil Cavaretta, and sent in left-hander Joe Page to pitch to Johnny Mize, the American League manager left himesif open to the charge of over-strategizing, especially when Mize singled to put the tying run on third with two out.

Locke Beats Oliver by Six Strokes

Chicago, July 8 (AP).—Bobby Locke, the South African golf perfectionist, won the $7000 Tam o' Shanter first prize today by shooting 140—four strokes under par—and six under Ed (Porky) Oliver's 146 in their 36-hole pro play-off.

The phlegmatic, 29-year-old Locke, playing as if he had nothing more at stake than carfare, pocketed $2000 to go with his $5000 "guarantee" to appear in the tournament from Promoter George S. May.

These earnings vaulted him to second place behind Ben Hogan—who did not compete in the Tam jamboree—on the pros' financial list. The PGA announced Locke's winnings at $16,187.50.

In 35 Rounds of Play

Locke has collected this swag in 35 competitive rounds, while Hogan's leading $17,099 was banked on 52 tournament rounds.

Oliver's second-place prize of $3,333 kept him in sixth place among the money winners with a total of $10,111.

Locke entered today's final round with a three-stroke edge after firing a 68 over the par 36-36—72 layout yesterday while Oliver shot a 71.

On today's first nine, the two stars played like a couple of guys named Joe. Oliver, dropping five strokes to par on the first four holes, wound up with a horrendous 43, while the machine-like Locke took a rusty 39 with a 7 on the twenty-seventh green after three putting.

Starting the last nine with two birdies, Oliver finished with a brilliant 32 for 75, while Locke counted an eagle 3 on the twenty-eighth to finish with a 33 for 72.

Locke's six-foot putt for an eagle 3 on the twenty-eighth boosted his lead to eight strokes—the greatest margin of the match.

Last Hole Locke Gained

Oliver shaved the advantage with a 10-footer for a deuce on the twenty-ninth, but Locke again gained an eight-stroke edge by curling in a 35-foot putt for a birdie on the thirty-first. That was the last hole he gained.

They squared the thirty-second with pars, Oliver missing his second putt of the day under one foot. The Wilmington, Del., pro then gained on the 500-yard thirty-third by reaching the green in two shots and holding out with birdie 4.

They parred the next two, and Oliver scliced the lead to the final six strokes on the last green by ramming in a 15-footer for a birdie 3.

Ida's Triumphs

Ida's Department Store blasted eight runs across the plate in the last two innings and easily defeated the Naval Air Reserve Training Unit, 12-5, yesterday in a Metropolitan League baseball game at Fairlawn.

Tebbetts May Succeed Cronin

Boston, July 8 (AP).—Catcher Birdie Tebbetts was mentioned in Boston baseball circles today as a possible successor to Joe Cronin as manager of the Red Sox next season.

Cronin is generally expected to move into the front office, possibly as general manager in place of ailing Eddie Collins.

Boston obtained Tebbetts from Detroit in a straight player-swap which sent Catcher Hal Wagner to the Tigers on June 15—the last day of trading.

Joe McCarthy, the former New York Yankees' manager, long has been listed in line for the Red Sox managership once Cronin hung up his shoes, but McCarthy is reported to have turned down an offer.

Owner TomYawkey has told reporters McCarthy has been considered for the Red Sox post, but always has emphasized that Cronin could remain as manager as long as he pleased.

Boudreau's Great Play in 8th Saves The Day—Cronin

Chicago, July 8.—Manager Joe Cronin of the victorious American League All-Stars, bowed in the direction of a fellow manager, Lou Boudreau, following today's defeat of the National League All-Star team.

"Boudreau's play in the eighth inning saved the game," said Cronin. "He's far ahead of any other shortstop in the business."

Cronin was referring to Boudreau's grab of Enos Slaughter's ground ball for the third out when the National Leaguers had men on first and third following Johnny Mize's second hit of the game.

In the dressing room, Second Baseman Bobby Doerr declared "I couldn't get to the ball despite the fact that it was hit five feet on my side of second base. How Boudreau got there from shortstop, I don't know, but it was the finest play I've ever seen.

Stan's Single in Seventh Breaks 1-1 Tie; Mize Clouts Only Homer

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, July 8.—Stan Spence, Washington's .300-hitting outfielder, batted 1000 as a pinchhitter in the seventh inning today and delivered a 2-1 victory to the American League in the tightest All-Star game in history.

Summoned off the bench by Manager Joe Cronin with two out and the score tied at 1-1, Spence stood unperturbed by a count of two strikes and no balls against him, and then whacked the hit that beat the National League All-Stars.

It was a solid single to center that scored Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox, who had singled, stolen second and moved to third on Pitcher Johnny Sain's wild throw in an attempt to pick him off.

Until that point, big Johnny Mize was the big noise of the ball game, watched by 41,123 tense fans who paid $105,314 in gate receipts and packed the park.

A loud home run off Mize's bat streaked into the right center field bleachers to break a 0-0 deadlock in the fourth inning and move the National League into a 1-0 lead.

The giant-sized first baseman of the Giants, whose 24 home runs to date lead the National League, struck his blow against Frank Shea, rookie right hander of the Yankees, who eventually was credited with being the winning pitcher.

It was a home run of undoubted quality from the impact of ball and bat, and brought sudden end to domination of the ball game by the pitchers, Ewell Blackwell, the Reds' ace, and Hal Newhouser of the Tigers. Each had pitched three scoreless innings, allowing one hit.

Mize was making a tremendous effort to swing the ball game to the National Leaguers today. He bated out two of his team's five hits and put the potential tying run in scoring position in the eighth inning with a single to right. But otherwise, only Pinch Hitter Bert Haas, Marty Marion and Andy Pafko were able to hit safely—all singles.

Masterson Plays a Part

In contrast, the American League pounded four National hurlers for eight hits, including two-baggers by Ted Williams and Joe Gordon.

The American League victory was well-tinged with a Washington aspect at the finish. To Walter Masterson was entrusted the 2-1 lead Spence's seventh-inning swat had provided, and he permitted no hit of any kind in the 1 2/3 innings he toiled.

In the eighth inning, the 41,123 fans were treated to a bit of high-powered strategy when Masterson was replaced by Joe Page of the Yankees.

It was a move by Manager Joe Cronin to serve up lefthanded pitching to the dangerous Johnny Mize, with the tying run on base.

Masterson, after breezing through the seventh inning with no National Leaguer on base, retired Andy Pafko to start the eighth and then lapsed to the extent of walking Willard Marshall.

What's This? Page Pitching!

In this crisis, he bucked down and fanned Pinch Hitter Phil Cavaretta impressively, and then the fans were startled to see Cronin jog to the pitcher's mound.

Cronin patted Masterson on the back kindly-like, and directed him to the bench, calling in Southpaw Page.

Mize immediately foiled that strategy with a line single to right that moved Marshall to third with the potential tying run, and Cronin was an embarrassed individual until Shortstop Lou Boudeau retired the side with a clever pickup of Slaughter's grounder for the third out.

Page put the tying run on base with one out in the ninth when he walked Peewee Reese, but the Cleveland combination of Joe Gordon and Boudreau, which had been a bulwark all afternoon, came to his rescue: Gordon turned Stanky's grounder into a force play at second.

Henrich Grabs Rowe's Drive

Now Manager Eddie Dyer of the National League was down to his last hope—a pinch hitter. He called on Big Schoolboy Rowe, the Phils' hitting pitcher, for the long hit that would tie the game.

Rowe gave it a tremendous try.

Bramham, Ex-Czar, Dead; Work Resulted in 51 Loops

Durham, N. C., July 8 (U.P.).—"Judge" William G. Braham, 72, recently-retired czar of baseball's minor leagues, died late today in a Durham Hospital.

Death came at 6:30 p. m. (EDT) to the dignified, baseball-loving attorney who had turned over the helm of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues to George Trautman only last January after ruling for 15 years.

Braham was taken to Watts Hospital yesterday after months of declining health. His wife and daughter were at his side when he died. Cause of his death was not announced by the hospital.

Braham, a native of Hopkinsville, Ky., had been closely associated with baseball since he was 19. He played sandlot ball and moved to Durham around the turn of the century as secretary to a tobacco company official.

He served as president of three league simultaneously—the Virginia, South Atlantic and Piedmont.

Wheen the minors formed their own association in 1932 Braham was chosen president and given sweeping powers similar to those of then High Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

He was reelected every year until 1946 when he asked to be retired because of health.

Trautman, formerly general manager of the Detroit Tigers, was elected to succeed him.

Braham saw the minors go up and down—from a low of only 10 leagues during the leanest war years to a record-breaking peak of 51 this year.

Joe Cronin Explains Why He Pulled Masterson for Page

Chicago, July 8 (AP).—Jovial Joe Cronin, Boston's 41-year-old leader of the triumphant American League All-Stars, was smilingly happy tonight for the first time since his Boston Red Sox dropped a heartbreaking World Series to the St. Louis Cardinals eight months ago.

Cronin was proud of his players in vanquishing the National Leaguers, 2 to 1, for the American League's tenth triumph in the 14-game series. Happy too, because it was his second All-Star victory. He won the first in 1934.

Cronin was in the middle of his triumphant pack of players as they clattered into the dressing room.

With a piercing scream, he yelled, "Nice going, boys. That goes for everybody."

"It was just a case of percentage baseball paying off," he explained. "The National Leaguers," he said, "made their last desperate stand in the eighth inning when we decided to switch to Southpaw Joe Page, with left-handed batters Mize and Slaughter coming up.

"Mize and Slaughter are powder—dynamite," Cronin said. "They represented the last threat. After Walter Masterson (Washington) got Cavarretta for the second out, I figured a switch to Page was the thing to do.

"If he got them out, I wasn't too concerned about the tail-end of their batting order in the ninth. Mize singled, but Joe got Slaughter on a grounder to Boudreau."

Washington's Stan Spence, who batted in the winning run in the seventh with a sharp single to right, was acclaimed as the batting hero of the game.

He said the ball which Johnny Sain threw him was a high fast ball which he smacked squarely.

STAN SPENCE
Breaks Up Game

Sain's Mistake Was in Giving Stan Spence a High, Fast Ball

Chicago, July 8 (AP).—Just one pitch—and an intended "waste" throw at that—beat the National Leaguers, 2-1, in the annual All-Star classic today, Manager Eddie Dyer and Coach Ben Chapman of the senior circuit agreed.

It was the pitch thrown by Johnny Sain of the Boston Braves in the seventh inning which Stan Spence of the Washington Senators clouted for a clean single to right field and drove in Bobby Doerr of Boston with the winning run.

Spence came to bat in the seventh for Frank Shea, Yankee pitcher, with Doerr on third, two out and the score tied.

Said Dyer:

"I went out to the mound and told Sain to throw Spence curves—anything but a high fast ball, which Spence usually hits. Sain threw two curves for two strikes, and then he tried to waste one with a high, fast pitch. Spence hit it for a single.

"Sain felt bad enough about it as it was, so I didn't say anything to him about it afterward."

"I pitched right where Eddie told me not to pitch," Sain admitted to Dyer and fellow players after the game.

"Spence hit a bad ball," Chapman echoed. "Maybe he's used to hitting bad balls. It doesn't happen like that very often."

Johnny Mize, slugging Giants' first baseman who had a home run, a single and a walk in four trips, was in a better humor than the rest of the National Leaguers.

"I got more hits today than in six other All-Star games put together," grinned Mize, who had only one safety in his other six contests. He said he hit a slider, a fast pitch with a small break, for his homer deep into the right-field bleachers in the fourth inning.

Rise To Follow Rallies to Capture Charles Town Feature

Bennings

Jockey Scotty Prain, who makes his home here, arrived from Delaware Park. He is with Dick Pending who is shipping in several horses. One of the most discouraging jobs at the tracks is that of track superintendent. After working many hours to get the oval fast along comes the rain and he has the job to do all over again. Brother Briscoe is the man here. Meadow Grey, Epinaire, Fieldfare, Leprechaun and others came here from Delaware Park today. Trainer Everett Brining suffered a badly bruised foot when pumped on by one of his horses. Local race fans will be awaiting word from Monmouth Park on Saturday when Lawless Miss, a Charles Town queen, goes in the $15,000 Molly Pitcher Handicap with Jockey E. Carrillo up. Boston Man, one of the local champs, won the opening feature at the new Lincoln Downs track. Jockey Jimmy Baird, riding for the first time without an apprentice allowance, gets in action on the Wednesday program. He has been working horses since being set down for alleged rough riding and is in good condition. . . Bill

Offsets Wide Bolt From Pack Earlier

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., July 8.—Jockey Sammy Palumbo had to dig deep in his bag of saddle tricks to win the featured sixth race today.

The Italian-American, who was riding horses when most of his rivals were swinging on gates, was aboard Robert B. Young's Rise to Follow. The 3-year-old had a good lead, but bolted almost to the outside fence entering the stretch.

Palumbo's experience told, however. He straightened the son of Gino quickly and then set out after Gertie O, which had taken a lead of more than a length by hugging the rail.

In the final drive, Rise to Follow got up again to win going away by a half length. Gertie O was second and Asaider was third.

Rise to Follow, who stopped to a walk in his previous race, paid a $7 mutuel price and was clocked in 1:27 for about 7 furlongs over a track that was good after being slow for the early events.

Palumbo also figured in a $183.20 payoff on the "1 and 1" combination in the daily double. He was aboard Mrs. Ann O. Reid's Blue Nobleman in the first race and scooted the fleet colt home ahead of Mrs. C. M. Greer, jr.'s Heaven Hill and Wayne Kendrick's Valley Poise.

The winner was clocked in :51 2-5 for about 4½ furlongs The second race went to Enrico Rinaldi's Flower Battle, a $26.20 shot, well handled by Apprentice Eddie Hopkins.

Apprentice Bob Shirey, who rode four winners yesterday, was suspended for 10 days for incompetent riding on Run Bud Run in the fifth. Run Bud Run finished third.

Palumbo rode his third winner in four tries for the day aboard E. A. Nicodemus' Double Duty, the odds-on favorite in the seventh race, the day's second purse event. Double Duty disposed of Ariel Legend to get to the front and held on gamely. The mare paid $3.20.

Co-Medalists Mrs. Betty Meckley, Miss Downy Eliminated in Maryland State Women's Golf

Mrs. Betty Meckley of Kenwood and Miss Mary Ann Downy of the Baltimore Country Club, who tied for medal honors with 81s on the opening day of the Maryland State Women's Golf Tournament, were both eliminated in the first round of match play yesterday at Kenwood Country Club.

Mrs. Meckley was upset by "unknown" Mrs. C. E. Richards of Country Club of Maryland, 1 up on 19 holes. Miss Downy was the victim of Mrs. Walter R. Stokes of Manor, 3 and 1. Mrs. Stokes, winner of the District and Middle Atlantic women's titles and trying for her third straight tourney crown, came through with a sparkling 78.

Mrs. Meckley, one up after the first nine, fell behind by two holes going to the sixteenth. She staged a stirring rally to tie her Baltimore adversary on the eighteenth. But Mrs. Richards, without an improtant tournament victory to her credit, prevailed on the nineteenth to beat one of the favorites.

Defending Champion Mrs. Maurice Glick of Woodholme had an easy time, advancing to the quarterfinals with a 5-and-4 triumph over Mrs. Elizabeth Bonthron of Hillendale.

Today's top first flight match pits Mrs. Stokes against Mrs. Richard Kreuzberg, the host club's women's champion. Mrs. Krenzberg fired a 79 yesterday to trim Miss June Vogel of Rolling Road, 4 and 3.

Yesterday's results:

First Flight—Mrs. C. E. Richards (Country Club of Maryland) defeated Mrs. Betty Meckley (Kenwood), 1 up 19 holes. Mrs. Maurice Glick (Woodholme) defeated Mrs. Elizabeth Bonthron (Hillendale), 5 and 4. Mrs. M. Bell (Baltimore Country Club) defeated Mrs. Richard Jackson (Elkridge), 4 and 3. Mrs. P. Godfrey (Congressional) defeated Mrs. Jeanette Myers (Suburban), 1 up. Mrs. Walter Stokes (Manor) defeated Miss Mary Ann Downy (Baltimore Country Club), 3 and 1. Mrs. Richard Kreuzberg (Kenwood) defeated Miss June Vogel (Rolling Road), 4 and 3. Mrs. T. E. Schluderberg (Baltimore Country Club) defeated Mrs. Rex Howard (Kenwood), 5 and 4. Marie Walper (Prince Georges) defeated Mrs. Margery Trouchaud (Annapolis Roads), 3 and 2.

Second Flight—Mrs. John Long (Indian Spring) defeated Mrs. Roderick Watson (Manor), 1 up 20 holes. Mrs. W. J. Flather, jr. (Chevy Chase) defeated Mrs. Frank Mirth (Kenwood), 4 and 3. Mrs. P. Menoher (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. G. E. Peterson (Kenwood), 3 and 2. Mrs. H. H. Goodman (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. R. E. Zuber (Manor), 1 up. Mrs. W. F. Peterson (Elkridge) defeated Mrs. E. V. Brunfiel (Kenwood), 6 and 5; Mrs. Paul Costello (Indian Spring) defeated Mrs. Ed. Widmayer (Kenwood), 2 and 1. Mrs. O. L. Young (Prince Georges) defeated Mrs. C. W. Hoffrogge (Prince Georges), 6 and 5. Mrs. T. Peyser (Woodmont) defeated Mrs. P. Hollander (Kenwood), 6 and 5.

Third Flight—Mrs. E. R. Ferguson (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. A. A. Morrill (Kenwood), 1 up 20 holes. Mrs. E. B. Lockett (Kenwood) defeated Mrs. R. Hayman (Indian Spring), 5 and 4. Mrs. O. Coblentz (Rolling Road) defeated Mrs. Frank Dole (Congressional), by default. Mrs. E. Hanson (Congressional) defeated Mrs. E. Kreutzberg (Kenwood), 8 and 7. Mrs. W. S. Abell (Columbia), Mrs. H. Lacey (Manor), Mrs. G. Awalt (Columbia) and Mrs. V. E. House (Kenwood) drew byes.

Today's Pairings:

First Flight, 10:30 a. m.—Mrs. Richards vs. Mrs. Flick; 10:35—Mrs. Bell vs. Mrs. Godfrey; 10:40—Mrs. Stokes vs. Mrs. Kreuzberg; 10:45—Mrs. Schluderberg vs. Mrs. Walper.

Second Flight, 9:50 a. m.—Mrs. Long vs. Mrs. Flather, jr.; 9:55—Mrs. Menoher vs. Mrs. Goodman; 10:00—Mrs. Peterson vs. Mrs. Costello; 10:05—Mrs. Young vs. Mrs. Peyser.

Second Flight, 9:30 a. m.—Mrs. Hanson vs. Mrs. Abell; 9:35—Mrs. Coblentz vs. Mrs. Lacey; 9:40—Mrs. Lockett vs. Mrs. Awalt; 9:45—Mrs. Ferguson vs. Mrs. House.

Two Horse Shows Sunday

Horse show fans and exhibitors are again faced with making some sort of arbitrary decision as to where to exhibit on Sunday. The Marlboroor HuntClub Horse Show, Suitland, Md., and the Mount Vernon (Va.) Lions Club second annual horse show are both scheduled for July 13.

The Marlboro, event licensed by the Association of Maryland Horse Shows, gets under way at 10:30 a. m. at the J. B. Bland estate in Suitland, Md., with a fine prize list consisting of 14 events. Three classes are devoted to junior riders, four to jumpers and five to hunter events. Theer is a class for road hacks and a class limited to Marlboro Hunt Club members. Champions will be pinned in the hunter and jumper divisions.

The Mount Vernon Lions Club show is licensed by the Virginia Horse Shows Association and will benefit the Lions' sight conservation and relief fund. The show starts at 1 p. m. at the Beacon Airfield, which is located on United States Highway 1, three miles south of Alexandria.

A 12-class card with good cash prizes is offered. Hunters will show in six classes and jumpers in four, featured by the triple bar event.

Exhibitors are perplexed as to how a triple bar can be judged on performance and way of going as listed in the program, and are raising a questioning eyebrow at the stipulation that in case of two jump-offs "front and back ticks" are to be considered.

Al Weill Insists Hursey Make Weight for Bout

Rumors that Smuggy Hursey, local Negro middleweight, is having difficulty meeting the specified 155 pounds for his 10-round feature bout with Danny Kapilow at Griffith Stadium next Monday night brought a warning last night from Al Weill, manager of the New York welterweight.

Weill, who arrived here from New York where both fighters have been training, said he had heard that Hursey was heavy because of the layoff he was forced to take when he suffered a cut lip during a workout.

Kapilow's manager said, however, that this made no difference in the weight picture and emphasized that Hursey must be down to 155 pounds the day of the fight or else lose his $1000 forefeit.

Under the contract for the bout, both Hursey and Kapilow posted $1000 each with the D. C. Boxing Commission as a gurantee that they would make the specified weight which was demanded by Weill's fighter, who generally enters the ring at 147 pounds.

"If Hursey fails to make the weight," says Weill, "I will insist that the commission give us his check for $1000."

Kapilow reports here tonight and is scheduled to begin public workouts tomorrow at the Liberty Athletic Club, a day ahead of Hursey.

Baksi's Loss May Delay Shot Year

London, July 8 (AP).—Trainer Ray Arcel, arriving with Joe Baski tonight at London airport from Stockholm, said Baksi's defeat by Swedish Heavyweight Olle Tandberg "probably will delay us a year" in seeking a fight with Joe Louis.

"However, Joe is still young and has plenty of time," Arcel said, and added "sentiment had a lot to do" with Tandberg's win on points.

Mulloy, Talbert Top Spring Lake Field

Spring Lake, N. J., July 8 (U.P.).—Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., seeded second, and Billy Talbert of Wilmington, Del., ranked third, led the field into the second round of the annual Spring Lake Invitational Tennis Tournament today.

Mulloy, ranked third nationally, defeated Jeff Podesta of Montclair, N. J., 6—4, 6—2 in his opening round match while Talbert's victim was Campbell Gillespie of New York, 6—0, 7—5.

Top-seeded Frankie Parker of Los Angeles, who will be gunning for his tenth Spring Lake title, and fourth-seeded Ed Moylan of San Francisco will not see action until tomorrow.

Naiman's Triumphs, Retains League Lead

Naiman's Disc Shop retained its grip on first place in the Post-Industrial Baseball League by defeating Sunnybrook Tavern, 9-5, yesterday on the South Ellipse. Jello Lagos paced the Naiman's attack with three singles in four trips.

Americans Triumph, 2 to 1, On Stan Spence's Single

He sent the ball far into right field and Tommy Henrich gave the crowd a thrill when he all but lost his footing as he gave chase.

Henrich recovered to make a staggering catch and that was the ball game.

Manager Eddie Dyer threw 23 players into the fray in a futile attempt to avert the National League's tenth defeat in the 14 All-Star games to date. The American Leaguers used 17 players.

Blackwell and Newhouser breezed through the first three innings. The only hit allowed by the lacky righthanded Blackwell with his unorthodox flip was Joe DiMaggio's single to center that led off the second inning.

DiMaggio reached third with two out on a passed ball and a wild pitch, but Blackwell bore down to fan Joe Gordon for his fourth strikeout of the game.

Newhouser Fancy, Too

Newhouser's performance was even a fancier one. He hadn't allowed a hit until two were out in the third when Pinchhitter Bert Haas of the Reds singled to left. Newhouser got out of that one by striking out Harry Walker.

The American Leaguers muffed a scoring chance in the fourth after Williams doubled down the right field line with one out against Harry Brecheen, the second of four N. L. pitchers. DiMaggio grounded out and Boudreau beat out an infield hit, but Brecheen fanned McQuinn.

Native son Luke Appling of the White Sox moved in as a pinch hitter for Buddy Lewis against Southpaw Brecheen at the start of the sixth, and the applause had scarcely faded when he put the tying run on base with a single to left.

Williams drove a single to right for his second hit and Appling was on third with none out.

It was in a negative sort of way that the A. L. got the tying run at that point. Joe DiMaggio grounded into a Reese-Stanky-Mize double play, and Appling scurried home from third.

And then in the next inning, the 'Spence was terrific.

Top-Ranking Tennis Players Instructors at Playgrounds

One national titleholder and three former champions are included among the instructors for The Washington Post-Recreation Department tennis school which begins Saturday morning, 10 o'clock, at 18 playgrounds.

Gilbert Bogley, winner of the national boys crown last year and runnerup this season for the junior title, heads the list.

Former National Public Parks Champion Barney Welsh, who also holds a host of District titles; Don Leavens and Alfonso Smith, both former national boys champions, have also volunteered their services to all boys and girls under 19 years.

Assignment of instructors will be made today. Others added to the list yesterday are Capt. Jim Farrin, doubles champion of the Naval Academy, and Jim Thackara, who dethroned Welsh and District singles champion last week.

Hugh Lynch, recent winner of the City of Washington tournament, also will teach, as will John Curtiss, Bill Gifford, Austin Rice, Buddy Adair, Phil Neff, Lieut. Robert Boyer, Mrs. Willie Herbert, Miss Charlotte Decker and Bob Threadhill, all tournament veterans.

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON: WEDNESDAY, JULY 9, 1947

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

The Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday recommended additional funds for the War Department which would allow it to have 35,205 more civilian jobs than the House voted. About 3500 jobs in the proposed increase would be at headquarters in this city.

Kluttz

In addition, a rider was attached to the bill which would permit the department to replace up to 25,000 of its soldiers in civilian jobs with civilians, if the department is unable to recruit up to its proposed military strength of 1,700,000 officers and men.

The rider was approved after Chief of Staff Eisenhower wrote the committee an urgent last-minute letter in which he said:

"Should the War Department be unable to reach authorized military strength and be left without authority to hire civilians, the department would find itself in an untenable and desperate position." He went on to say that "so far as the War Department is concerned, civilians and soldiers alike are men."

In approving the military budget, the House made a reduction of 74,806 civilian jobs at a saving of $184,597,000. War officials appealed to the Senate committee to restore $104,275,000 to be used to continue 42,071 of the jobs. The committee recommended that 35,205 jobs be restored at a cost of $86,803,000, and it specified that the increases were to be in these three activities:

Overseas, 11,135; departmental in this city, 3548, and in this country outside of the headquarters staff, 20,521.

If the Senate committee's recommendation is eventually approved by Congress, upward of 30,000 employes who were given provisional dismissal notices will be called back to their jobs. The 30-day notices were given the employes on the basis of the House action. Most of the notices went out on June 16 to become effective on July 16. However, thousands of employes were given only two weeks' notice, and they haven't been working since July 1.

At headquarters here, dismissal notices would be canceled in the following offices:

Office of the Secretary of War, 274; Office of the Chief of Staff, 566; Adjutant General's Office, 860; Inspector General, 15; Chief of Finance, 113; Quartermaster General, 361; Transportation, 164; Chief Signal Officer, 125; Army Air Forces, 426; Surgeon General, 69; Engineers, 270; Ordnance, 260; Chemical Service, 32; Provost Marshal, 10, and Special Services, 3.

The House-approved budget would require the department to cut its headquarters staff down to 12,558 civilians. The Senate committee recommended an increase to 16,106, about the number of employes the department had on hand here June 30.

Moreover, the department had about 15,000 additional employes in and nearby this city in jobs classified as "field service." These jobs were at the Army Map Service, Bolling Field, Andrews Field, Fort Myer, Fort Belvoir, and other such activities. A substantial reduction in civilian personnel was ordered in those installations after the House acted. However, the Senate committee would restore some of the cuts.

WHITE HOUSE: Two former Senators, James Mead of New York, and Robert La Follette of Wisconsin, have been recommended by Labor Secretary Schwellenbach for possible appointment as director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, to be created under the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

On the list under consideration for appointment to the two additional seats on the National Labor Relations Board are William Wirtz, a Northwestern University professor who is a former chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board, and Ralph Seward, formerly of the War Labor Board, who is a General Motors labor arbitrator. Alex Fry, a member of the old regional War Labor Board in Philadelphia, is being boomed for general counsel of NLRB.

RETIREMENT—The Langer-Chavez-Stevenson retirement bill will be considered again today by the powerful House Rules Committee. It was given only a brief hearing yesterday as the House met an hour ealier than usual. The bill must get by this committee or else it hasn't a chance to be taken up by the House at this session of Congress.

PAY RAISES: A three-man subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee yesterday was appointed to study the Flanders-Baldwin bill to raise salaries of Cabinent members and other Federal officials. Members are Chairman Langer, Chavez of New Mexico, and Flanders of Vermont.

Meantime, a full committee meeting will be held Friday to take up the Gold Star mother bill. That measure would extend veterans perference to the widowed mothers of men who were killed in the military service.

Returning to the pay raise bill, the Civil Service Commission has asked the Senate committee to broaden it to include top-flight scientific, professional, and administrative people. It asked that the $10,000 Classification Act ceiling be raised to $15,000.

Centralized Rule Urged For District

Appropriations Unit Says Commissioners Should Control Agencies of City

The House Appropriations Committee believes the District Commissioners should be given more centralized control over the multiplicity of agencies that operate the local government.

The committee said so yesterday in reporting out the new District budget to Congress.

The Commissioners, who'd sold the appropriations committee on the idea, yesterday were already presenting a similar proposal before a special House subcommittee considering the reorganization of the District government.

Responsibility Divided

Point is that many local agencies are not responsible to the heads of the District government, i.e., the Board of Commissioners.

Major thorns on the local body politics are the altonomous boards of education, public welfare, and recreation, and the public library trustees, the Commissioners said.

These four important boards ought to be stripped of their administrative duties—which would be shifted to the Commissioners—and revised into advisory boards, perhaps with policy-making powers, the Commissioners believe.

But these four are only a beginning. There are the Mental Health Commission, Minimum Wage and Industrial Safety oBard, Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, Boxing Commission, Real Estate Commission, Anatomical Board, and Recorder of Deeds to name a few. These, the Commissioners feel, should come under their administration.

Autonomy Favored For Some

Others, with quasi-judicial or quasi-legislative functions, ought to be autonomous, acording to the Commissioners. This group would include the Public Utilities Commission, Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole, and Zoning Commission. It would also include the People's Council, but this office was elminated altogether by the House Appropriations Committee yesterday.

Agencies primarily dealing with affairs of the Federal Government should not be tied into the District government, the Commissioners said. In this category they listed the District Unemployment Compensation Board, National Guard, and National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The Commissioners had more to say on the subject, but the idea was the same: more control for the Commissioners over purely local functions—whether or not the District gets home rule from Congress.

Centralized Action Urged

The hearings of the House Subcommittee on District Appropriations, made public yesterday, disclosed the following opinion on the local situation by Chairman Walt Horan (R., Wash.):

"It is a wonder we have any government at all in the District because we have too many autonomous boards."

The House Appropriations Committee, however, also told the Commisioners to centralize some of their own authority.

Trouble is, says the committee, that the three Commissioners ought to act as a unit instead of dividing up their administrative work. It results in a division of authority, says the report.

Now Before House

Bill Tightens Funds Rule Of Auditor

Pilkerton Fowler

Auditor A. R. Pilkerton will gain a tighter grasp on the District's purse strings if the House passes the 1948 District Appropriation bill recommended to it yesterday.

In reporting the bill to the House, the Appropriations Committee recommended:

1. Do away with the Welfare Department's central business office. Set up, instead, a Comptroller of Public Assistance under the auditor to control welfare funds and make certain there is real need in relief cases.

2. Provide funds for the auditor to set up accounting systems recommended by the Comptroller General.

The bill also takes the power to allocate and reallocate funds among projects from Budget Officer Walter Fowler and places it in the hands of the department heads, subject to "general control" by the Commissioners.

Partial Defeat for Both

This provision was seen as a partial defeat for both Fowler, who sought to keep control over allocation, and Pilkerton, who wanted the power transferred to the auditor's office.

They clashed over the issue at least twice during closed hearings of the District Appropriations Subcommittee. The Commissioners generally supported Fowler's claims.

Pilkerton said yesterday he would "set up necessary accounts to control allocations" if and when the bill is passed. Funds for the accounting system recommended by the Comptroller General would give him "the machinery and tools to do it," he declared.

Wilding Has Different View

Deputy Budget Office William G. Wilding took a different view. "The provision gives over to every department head the authority to make allocation and reallocation of funds among his projects, subject merely to the general control of the Commisisoners," he said. "The auditor wouldn't have a thing to do with it."

Wilding said the budget office opposed the move because it would enable department heads to spend all funds appropriated to them, whether they needed them or not. "It would certainly destroy budget control," he added, "which in the past has accomplished savings for the District."

District budget officials said the provision was "somewhat unclear" and predicted the House would revise it before passing the bill.

Board Hears Views on Zone Law Changes

The Arlington County Board last night held a public hearing on 18 proposed amendments to the county zoning law.

About 35 Arlington residents appeared before the five-man board in the county courthouse and expressed their views in a meeting which began at 8 p.m. and ended at midnight.

Tentatively approved was an amendment permitting Arlington buildings to rise 75 feet high instead of the present 60 feet. The present limit of six stories was continued, however.

Action was deferred on an amendment concerning offstreet parking.

This amendment would provide that any commercial area, except corner lots 75 feet wide or less, shall provide 45 square feet of offstreet parking per front foot of property.

5148 Children Enrolled

The Prince Georges County Community Chest and Planning Council reported yesterday that 5148 boys and girls of the county are enrolled in 235 recreational and character building groups.

Congress Advises Gallinger To Cut De Luxe Free Service

The District Health Department was urged yesterday to reconsider "its present policy" of providing better service to charity patients at Gallinger Hospital than is provided paying patients in private hospitals.

The suggestion was made by the House Appropriations Committee in reporting out the District budget for fiscal 1948.

The committee pointed out that Gallinger is reputed to be one of the most modern and complete hospitals in the Nation, and "while it is desirable at all times to give the best service possible," the committee wondered about the advisibility of giving patients a higher level of service free than they could get by paying for it.

Because the committee feels it cannot approve continued extension of the variety and type of medical attention given Gallinger patients, it reduced by $333,000, the budget estimate of the institution. However, the appropriation it approved, $3,450,000, is $300,000 over this year's.

The committee commented it was not satisfied with the admitting system at the hospital and expressed the belief all patients admitted do not come within the indigent or emergency classification.

Glenn Dale Tuberculosis Sanatorium was provided $1,600,000, an increase of $190,000, permitting an expansion of personnel. The committee pointed out the institution has in recent years never suffered from a lack of funds, but only from a shortage of personnel due to hiring difficulties.

A request for $170,000 to construct an apartment house for medical officers at Glenn Dale was turned down.

The health budget includes $355,000 for medical charities, an increase of $100,000 over the budget estimate. The $100,000 was added by the committee "in all fairness" to Children's Hospital, which, it was disclosed during hearings, matched from its own sources each dollar put up by the District for patients sent to the hospital for treatment.

The overall health budge calls for $7,857,000, an increase of $875,000 over last year but a decrease of $334,000 under the budget estimates.

11 Millions Favored for D. C. Welfare

Budget Approved By House Group Carries $1,039,224 Increase Over 1947

An appropriation of $11,247,300 for the District's Department of Public Welfare—$1,039,224 more than the 1947 appropriation—has been recommended to Congress by the House Appropriations Committee.

Sliced off the proposed budget, however, is $400,000 which the department had requested for construction of a new industrial training school at Laurel, to replace the existing "firetrap" structure on Wisconsin ave.

The committee, which stated it recognized "the need for closer fiscal controls . . . in the making of grants of public assistance," abolished the Welfare Department's business office and proposed an Office of Comptroller of Public Assistance. This office would be responsible for "instituting acceptable audit controls, including investigation of need."

Day Care Centers

The committee report, while approving a $150,000 appropriation for continuation of day care centers under the Welfare Department, fixed a "ceiling" on parents or guardians who may send children to such centers. They must not have a gross income exceeding $2000.

Miss Glady H. Cook, president of the Board of Advisors of Day Care Centers, Inc., stated that probably a large number of borderline cases of persons earning between $2000 and $2500 will be affected by the ruling.

The committee increased the appropriation requested for agency services from $3,110,400 to $3,179,000.

Ray L. Huff, director of the Public Welfare Department, said yesterday in commenting on the committee report:

"The obvious intent is to improve the business operations and to strengthen the children's services. This is all to the good. We will need more time to study the report before making a further statement."

St. Elizabeth's Funds Cut

Reorganization of the business functions of the Welfare Department, as proposed by the House committee, would have the effect of placing responsibility for instituting acceptable audit controls, "including investigation of need," with the auditor of the District, working in cooperation with the director of Public Welfare, "during the next ensuing months of the fiscal year."

This system of control was recommended by the committee "until such time as a more satisfactory administration and control is set up."

The House appropriations Committee cut $229,000 off the estimates of money needed for St. Elizabeths Hospital. The cut was recommended, the committee explained, "in anticipation of a promised survey of the immates in the institution who can be discharged as obligations of the District of Columbia. The proper authorities are urged by the committee to make this necessary survey immediately."

Hearings held on terms of the welfare appropriation, made public yesterday for the first time, revealed that Ray L. Huff, Welfare Department Director, had come in for criticism from Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), of the House Appropriations Committee which considered the welfare budget.

Horan questioned Welfare Department and District government witnesses on whether Huff had applied for a reclassification of his rating and salary following transfer of some welfare functions to the Department of Corrections. Huff is rated as a P-8.

Huskiest Baby Sitter Finds Boys Tough

Boston (U.P.). — Boston's huskiest baby sitter is George Ramacorti, a 235-pound tackle on the Boston University football team.

Ramacorti, a former day laborer and bomb loader for the army, said those jobs weren't bad at all, "but this baby-sitting is really a tough one."

"They frighten me stiff," he said. "The little ones, I mean. I'm afraid when I pick them up they'll break in two."

Ramacorti finds little girls easier to handle than boys.

"The little girls only want you to tell them a story when they go to sleep just as nice as you please," he said. "But the boys—oh, golly! They really can kick up a fuss. As soon as they hear I'm a football player, they want to get down with me on the floor and try out a few tackles or blocks."

Diphtheria on Rise

Chicago (U.P.).—Dr. Franklin Top, Detroit, reported to the Illinois State Medical Society that a slight rise in diphtheria cases has been noticed around the world. He said the success in preventing the disease during the last 20 years "has had a lulling effect on some communities with a resultant lukewarmness in prevention."

Veteran Comes Back

Fitchburg, Mass. (U.P.).—When Hose 3, a 32-year-old fire truck, was wrecked in an accident, it was replaced by a 33-year-old truck which previously had been retired from service.

Fort Drum, D. C. Anti-Aircraft Defense Point, Giving Way for Neighborhood Playground

Fort Drum—built to protect Washington during World War II—is being torn down to make way for a neighborhood playground.

The fort, which consists of seven barracks-type buildings, was erected to house part of the Military District of Washington antiaircraft defense.

The wooden structures are located on Bald Eagle Hill at the end of Nichols ave. sw. on a high point overlooking the Potomac.

Yesterday workmen of the General Wrecking Co., Brentwood rd. and W st. ne., began tearing down the buildings—all except one which will be used as a recreation center.

The 26-acre tract on the picturesque hill, located almost on the Maryland line, was purchased in the thirties by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission for $14,108.

For several years it was used by the District Tuberculosis Association as a summer camp for children. In World War II it was chosen for part of the anti-aircraft defenses ringing the District. The War Department gave it the Fort Drum title.

After the war, it was turned over to the Naval Research Laboratory for the storage of experimental equipment and captured enemy equipment.

Now it will be graded and new topsoil developed preliminary to the District Recreation Department taking over. The department plans to lay out a baseball diamond and equip the spot with playground equipment for the rapidly growing population of the area, according to Milo F. Christiansen, District recreation director.

Then it will again be known as Bald Eagle Hill.

Congress Votes Revenue Bill

nue estimates by $3,067,210. To cover that deficit, and still provide for urgent building needs, the bill calls for the city to sell as much as is needed from the $3,698,307 worth of securities held in the city's postwar building investment fund.

Other Funds in Sound Shape

Horan's report made clear the city's two other funds were in sound shape. In the highway fund, the bill called for spending $9,145,900 against $9,148,485 revenue in sight. For the water fund the spending figure is $5,566,000 and the revenue figure $5,960,511.

The combined spending total, $95,930,310 was $10,227,962.84 more than the city spent in the fiscal year which ended last week. It also was a boost of $137,510 more than the Commissioners' budget estimates.

Although this increase was small, the bill meant a big shift in the original Commissioners' proposals—an increase of more than three million for general fund spending, and a cut of about the same amount for proposed water fund outlays. This traced back, mostly to Congress' decision in the city revenue bill against a program of Federal loans to finance enlargement of the city water system. Instead of loans, Congress decided to boost water revenue by a one-million-dollar annual Federal payment, and $800,000 from a 25-per-cent boost in present rates.

Water Program Deferred

Water officials told Congress one effect of not getting loans was that the water expansion program would be put back one full year.

In other major budget decisions recommended by Horan's group, the House Appropriations Committee approved:

1. The bigest budget the schools have ever had, about 25 per cent of the city's entire spending program. The school funds, including money to pay the new higher salaries which became law Monday, totaled $24,484,250, or nearly five million more than the Commissioners had asked.

2. A $6,084,000 fund for the Metropolitan Police, $160,000 less than the Commissioners' asked. The cutback spells about a 40 per cent reduction in the 111 additional police the city had asked. In the police money is $174,000 for a new precinct station at 42nd st. and Benning rd. ne.

3. For the Fire Department, $3,759,000, including $114,600 for new fire engine house sites, one at 49th and E. Capitol sts., the other at 24th and Irving sts. se.

Health Department Cut

4. For the Health Department, a total of $7,857,000, trimmed down $334,000 below what the Commissioners asked. Money was granted for a mass tuberculosis case-finding survey, and a cancer control project here. Glenn Dale got money for 49 more employes, but none of the $170,000 wanted for a doctor's apartment building. Gallinger was trimmed back $333,000, but $2,783,000 approved was $300,000 more than the hospital had for 1947.

5. For the Welfare Department, funds were cut to $11,247,390. This was $2,538,236 below the money for last year and $609,500 below the Commissioners' budget. Biggest cut was $400,000 asked to build a new Industrial Home School at Laurel, Md. A total of $150,000 was approved to continue the city's day-care centers for children through another year, with a proviso that they can be used only by children whose family has an income below $2000 a year.

6. Committee aides said funds were included in the Highway Department appropriation to let the city build its own asphalt plant for about $135,000 and to operate the city's highway materials testing laboratory. For the second project it was pointed out Congress would have to repeal its decision of last year ordering the District to dispose of the testing laboratory.

Other appropriations in the bill included:

General administration, $466,600; fiscal service, $1,327,550; employe compensation and retirement funds, $1,715,000; debt service, $70,000; regulatory agencies, $931,450.

Horan's report urged the recorder of deeds' office to modernize operations immediately by changing from typed records to photographic recording. A bill to make photographic recording legal is pending in the House District Committee. Typewriter recording is now required by law. At the same time funds for the office were cut from $217,900 to $175,000.

Libraries to Increase Staffs

Washington's public libraries were granted $1,154,600, including money for 50 more full time positions to let the Public Library and major branches continue 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. hours six days a week. This schedule was started nearly three months ago with deficiency funds. In addition, library officials said the extra help might permit opening the central library 2 p. m. to 6 p. m. on Sundays.

Other funds included $1,275,800 for recreation; $107,100 for veterans' services; $2,300,000 for police and firemen's relief; $1,851,800 for courts; $2,550,000 for the Corrections Department; $68,600 for the National Guard; $1,500,000 for parks; $73,300 for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission; $455,400 for the Zoo; $3,738,700 for the Refuse Division; and $5,065,000 for the Sewer Division.

Italy Repairing Damaged Churches

Vatican City (U.P.).—The pontifical commission for sacred art reported that 1912 churches, 261 buildings dedicated to religious purposes and 672 social relief buildings have been rebuilt or restored at the expense of the Italian government.

Msgr. Giovanni Costantini, president of the commission, reported that reconstruction of war-damaged church property from July, 1945, to February 28, 1947, includes replacement of 13,000 church bells and estimated it would take 26 foundries four years to cast them.

Truman Gets Measure on Parole Board

A bill to give Washington's Parole Board one full-time salaried member cleared Congress yesterday.

Final action came with House acceptance of Senate changes. The bill now goes to the White House. The changes say the Parole Board chairman should be one of the two unpaid members, and that an individual can have counsel at a hearing on revoking his parole.

Also cleared by the House and forwarded to the President was a bill to permit erecting an Andrew W. Mellon memorial fountain near the National Gallery of Art.

The House sent the proposed Washington anti-gun-totting bill to conference. Representatives Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) John J. Allen, jr. (R., Calif.) and Thomas G. Abernathy (D., Miss.) were named to discuss it with Senate members.

The House voted to keep the offense of carrying concealed wapons without a permit a misdemeanor, but give police authority to search for weapons on probable cause and without the warrant they now need. The Senate decided the offense should be a flony, giving police the same power to search for weapons without a warrant, that they have in other felonies.

Senator John S. Cooper (R., Ky.) sponsored the Senate plan. He opposed letting police search without warrants in misdemeanors, arguing it would open the way for similar searches in offenses like traffic violations.

House Group Drops Funds For D. C. People's Counsel

John O'Dea was threatened with loss of his job as new District ePople's Counsel yesterday. The Houe Appropriations Committee said the office should be abolished and withheld funds for it.

O'Dea

The decision was announced in the committee report on the District Budget Bill.

The Committee said it had decided from O'Dea's testimony about his work of presenting the public in cases before the Public Utilities Commission that the job was "an unnecessary expense to the taxpayers".

The Committee said the PUG "has by and large done an excellent job" of protecting the public against excessive public utility rates.

The report also cited O'Dea's testimony, made public yesterday, that if the present PUC "had not done such a fine job in regulating and supervising the utilities, I would have had a great deal more to do".

O'Dea also said many people were misled by his title and did not understand that his job was limited to public utility matters.

"Of all the people who are calling me up," O'Dea said, "many of them want to make depositions, they want to get their belongings out of rooming houses or they want me to read deeds to property."

He said his salary was $9376.50 and that the job was established in 1926.

The Committee also cited testimony that many organized groups had used their own lawyers rather than O'Dea in PUC cases.

The Committee also dropped funds for O'Dea's secretary.

O'Dea is a former assistant corporation counsel.

Larger D. C. Police Force Approved by House Group

Budget Cut $131,000 Despite Pleas for More Funds to Fight Crime, 'Rebellion'

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday voted to give the Nation's Capital more police protection, but lopped $160,000 off estimated Metropolitan Police Department needs.

The Police Department requested a manpower increase of 111 over the present authorized strength of 1739. The committee agreed that more police were needed, but in effect went along only 60 per cent of the way with the department's request for a larger force.

The appropriations cut was voted in face of two warnings made in closed hearings on the D. C. budget, it was disclosed yesterday.

Man Needed for 'Revolt'

He said:

"In my experience this department has never had enough policemen to properly patrol the city. . . . We cannot hope to provide the protection to the citizens of the District that they have a right to expect, unless we are afforded he necessary personnel and equipment."

The other warning came from Representative Karl Stefan (R., Neb.), a member of the subcommittee on District appropriations. He asserted that spies from all over the world were concentrating in Washington, "formenting trouble of every kind." Their objective, he insisted, "is the overthrow of our Government by force and violence." He added:

"When this effort to overthrow our Government by force and violence jells, Washington, D. C. the world's capital and our National Capital, will be the focal point for first attack.

"For that reason, we have got to give more and more importance to the efficiency and the effectiveness of a police here."

Funds Boosted 1/3 Million

Altogether, the new budget, effective as of July 1, eight days ago, provides $6,084,000 for police activities, or a third of a million dollars more than the 1946-47 appropriation. Of the amount, $5,900,000 is for salaries and expenses.

The committee allowed $24,000 for the added cost of construction of a new precinct station, No. 11, at 42d st. and Benning rd. se. This precinct covers 17 square miles and contains 100,00 population.

In its report to the House, the committee strongly indorsed the plan of Maj. Robert Barrett, new police chief, to place more men on beats in order to become better acquainted with the citizens and children they serve.

Hits Excessive Child Arrests

The committee also called to the attention of the Police Department the eagerness which some officers seem to show in apprehending teen-agers for minor infractions of city ordinances and sending them to the receiving home. The committee said:

"It seems to the committee that rather than breed resentment in these youngsters, which their action undoubtedly does, the officers in such instances might communicate with the parents before taking such radical steps."

Fire Alarm Transfer, '48 Budget Aproved

Transfer of the District fire alarm system from the city's electrical division to the fire department was approved by the House Appropriations Committee.

The committee, however, ordered the District Commissioners, who made the transfer last winter, to keep "careful scrutiny" of the efficiency and economy of the change.

Hearings before the committee, made public yesterday, show that Fire Chief Clement Murphy testified that the transfer would save the city money; H. A. Friede, former superintendent of fire alarms and present chief of emergency communications, testified the transfer would cost more money.

The fire department was granted a budget of $3,759,000 for the fiscal year, 1948, including $128,000 to operate the fire alarm system. The committee allowed $13,500 to purchase a new pumping engine to replace an ancient piece of equipment, but turned down a request for a second pump. Request for replacement of two of the fire chief's three cars was deferred by the committee.

More Children Neglected

There has been a "tremendous increase" in parental neglect cases here, according to Juvenile Court Judge Fay Bentley.

Her testimony before the House Subcommittee on District Approprations disclosed yesterday, shows that non-support cases filed in the last half of 1946 numbered 3677, or an increase of 1233 over the same period the preceding year.

The Juvenile Court's request for $231,500—more than $44,000 over last year's budget—was approved by the House Apporiations Committee yesterday.

Lane Orders Probe Of Veterans' Agency

Annapolis, Md., July 8 (AP).—Governor Lane today ordered a complete survey of books and accounts for the last five years of the Maryland Veterans Commission.

In directing State Auditor Daniel L. Clayland to maks the probe, the Governor referred to a resolution adopted by the House of Delegates, which declared that operating and administrative outlays of the commission appeared "exceedingly excessive."

At the same time Lane named an investigating commission of three men to study the auditor's report.

The Chief Executive said his action was taken in compliance with the resolution, sponsored by Delegates John W. Valis (D., Balto. 2d) and Oliver R. Guyther (D., St. Marys).

Named to the investigating commission were Alexander K. Hancock of Takoma Park, Paul Sullivan (3320 Elmora ave.) and Francis J. Valle (23 E. Ostend st.) of Baltimore.

Hancock, an auditor and Montgomery County comptroller, was designated chairman.

The House resolution stated that about $75,000 is budgeted for the veterans' relief fund annually, but commission operating expenses were about $53,000 a year.

Lions Elect Officers

Purcellville, Va., July 8.—Gene Newkirk has been elected president of the Purcellville Lions Club.

Other new officers are Walter E. Kemp, jr., vice president; W. R. Murray, secretary; J. H. Grubb, treasurer; Robert Brower, lion tamer, and A. M. Janney, tail twister.

Directors are William Whitmore, Clarence Hall, Otto Noll, Robert Darnell, and W. Curtis Wilson.

Barracks Contract Let

Warrenton, Va., July 8 (AP).—Plans for construction of barracks and mess facilities for 500 men at Vint Hill Farms, near here, at a cost of $948,200, and award of the contract to Laburnum Construction Company, of Richmond, were announced today.

The new buildings presumably will be used to house Signal Corps troops in training at Vint Hill Farms, which was used as a secret training installation during the war.

The barracks will be two stories high, approximately 30 feet wide, and of a new type developed by the corps of engineers. The project will be supervised by the Washington Army Engineers' district.

Clifton Farm Sold

Orange, Va., July 8.—Clifton Farm, known as the old Scott property, 6 miles south of Orange off Route 15, was sold this week by Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Schneider to Harry T. Peters, jr., of Washington for $65,000.

The farm includes two tracts of land, one known as "Clifton," 237 acres, and the other as the "Hollow," 185 acres, making a total of 422 acres. Mr. and Mrs. Schneider bought the property about four years ago. They are returning to Washington.

Plane Pilot Dies

Annapolis, Md., July 8 (AP).—William J. Baldree, 38, pilot of a light plane that crashed in woods near here Sunday, died last night, but his companion, James Davidson, 32, of Bowie, was described as in "satisfactory" condition at Annapolis Emergency Hospital today. The hospital said Baldree's death was caused by internal injuries. Davidson was under treatment for a fractured arm.

Hit-Run Driver Sought

Winchester, Va., July 8.—State police are looking for a hit-and-run driver who struck E. C. Foreman of Gore late Saturday night as he was walking along the highway. Foreman's condition was reported as serious today.

1 Tract; 2 Appraisals

Annapolis, Md., July 8 (AP).—Two different appraisals of a 125-acre property Baltimore City seeks to acquire as part of the proposed municipal airport site at Friendship Church were introduced in Anne Arundel County Circuit Court today.

Harry U. Riepe, jr., city appraiser, estimated the tract as worth $16,600.

Charles F. Lee, Annapolis real estate man, set the value at $19,840.

Both testified for the city in its condemnation suit involving land owned by Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Sachs and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Sachs. It is situated one and one-half miles southwest of Shipley.

Training Ship Arrives

Charleston, W. Va., July 8 (AP). After a 1690-mile trip from New Orleans, the LCI 1053 nosed into its wharf at the foot of Capitol st. yesterday for a public inspection before settling down as a permanent training ship for the Charleston Naval Reserve.

The vessel actually arrived at old Lock 6, her future home, on July 3, but the parade up the Kanawha River to the Capitol street landing was delayed until noon yesterday.

Lieut. Edgar E. Lambert, executive officer on the trip from New Orleans, said the long haul up the flooded Mississippi produced no unusual incidents.

Church Meeting Set

Charlottesville, Va., July 8.—Representatives of 47 Virginia churches will attend the fiftieth annual session of the Piedmond Assembly, Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), to be held at Assembly Park near Gordonsville July 21 to August 3.

The first tabernacle on the assembly site was dedcated in the summer of 1897 by the late Dr. William Henry Book. The 47 churches represent a total membership of nearly 6000, an increase of 100 over the previous year.

Bridge Permit Asked

Richmond, Va., July 8 (AP).—The State Highway Department has forwarded to the district Army Engineer's Office at Norfolk a formal application to the War Department for permission to erect a low-level drawspan across the York River between Yorktown and Gloucester Point.

A public hearing on the bridge application is expected to be scheduled at the "earliest possible moment," probably in Williamsburg, highway bridge officials said.

Since the department previously had been issued a permit for a high-level structure, there was little likelihood that the application for a low-level span would be opposed. The Navy Department recently dropped its objections to a low-level bridge.

Apple Price Uncertain

Winchester, Va., July 8.—First Transparent apples were arriving at local packing houses today, but until the first sales are negotiated local apple men declined to comment on what the Winchester apples will command. H. W. Butler said that there had been little demand so far, as compared with last year, when packers had standing advance orders at $2.75 a bushel.

The early apples are reported of good size and quality. Spot picking of Duchess apples is expected to begin by the end of next week, Butler said.

Cherry Crop Small

Winchester, Va., July 8.—Frederick County harvested only about 40 per cent of a normal cherry crop this season, according to L. H. Stockdale, fruit buyer for the Zeropack Co. He said most of the company's pack came from Berkeley and Jefferson counties in West Virginia, where orchardists saved their crop from the May freezes by using smudge pots.

He said the local plant would likely finish its cherry and raspberry pack in another week. With the release of sugar, housewives have made a heavier demand than usual on cherries for home canning, Stockdale said.

Interest Low at 8 a. m.

Baltimore, July 8 (AP).—Baltimoreans are interested in learning about marriage and related subjects, but not, it seems, to the point where they will have to get up in time to attend an 8 a. m. class.

Hundreds had expressed interest in a six-week course on marriage, which was to have opened yesterday at the junior college extension of the Veterans Institute.

When the 8 a. m. starting time was announced, enthusiasm dwindled, institute officials said.

There were not enough students to form the class.

So plans were held in abeyance, and the institute may try again in September—if a period later in the day can be arranged.

Camps Scheduled

Salisbury, Md., July 8 (AP).—The Peninsula Methodist Conference will operate two summer camps for boys and girls from the Salisbury, Easton, Dover and Wilmington districts.

A camp for Easton and Wilmington youth will operate July 14-19, and Salisbury and Dover juniors will camp from July 20 through July 25.

Spankings Have Their Uses, He Says

All Frederick Is Getting Into Historical Act

Frederick, Md., July 8 (Special).—This historical town will relive its past, and almost everyone is getting into the act.

The mayor, board of aldermen, bankers, merchants and industrialists today signed on as actors to reproduce in motion pictures the $200,000 Confederate levy of 83 years ago under threat to burn and sack the town.

Members of the Frederick Junior Chamber of Commerce, attired as Confederate cavalry, will whoop it up through the streets to the Frederick Savings Institution, where a pseudo Gen. Jubal Early will demand the town ransom.

Script for the historical doings is documented in Frederick City records and supplemented by minutes of directors' meetings of the banks here during the Civil War.

After the ransom payment, the scene will shift to the restored home of Barbara Fritchie, where troops will pass in front of her door as she defies them for benefit of the camera.

Also commemorated tomorrow will be the Battle of Monocacy, credited by General Grant with having saved Washington, D. C. for the Union. It was there that Gen. Lew Wallace, who later wrote "Ben Hur," fought a delaying action that permitted reinforcements to move up in defense of the Capital.

The program is under sponsorship of the local Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Poultry Meeting Slated

Orange, Va., July 8.—R. G. Cowherd of Gordonsville, chairman of the Orange County Poultry Committee, will preside at a summer school and demonstration of poultry management and egg quality grading to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Woolfolk, near Thornhill, Thursday from 10 a. m. to 3:30 p. m.

Speakers on the program include H. H. Keiter from the Division of Markets, Harrisonburg, who will speak on the "Necessity of Quality Production"; Orange County Agent John Estes and Marshall Coe of V. P. I., Blacksburg, on "Fowl Pox Vaccination," and Allan McLearon and Marshall Coe, who will have "Culling" as their subject. Free lunch will be served at noon.

Children's Hour Slated

Herndon, Va., July 8.—A Children's Hour at the Herndon Library, sponsored by the Fortnightly Club, will be held each Wednesday during July and August from 10 a. m. to noon. Mrs. Richard Babcock is in charge.

IOOF Lodge Of Va. Elects Norfolk Man

Roanoke, Va., July 8 (AP).—Officers of the grand lodge and the Rebekah assembly were elected this afternoon during the second day's session of the convention of the grand lodge of Virginia, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, at Hotel Roanoke.

Grand lodge officers elected were Cecil Jones, Norfolk, grand master; Leslie G. Hillman, Luray, deputy grand master; R. B. Hogan, Richmond, grand warden; T. Wiley Davis, jr., Richmond. Grand secretary; John M. Lancaster, Richmond, grand treasurer, and the Rev. James W. Gardner, Clifton Forge, grand chaplain.

Rebekah assembly officers are Mrs. Blanche Clements, Lynchburg, president; Mrs. Madeline Kiser, Dig Stone Gap, vice president; Mrs. Margaret Hillman, Richmond, warden; Mrs. Blanche L. Sheets, Clifton Forge, secretary, and Miss Gladys M. Alexander, Richmond, treasurer.

Robert B. Hogan, Richmond, was elected president of the board of trustees of the grand lodge this afternoon. Other officers of the board elected were C. C. Leap, Waynesboro, first vice president; W. Clifton Cunningham, Alexandria, second vice president, and T. Wiley Davis, jr., Richmond, secretary-treasurer.

Soviet Reports Big Rise In Clothing, Fuel Output

Moscow, July 8 (U.P.).—Important increases in production of clothing, fuel, building materials, basic industrial machinery and transport were reported today by the state planning commission.

The figures showed an average 34.5 per cent increase in textile and woolen fabrics, coal production up 11 per cent, oil 18, natural gas 23, electric power 15. Basic materials for all industrial recovery also showed gains—pig iron 12 per cent, steel 8, rolled steel 18, railroad rails 27, iron pipes 12, copper 8, zinc 5 and lead 33.

3 Fined for Gambling

Princess Anne Courthouse, Va., July 8 (AP).—Three men arrested at the Dunes Club at Virginia Beach on charges of violating State gambling laws drew fines and two-month jail sentences when they pleaded guilty in Princess Anne Trial Justice Court. Justice J. Davis Reed suspended the jail sentences.

Otis Lee was fined $400, Joseph Gorman $100 and Frank M. McCracken $150. Similar charges against Arthur Gwyn Thomas, who was arrested at the Dunes Club with the other men, were nolle prossed on motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Paul Ackiss.

Read Less, Spank More, Parents Told

An educator advocated "a good spanking" and less reliance on child-training books yesterday before 150 persons attending the three-day meeting of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers.

The teacher, Thomas A. Van Sant, director of adult education of Baltimore public schools, said that when a child runs across the road "what he needs is a good spanking across the bottom."

He declared parents are often "too democratic" with their children as a result of avidly following child-training literature.

"One Great Mistake"

"That is one great mistake," Van Sant said. "Parents look for ready-made solutions to their problems and do not face each problem on its own merits."

Van Sant's views were opposed by other members of a panel on "Are We, As Parents, Failing Our Children?" Mrs. Myron Brock of the College Park, Md., P-TA said parents should be "democratic" with their children and explain the reasons for requests.

Another parent, Mrs. C. M. Wright of the Sherwood P-TA of Sandy Spring declared that "children should be encouraged to talk things over with their parents." She said such a relationship would result in cooperation without resorting to physical discipline.

Other participants in the forum were Mrs. James C. Matheny of the Greenbelt P-TA and Mrs. Helen Cooper of the Kensington Junior High School P-TA, who acted as chairman of the discussion.

Held at U. of Md.

At the morning meeting, held at the University of Maryland, Mrs. Robert G. Doty of Cumberland, president of the Maryland Congress of Parents and Teachers, reported the group now has 41,000 members, an increase of 34 per cent over the previous year.

The vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, Mrs. Albert L. Gardner, said that "parents should require of the teacher higher standards of qualification, just as the teacher looks to the parents to promote his cause in securing higher pay."

The conferees, most of whom are staying in the college dormitories, will attend lectures, study groups and social events today and tomorrow.

Reds Backing Wallace Move, Berle Says

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Adolph A. Berle, jr., one the pioneer Roosevelt brain-trusters, said at the White House yesterday that Communists were behind the movement for a third party.

He said that the Communists were backing Henry A. Wallace and agitating for a third party to "punish" President Truman for bucking Russia in the diplomatic field. A third party that would split the Democratic Party, he said, could have only one result: a sweeping Republican victory.

Mr. Berle, former Ambassador to Brazil and before that Assistant Secretary of State, talked New York State politics with President Truman for a half hour. The purpose of his call, he told reporters later, was to find a few people in the Democratic Party with whom liberals like himself can work in preparation for '48.

Doesn't Care for Wallace

Berle, who is State chairman of the Liberal Party in New York, said:

"The bulk of the liberal vote which was the margin that elected Mr. Roosevelt does not think highly of Mr. Wallace or his third party movement. It is seeking a common ground with the liberal elements of the Democratic Party."

In listing other organizations that shared the attitude of his own Liberal Party toward Wallace and a third party, Berle mentioned the American Veterans Committee, the AFL International Ladies Garment Workers, and "20 or 30 other" groups.

"We are not in favor of a third party movement which divides liberals solely with the result of putting in isolationist Republicans," Berle said. "We think that comes largely from foreign influences."

Communists Back Wallace

He said that the Progressive Citizens of America and the American Labor Party, which are backing Wallace and talking about a third party, had strong Communist cliques. Asked specifically why his kind of liberals were opposed to Wallace, Berle said:

"A good many of them have respect for Wallace's humanitarian ideas. But the only result of that movement would be to split up the Democratic Party and give control to the kind of people who have controlled the Eightieth Congress. This Congress has a consistent record for working for special interests, beginning with meat and winding up with the income tax bill."

Didn't the third party advocates know as well as he did what the result would be? Berle was asked.

"We're in doubt about Henry himself," Berle replied. "This all started on 13th st. in New York, the headquarters of the Communist Party. They know exactly what they're doing. They are punishing Mr. Truman for bucking them diplomatically."

In Memoriam

BECKER, GEORGE H., JR. In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Pfc. GEORGE H. BECKER, JR., who passed away three years ago, on Saipan, July 9, 1944.

If all the world were ours to give,
We would give it, yes and more
To see the face of you, George,
Come smiling through the door.

Taft Promises Visit

Romulos' Reception Honors Emmet O'Neals

By Elizabeth Maguire

THE NEW United States Ambassador to the Philippines and Mrs. Emmet O'Neal were honored yesterday at a reception given by Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, representative of the Philippines to the U.N., and Mrs. Romulo. The envoy's two daughters, Mary and Lydia O'Neal, were also guests.

The O'Neals plan to sail for their new home about the middle of August. The daughters are Vassar graduates.

The hours, from 5 to 8, gave guests extra time to come and go, and relieved congestion considerably. Senator Robert A. Taft, whose father, William Howard Taft, was first Civil Governor of the Philippines, stopped by to say farewell to the O'Neals. As he waved goodby at the door, he said "I'll be out in a year."

And Suitable for Frame

The General has framed in his study a statement made by Gen. Douglas MacArthur when he heard Corregidor had fallen. It is in MacArthur's handwriting and was handed to Genetal Romulo for the press. The final sentence is "I shall always seem to see a vision of green, gaunt, ghastly men, stil unafraid."

General Romulo served as MacArthur's aide-de-camp during the war. When he came to America in 1943 General MacArthur was questioned about his identity. On a silver plaque Romulo has engraved the words of General MacArthur's reply ". . . he is a living symbol of Bataan and Corregidor—of those heroic Filipinos who died unquestionably for the stars and stripes."

Two Sons Present

THE hosts two sons, Mike and Gregory, expert guerrila fighters, were at the party yesterday.

At the punch bowl stood one of Manilla's loveliest, Miss Pacing La O. She is visiting here with her mother until Chirstmas.

Most of the ladies at the fete were a new adaptation of the terno. Their dresses are in one piece with zippers down the back, in place of the two-piece terno. Butterfly sleeves rather than panuelos are the rags. In fact there is a flutter in Manila fashion columns these days whether dresses should be with panuelos or panueloless.

Mrs. Victor Buencamino, a visitor from the Philippines, wore a panuelo with her dress. She chatted with Mrs. Maurice Kahn, who had recently heard two different views from friends in the Philippines. One held that everything was hopeless, another that everything is wonderful. "If you look straight ahead, you will see everything lovely," she said, "but if you look down, you see the ruins."

The Ambassador of the Philippines, Joaquin M. Elizalde, dropped by, looking tan and fit from golfing. He talked with Mr. and Mrs. Herman Scholtz of Warrenton, and Representative and Mrs. Estes Kefauver. Others in the gathering were Miss Trophy Ocampo, who did courageous underground work for her country during the war, the Minister of the Philippines and Mrs. Ramos, and Mrs. S. V. Arnaldo.

Still others included Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ely, Representative and Mrs. Karl Stefan, Walter Maloney, Keen Johnson, former Governor of Kentucky and Mrs. Johnson, and Naval Attache of the Siamese Embassy and Mme. Abhakora.

Miss Brauker Becomes Bride Of Mr. Duvall

Making their home in Cottage City, Md., following a short honeymoon are Mr. and Mrs. George P. Duvall, jr., who were married June 21 in Mount Rainier, Md. The ceremony took place in St. James Catholic Church, the Rev. Wilbur F. Wheeler officiating. The bride is the former Miss Helen Margaret Brauker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fay Brauker, Coldwater, Mich., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George P. Duvall, Colmar Manor, Md.

The bride, given in marriage by Capt. W. N. Mansfield, USNR, wore a white satin gown and heirloom veil held in place by a coronet of seed pearls. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Miss Irene Perry, maid of honor, was attired in powder-blue taffeta and net and the bridesmaids, Miss Josephine M. Duvall and Miss Virginia Walker, were costumed in rose and yellow, respectively. All wore matching shoulder-length veils and caried old-fashioned nosegays. John J. Noone served his cousin as best man and ushers were Francis Geary and George S. Haskins. A reception followed at the home of the bridegroom's parents.

MRS. NORMAN ARMOUR Harris & Ewing

Mrs. Armour Enjoys Roving Life as Diplomat's Wife

By Marie McNair

A GLANCE at Mrs. Norman Armour, and you'd say: "There goes a woman with that indefinable 'it'."

The wife of the newly appointed Assistant Secretary of State is a cosmopolite to the tips of her well shaped fingers. She has great chic, more than the average share of charm and an enigmatic type of beauty which comes from appealing gray eyes and an enchanting smile.

Was Russian Princess

A White Russian princess—Myra Koudacheff—Mrs. Armour has had no reason to return to her native country since her marriage. As the wife of a foreign service career man, Mrs. Armour has lived in a dozen foreign countries.

When Mr. Armour retired from the diplomatic service a few years ago, life for the two was to be simple. They expected to divide their time between Nassau and their estate at Gladstone, N. J.

But when her husband took his new position, Mrs. Armour was not disappointed. Starting life over again in new surroundings never ceases to be a thrill for her. Along the line she has learned four languages, which she speaks fluently.

Housing problems for the Armours have been quickly solved. They are staying with friends on Woodland dr. until September 1, when they will take possession of the house at 2329 California st., owned by Judge and Mrs. Blair Clark.

She loves good music, reads a lot, likes a game of golf and will miss her home in New Jersey, for country life appeals to her most. Her inseparable companions are Tai and Ko, a rare breed of Lhasa terriers from Tibet. They are from Mr. and Mrs. Suydam Cutting's kennels, the only one in America.

Although she looks too young to be a grandmother, Mrs. Armour's son, Norman, jr., is married and has two children.

MISS FRANCES ROOTS

Miss Roots Engaged to Mr. Hadden

Announcement has been made in London, England, of the engagement of Miss Frances Blakeslee Roots to Richard Moulton Hadden. Miss Roots is the daughter of the late Rt. Rev. Logan H. Roots, Bishop of Hankow, and one-time Primate of China, formerly of Little Rock, Ark., and the late Mrs. Roots of Hartford, Conn. Mr. Hadden is the son of George E. Hadden of Metuchen, N. J., and the late Mrs. Hadden.

Both Miss Roots and Mr. Hadden are composers, and during the war wrote the music for the victory revues, "You Can Defend America" and "Pull Together Canada"; and more recently for the American drama, "The Forgotten Factor," now playing in London's Westminster Theater. Their wedding will take place this summer in Switzerland.

Miss Roots is a graduate of Mount Holyoke College, and Mr. Hadden is a graduate of Rutgers University and Princeton Theological Seminary. In recent years the couple devoted full time to the work of moral rearmament.

Elizabeth Perenich To Wed John Hassett

Mr. and Mrs. Guido N. Perenich have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Margaret Perenich, to John James Hassett, son of Mrs. James M. Hassett and the late Mr. Hassett.

Miss Perenich was graduated from Fordham University, and Mr. Hassett was graduated from Georgetown University.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Capt. Adams, Miss Wood Wed At Fort Myer

Decorated with white flowers and palms, Fort Myer Chapel was the setting yesterday afternoon for a military wedding when Miss Leonora Jane Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Warwick Wood, Charlotte, N.C., was married to Lawrence Augustus Adams, jr., USA, son of Mrs. Lawrence A. Adams and the late Mr. Adams, Arlington, Va., formerly of Concord, N.C. Chaplain Gregory Lock officiated.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white embroidered organza with sweetheart neckline and long sleeves trimmed with organdy ruching. Her short veil was attached to a shirred tiara and she carried a white orchid and stephanotis on a prayer book.

Mrs. Ralph R. McCue, matron of honor, was costumed in pale green silk faille with green net halo. Miss Caroline Taliaferro and Miss Bettie Lou Oakey, bridesmaids, were in white silk faille. All carried green and white flowers. Abel L. Brand acted as ringbearer.

Maj. Richard W. McCue served as best man. Ushers, who crossed their sabers to form the traditional arch under which the newlyweds passed following the ceremony, were: Lieut. Col. Willis Crittenberger, Lieut. Col. J. W. Maupin, Lieut. Col. A. S. Low, Maj. James S. Timothy, Maj. R. W. Horridge, Maj. W. E. Gernert, Maj. J. D. Reid, and Maj. W. G. McCarthy.

After a reception at the Fort Myer Officers' Club, Captain Adams and his bride left on a honeymoon to New York and Bermuda and on their return will make their home in Arlington.

Mrs. Adams, who attended William and Mary College and is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority, has been an airline hostess based in Washington. Her husband, stationed at Army Air Forces headquarters here, attended The Citadel and was graduated in 1942 from the United States Military Academy.

McConnels Return

Representative and Mrs. Samuel McConnel have returned from Lenape Village, Fairview Lake in the Poconos, where they spent the holiday weekend. Representative McConnel gave a Fourth of July address to the guests at the resort. Miss Shirley McConel, a councilor at Oneka, a nearby girls' camp. joined her parents for the holiday.

Virginia Michelson Becomes Bride of Richard H. Paul

Miss Virginia Michelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Michelson of New York City, was married July 3d to Richard Havens Paul, son of Randolph E. Paul of Washington and Mrs. William S. A. Pott of Elmira, N. Y. After the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at the St. Regis for the immediate family.

The bride was graduated from the Brearley School and Barnard College. She also attended Bryn Mawr. Mr. Paul was graduated from Cornell University and Yale Law School. During the war he was a staff sergeant and editor of the Middle East edition of Yank, the Army weekly. His father was general counsel to the Treasury Department during the war.

After a wedding trip through New England and Canada, the couple will make their home in New York.

Ireland—Harrison

In the parsonage of Pleasant Valley Methodist Church on July 5, Miss Esther Elizabeth Harrison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Harrison, Herndon, Va., became the bride of William Herbert Ireland, son of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Ireland, Columbus, Ohio. The Rev. W. W. Hayzlett performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride wore a powder-blue crepe dress with white hat and accessories and corsage of white rosebuds. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Peck attended the couple. After a short honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Ireland will make their home in Columbus.

Miss Lovell, Walter Kerr Are Married

Miss Vivianne Lovell, of Brookline, Mass., and Paris, a correspondent here for the French news service "Agence France Presse," was married at noon yesterday to Walter Boardman Kerr, jr., a member of the New York Herald Tribune editorial staff, at the Covenant First Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw. Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

Besides members of the two families, wedding guests included former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Mrs. Byrnes, Benjamin V. Cohen, State Department Counselor, Charles E. Bohlen, Special Assistant to the Secretary of State, and Mrs. Bohlen.

Miss Lovell is a daughter of Mrs. Walter Lovell, of Brookline and Paris, and the late Mr. Lovell. She is a granddaughter of Mrs. Charles Winchester du-Bouchet, of Brookline, and the late Dr. du Bouchet. Mr. Kerr is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Kerr, of Syracuse, N. Y.

The bride, wearing a street-length dress of gray satin with green bodice and carrying a single white orchid, was given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Charles Lovell, of Hartford, Conn. She was attended by her sister, Miss Ghislaine Lovell, who wore a frock of navy blue lace and a corsage of white roses. Mr. Canby Kerr was his brother's best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerr met in Paris last July when both were assigned to cover the Paris Peace Conference. Later both of them covered the meeting of the Big Four Foreign Ministers in Moscow.

Educated in France

Mrs. Kerr attended the Ecole Alsacienne in Paris, and later the Sorbonne. In this country, she took post-graduate work in philosophy at Radcliffe College, Cambridge, Mass. During the war, she served in London with the Office of War Information.

Mr. Kerr attended Andover and Yale, joining the New York Herald Tribune staff in 1936 after 18 months with the Syracuse Post Standard. He became a foreign correspondent in 1937, serving in most of the European capitals. In 1943, he was granted leave of absence to serve abroad with the Office of Strategic Services. He rejoined the newspaper in 1945 and is scheduled to leave soon for the Herald Tribune Paris Bureau.

de Monchy—van Steeden

In a gown of white mousseline de soie with long train and fingertip veil, Miss Trunske van Steeden became the bride June 21 of E. P. de Monchy. The ceremony took place in the National City Christian Church, the Rev. J. Warren Hastings officiating.

Daughter of J. van Steeden of Amsterdam, Holland, the bride was given in marriage by her cousin, Ivar Wiman. Mrs. Wiman was the matron of honor, and Miss Bettye Magee was bridesmaid. Linda Larsen was flower girl.

Judge Wesley Crozier of Washington served as best man. The ushers were Theo Verryn Stuart and Philip Sherman.

Mrs. de Monchy studied law at the University of Groningen, Holland, and flew over from Holland in May 1946 as a secretary of the Netherlands government. She is now with the Netherlands Embassy here.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. R. de Monchy of The Hague, Holland. He was one of the directors of the Netherlands Government Food Purchasing Bureau in New York and is now with the Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations in Washington.

MRS. R. McCATHRAN 2d

Mr. McCathran, Grace Wagner Are Married

Miss Grace L. Wagner, daughter of Dr. Samuel Mason Wagner, Chevy Chase, and the late Mrs. Kathryn B. Wagner, became the bride yesterday of Rodney R. McCathran 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Jay McCathran, jr., also of Chevy Chase. The Rev. Charles W. Lowry performed the ceremony in All Saints' Episcopal Church.

The bride wore a dressmaker suit of white gabardine with rose-beige blouse and small white hat trimmed with rose-beige veil. Her corsage was of white orchids. Miss Gertrude Wagner, only attendant for her sister, chose a summer print dress with picture hat and corsage of red roses.

Mark Lansburgh, jr., served as best man and ushers were S. Mason Wagner, jr., and Nelson Buhler. A reception followed at the Wardman Park Hotel for the immediate families and members of the wedding party.

The bride attended George Washington University. Mr. McCathran, a graduate of Dartmouth, served as a captain in a joint assault signal company during the war.

Stepantsoff—Guzie

On a honeymoon trip to the West Coast are Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. Stepantsoff, who were married June 5 in St. Andrew's Orthodox Catholic Church, Baltimore, with the Rev. John Gavrusik officiating. The bride is the former Miss Helen N. Guzie, of Washington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Basil Guzie, Sharon, Pa., and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Michael Stepantsoff, San Francisco, Calif.

The bride wore a gown of white marquisette with fingertip veil held by a coronet of orange blossoms and carried white roses and stephanotis. Miss Evalyn Guzie, attending her sister as maid of honor, was gowned in blue marquisette with bouquet of pink roses. Miss Ann Kavulla, bridesmaid, chose pink marquisette and talisman roses. Harry Papach acted as best man and Stephen Frynsko was usher. A reception followed at the Hotel 2400 here.

Summer Foods Are Slimming But Trimmings Pile on Calories

By Ida Jean Kain

Calories and fuel are the same thing, and summer or winter, blow hot or cold, the heat units must either be burned for energy or stored as fat. Some foods are higher in fuel (calories) than others. More heating too. And that is exactly why a pork roast with browned potatoes and rich gravy is not appetizing in hot weather.

And it's the reason it is easier to reduce in hot weather. The heat takes the edge off your appetite and the season's foods are low in calories. So, unless you go out of the way to get extra calories, slimming is natural in summer.

Go Down the Line

But in summer dishes, the trimmings can pile on calories. If you really would like to end the summer 15 pounds slimmer, go down the line and pare off the main trimmings. Asparagus is low in calories, five per stalk, but Hollandaise sauce adds 100 per tablespoon. Leave off the sauce, and use a little melted butter instead . . . one half teaspoon is only 18 calories. All summer vegetables are low in calories, until cream sauce is added to the cooked ones, and mayonnaise or French dressing to the salad vegetables.

Concerning reducer's French dressing, there are many requests for the recipe for mineral oil dressing, and an equal number of inquiries about the loss of vitamin A through the use of mineral oil. The use of a vitamin concentrate, furnishing 5000 units of vitamin A, the normal requirement, gets around the problem, for this form of vitamin A is not particularly affected by mineral oil. And when the concentrate is taken immediately after breakfast, or before retiring, and the dressing used at lunch or dinner, there is no danger of the vitamin A being carried off. The use of a non-fattening French dressing does make reducing easier; moreover it helps to promote regularity. The recipe is included on the new summer diet leaflet.

Fruit Not Fattening

Summer fruits are low in calories until cream is added. A scant one fourth cup is 100 calories, thin cream at that. One tablespoon of heavy cream is 60 calories, and 1¾ tablespoon of whipped cream adds 60 calories.

Then of course . . . there's sugar. Try using half as much sugar as you ordinarily use. The first time you won't like it, the second time it isn't so bad and before you know it beverages and berries will taste better with less sugar! Appetite is like that—it's largely habit. By the way, sweeten iced tea when it's hot, and it takes less sugar. Let the small amount of sugar set on your individual dish of berries for an hour of more; they'll taste sweeter.

Send for the new summer menus, "Summer Slimming a Breeze," inclosing stamped, addressed envelope, to Ida Jean Kain, Room 408, Washington Post.

A Summer Expense

Most housewives whose locks are straight include as one of their necessary summer expenses a permanent wave. A little outside help is needed to look attractive in the hot weather and the hot kitchen has no terror for the woman who has had her "summer permanent."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Devoted Wife Returns From Four Weeks Spent With Ailing Mother-in-Law, to Find Husband Defiantly Committed to a New Love Interest

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Recently I came home from four weeks' nursing of my ill mother-in-law to find that my husband has formed another attachment and become a different person.

I am 24, he is 28, and we have a 2-year-old son. My husband was in service only briefly because of a leg injury; and except for that short separation and my recent sojourn with his mother we were never apart in our five years' marriage. We have got along well, have many friends and were a happy family until his mother became ill.

She and I have always been fond of each other. Because she is alone and has only her income from a very small job, and because her other son is in Germany, I volunteered to take my boy and go out to look after her. My husband of course couldn't leave his work but agreed that I should go, even though it would mean much loneliness for him.

I returned to find the house in disorder, hairpins everywhere (I don't use them), and my best set of lingerie gone. My husband wasn't happy to see us. He began criticizing the baby and me within an hour of our return. I found that our bank account—small but always carefully kept—had been used up. I decided to wear a serene face as if I saw nothing, to see if the situation—whatever it was—would blow over.

Says He Feels Like Kid Again

HOWEVER, my husband stayed out every evening and was late to work many mornings. Then he accepted with me a dinner date with friends, but humiliated me by not showing up at all when the dinner hour arrived. It seemed time for a showdown. He admitted he had fallen for a girl he met at the home of friends the first night of my absence.

He said he thought the infatuation would blow over, but he couldn't give her up now. He said it was like having a new toy, that it made him feel like a kid again. I said I thought his son deserved more of a father than a man who enjoyed feeling like a kid again. Also that his job as well as my life and his son's life couldn't wait while he let the affair take its course; and that I must take legal steps to dissolve the marriage if he really preferred not to grow up.

I felt like a school teacher arguing with a perverse teen-ager. He said nothing but put on his coat and left. He was gone for two nights but is back today in moody silence. Is this the end of our happy marriage? Is my little boy to start so early in life getting along without a father and only a part-time mother? My husband's salary couldn't support two establishments and I should have to get a job promptly—as I have no family. Please advise.

R. G.

Wife's Manner Isn't Winsome

DEAR R. G.: It looks as if the marriage might be washed up, in the sense of both parties having done much to wreck the possibility of reviving mutual esteem.

To explain: Your husband's misbehavior has been remarkably insensitive, as if he had no shred of decent solicitude for your feelings any more, and cared little what you might think of him.

Also in the showdown session there was nothing in your voice, manner or statements, I gather, to signify passionate personal attachment, charity, wounded love or what-not. Instead, you treated him to a sarcastic lecture on his shortcomings, containing a hooker about duty to his son, and huffed to a close with a foreboding reference to divorce.

All this hardly supports your claim that an erstwhile happy marriage hangs in the balance. Rather it suggests that in five years of living together you've figuratively had your husband by the collar, and that he of recent times had become restively ripe for mischief if ever your back were turned.

I should say you've been social and economic partners after a fashion, since the honeymoon waned; but not congenial true-loving, mature-minded, mutually deferential helpmeets—as really happy couples are.

Decide Case as Between Adults

FOR ADVICE: Consult your preference, your pastor or your lawyer, about what to do next. But don't make a racket of professing to be weighing alternatives in terms of the boy's welfare.

Stay with your husband for love, or loose him and let him go. The child won't benefit if you stay on for cowardly expedient reasons, while inwardly galled by frozen resentment. Neither will he have a halfway chance at normal psychological development if you undertake divorce with a bleating attitude about the awful fate that has overtaken you.

Frankly I have no pointers to offer about reconciliation, for the reason that your husband's misconduct in your absence and since your return has been gross and callous to a degree that even the hush-hush double standard wouldn't sanction.

Troubles in the Hamper

Be sure the soiled towels and perspired shirts and underwear are perfectly dry before putting them in the clothes hamper. Otherwise they are likely to mildew and sour the clothes around them, besides damaging their own texture. All clothes and linens should be thoroughly dried before putting into any confining place. Even ironed clothes that seem a bit damp should be dried and aired before putting them away.

Ask Anne
Your Questions On Homemaking

I would appreciate your advice on some floor problems. I have parquet hardwood floors which I have always cleaned with a dry cleaning solution and steel wool. Whenever water or any liquid is dropped on the floor, it leaves a dark spot, presumably because the shellac is worn off. Can you tell me how to remove these spots? Also would you recommend my refinishing these floors myself? Should I use shellac, varnish, or just wax? Should each block be varnished or shellacked separately, following the grain of the wood. How many coats are necessary to protect the wood? How often should wax be applied? E. B.

Perhaps the dark spots were caused by dust or dirt mixing with spilled water, for plain water usually leaves white spots on wooden surfaces. At any rate, I'd try scrubbing the spots with a mixture of equal parts denatured alcohol and turpentine or with a scouring powder such as whiting.

The best way to refinish the floors would be to have them sanded, then finish with two or three coats of a penetrating seal. Both these jobs require an expert, however. These penetrating seals actually enter the wood and seal the pores. The finish will not scratch with ordinary traffic and may be patched if necessary, without detection. Wax is used to help preserve the finish.

If you prefer refinishing the floors yourself, there are several ways in which is might be done. Gloss lacquer can be applied over shellac and is quick drying and durable. It forms a hard, glossy finish which has good resistance against damage by heat and water and does not mar easily. You'll want to be sure your floor is as clean as possible before applying the lacquer.

If you wish to refinish your floor with either shellac or varnish, it will be necessary to remove the old shellac first. This can be done with a liquid varnish or paint remover, but it's a hard, tedious job because the floor must be rubbed down with steel wool to remove the softened shellac. Varnish gives a tougher finish than shellac and scratches less easily. However, shellac has less tendency to darken. Neither can be patched without detection. In applying shellac or varnish, follow the directions on the container.

Wax is excellent for preserving any of the finishes I have mentioned. In a home, it is necessary to wax floors only about twice a year if they receive average use. If necessary, spots receiving hard wear can be rewaxed monthly.

Is there any way to deodorize baby's waterproof pants made of nylon, plastic, rubber, or similar materials? S. T. C.

Frequent washings in soapsuds and lukewarm water and the use of talcum powder are the only way you can keep baby's waterproof panties fresh and clean.

My daughter is to have a small wedding reception at our apartment immediately following her marriage. Please advise me if it would be bad taste to use small paper plates (with the couple's name imprinted) instead of china ones. C. C. C.

China plates would be in better taste than paper ones on this occasion. There are many pretty paper plates on the market, but they are somewhat informal and "picnicky" for use at a wedding reception, even a small one.

Do you know of a paint or finish that can be used to renew the hood of a baby carriage? We have a carriage that we would like to give to friends, but hesitate to offer it as the finish on the hood is cracked where it has been folded. S. W.

A number of local paint stores carry paint that can be used in renewing the hood of your baby carriage.

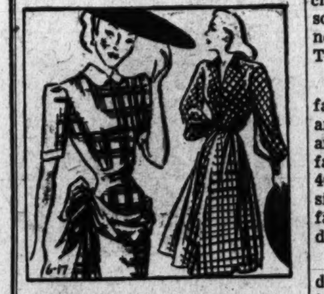
You'll find Red Snapper . . . that flavorsome fish from the Far South . . . in the local market this week for the first time in many a day. Mackerel from Boston and croakers from the Chesapeake Bay also await the fish fanciers.

When it comes to meat, smoked shoulder is about the best buy . . . around 43c a pound. Other types of pork are scarce . . scarcer than beef, lamb and veal and that's going some, the dealers say.

Plump, downy-skinned peaches are still coming in from Georgia and Carolina. This year's peach crop one of the biggest and best in history . . . the local peak to be around late July and early August.

Lots of oranges here now . . . and canned citrus juices are more abundant than usual. More red raspberries seen locally than a week ago. In the vegetable line . . . beets, lima and snap beans, cabbages and peppers are the best buys. Plenty of carrots, celery, corn, tomatoes, and greens in the stores, too.

Be Smart



ALL THE GORGEOUS BEAUTY of today's smartest colors is yours in plaids of fine cotton. The genius of the country's top flight designers—who are stressing cottons above all other fabrics this season—is further dramatizing their color by bias touches and other arresting manipulations.

Cheese Still on Menu Deck Since Arrival on Mayflower

CHEESE, which made its first trip to this country aboard the Mayflower, is becoming more popular with modern-day Americans.

There's proof of this fact in many a Washington grocery store today—dairy cases filled with rich, golden Cheddar, round, red Edam, mold-flecked Bleu, and silvery packages of Philadelphia cream cheese. There are also statistics which show that Americans ate almost 7 pounds of cheese apiece last year, compared with 4½ pounds back in 1925.

Imported Cheeses Returning

Most of the cheese we're eating now was made right here in America. Famous foreign cheeses are beginning to reappear, however. Within the next week, the first quantity shipment of imported Swiss cheese since before the war is expected at a Washington store.

A liner with 50 tons of this nut-sweet cheese (in 200-pound wheels) docked in New York a few days ago. Holland cheese has been back on the United States market for some time and a few shipments of Roquefort have been received from France.

American cheesemakers haven't let the mold grow under their feet while foreign imports were cut off. They've been developing distinctive new cheese of their own—"Poona," for instance. Made up in New York state, Poona is a soft, strong cheese very like Camembert.

Good old American cheddar continues to be the backbone of the United States cheese business, however. One of the big reasons is because it's so versatile and lends itself well to many cooking purposes. It's swell, for instance, in tasty main dishes such as a new one called "Savory Corn." This is a dish that's novel, nourishing, and easy on the food budget.

SAVORY CORN

Fry three slices of bacon in a heavy skillet until golden brown. Remove the bacon from the skillet and add one half cup chopped green peppers and one third cup of chopped onion. Cook in remaining fat until tender. Chop bacon in small pieces. Add the bacon, one and one half cups of cooked corn and one half pound of diced cheese to the green pepper and onion. Cook over a low heat. As the cheese begins to melt, gradually add three fourths of a cup of milk, stirring constantly. Cook until cheese is completely melted. Season with paprika and, if desired, salt and pepper. Serve in bread baskets or with mashed potatoes. This recipe makes six servings of a half cup each.

BREAD BASKETS

Fit six slices of bread in buttered muffin pans, so that each slice of bread takes the shape of a basket. Brush over with melted butter. Bake in preheated hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 10 minutes. Remove from pan. Use hot as for patty shells.—LUCIA BROWN.

Has Anyone Told You?

GALLON JUGS for cold drinks are lightweight, rust-proof and chip-proof. One style has a faucet of solid brass which folds back into a neat little recess when not in use. These jugs are Fiberglas insulated.

TOUGH NYLON has been used to fabricate washers for faucets. They are said to outlast any other and are particularly good for hot water faucets because they stand up to 400 degrees fahrenheit. Assorted sizes are available and for odd size faucets the washers can be pared down with a sharp knife.

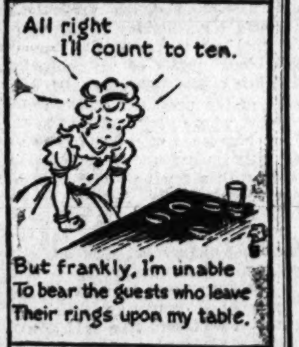
FOR SINKS that do not have a drainboard, there is a new draining tray that will do the trick. The base of this draning rack is sloped so that when it is placed on the edge of the sink, water drains off.

DANGLING cords on electrical equipment are unnecessary if you have a reel to take up the slack. The reel operates simply whenever you want a longer or shorter cord.

WATERPROOF PAINT—in powder form to mix with water—protects and preserves all kinds of masonry. The paint comes in good colors, is easy to apply with brush or spray. It is particularly ideal for laundries, playrooms, cellars.

BEVERAGE coasters are being made of rustproof, alcohol-resistant aluminum in a variety of colorful designs and colors. Hostess trays are made in matching patterns.

PETUNIA!



All right
I'll count to ten.
But frankly, I'm unable
To bear the guests who leave
Their rings upon my table.

The next time, Petunia, don't invite 'em. But you can remove alcohol or water rings by rubbing with a cream silver polish. Or—try rubbing the stain with cigarette ashes, moistened.

Lead the Tot to Water

Long before your child is old enough to learn to swim, he should be gaining confidence in the water, and delight in playing on the beach, says Betty M. Popkin in My Baby Magazine. A few simple rules, indorsed by the American Red Cross, will help bridge the gap from fun in the tub in the home to water safety outdoors.

Never force a child into the water, encourage play on the sand, and he will enjoy the incoming tide while he digs holes and builds castles. Watching other tots in the water will make your young heir or heiress want to imitate them, but quickly, never fear. When your son shows signs of readiness to venture in, lead him by the hand.

But "ready or not," be sure an hour elapses after junior has eaten before you let him go in the water.

Particularly protect your young aquatic explorer from big waves. Few toddlers will react as fearlessly as the tot who was fished from the undertow sputtering with great indignation "who put all that salt in the water?"

William Bassil, Olga Pandazides Wed in St. Sofia's

Mrs. Olga Pandazides, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pandazides of Quantico, Va., became the bride on June 29 of William D. L. Bassil, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dmitros L. Bassil of Norfolk, Va. Greek Archbishop Athenoagoras officiated at the ceremony, assisted by five parish priests. The wedding was held in St. Sofia Greek Church.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin trimmed with alencon lace. Her long veil of illusion fell from a crown of ivory satin to the tip of her court train. Her flowers were a mixed bouquet of orchids, delphinium and roses.

Miss Angelena Pandazides, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Pandazides, Miss Olga Bassil, Miss Kellie Bassil, Miss Vicki Arvanitakis, Miss Mary Stravtos, Miss Mamie Bassil and Miss Liberty Alexian.

Gus Manos served as best man, while the ushers were John Pandazides, George Bassil, Alex Alexander, Tommy Cosmoglos, Theodore Bacalis, Jerry Galanides and Nick Diavatis.

After the ceremony a reception was held at Hotel 2400. On their return from a wedding trip to Cuba the couple will make their home in Norfolk.

Town Talk

By Eva Hinton

PATTERN for isolationists is the little country of Yemen where the royal family never travels, there are no banks (and therefore no interest to pay and where even a plane hadn't flown over since 1937 until the other day!

Imam Yahya rules a country with 300 miles of coastline but in all of his 81 years he has never seen the sea. Perhaps he has something there because, though his capital is only 200 miles inland, to reach the sea he would have to cross a mountain range where the passes are 9000 feet high, and traverse the burning Tihama Desert, all the while slapping at malaria-loaded mosquitoes.

The Imam of Yemem has 13 sons (I have no statistics on the daughters) and they don't like traveling any more than their papa except one of them, Prince Saif al-Islam Abdullah, who will pioneer in Washington as the first Yemen official ever to visit this country.

Like most pioneers, his arrival at the frontier has been a bit delayed and he won't arrive until July 14.

Prince Saif al-Islam ("Sword of Islam," (a name borne by all his princely brothers) has been living in Cairo representing Yemen in the Arab League and has developed into the Yemen Ambassador to just about everywhere!

In preparation for his trip to America the prince was given a lift back home in the plane of the United States Military Attache at Cairo (the first plane seen over Yemen since 1937) to discuss matters with his father.

Bonfires of rejoicing welcomed the traveller and when he departed again it was with the approval of his father who had decided that isolationism is wearing thin at the edges.

The 81 years young monarch has also accepted and figured out how to repay that million dollar credit in surplus war materials offered him by America. With no banks in the country to bother him he just went ahead on the theory that payment must be planned before a debt is contracted.

On the way out of Yemen the American pilot had permission to fly over Marib, formerly called Sheba. (Remember the queen?). Only three Europeans (the last in 1888) are known to have seen this fabulous country of magnificent ruins with its 60 dams and its temples colonnaded with sixteen-sided pillars.

Mrs. Edward Martin, newly elected club president, speaking for the club says, "We feel that the bill of August 20, 1912, is sufficient to take care of plant quarantine. The Dutch people need at this time more than ever to sell their bulbs in order to restore normal living in their country."

The club has an active friendship project with the Netherlands. In appreciation of the kindness shown American soldiers while stationed in that country, the club has sent scores of packages containing food, clothing and Christmas gifts to Hollanders.

Oystermen Of Maryland Hit Dredging

Baltimore, July 8 (AP).—Legislators from Charles and St. Marys counties told the Maryland-Virginia Potomac River Commission today in no uncertain terms Maryland watermen are opposed to oyster dredging.

The six-member commission held its first meeting in this state to get Maryland views on the touchy problem of taking oysters from the Potomac.

C. O'Conor Goolrick of Fredericksburg, Va., chairman of his state's three-member commission, presided and declared at the outset: T

"Virginia oystermen are very strongly under the impression that they cannot make a living by tonging, and some modified dredging is necessary."

Both states banned dredging in the Potomac in 1930, but Maryland has charged that Virginians resumed dredging about 1940 after the oyster supply improved.

R. Vernon Cooksey, member of the House from Mt. Victoria, Charles County, said Maryland tongers were unable to make a living last season because dredgers had depleted the rocks.

Sees U. S. Regulation Needed

"If we pass a dredging law, there will be no oysters in the Potomac. I believe the federal government has got to step in and regulate this."

Cooksey estimated it would require three to four years to restock the river, which brought from W. Tayloe Murphy of Warsaw, Va., the remark that Virginia watermen "can't wait that long."

"They waited 10 years, from 1930 to 1940," Cooksey replied. "There were no boats on the river then."

Also opposed to dredging, another Charles County House member, J. Franklin Winkler of La Plata, said, "I don't blame Virginians any more than Marylanders over the deplorable oyster situation. We know Marylanders are dredging and paying off employes of the Conservation Commission, and it's coming to the point where there will be no oysters in the river."

Winkler and others said the Maryland watermen were forced to dredge illegally to keep pace with Virginia dredgers.

Must Be Broken Up

"We know that dredging is very profitable, but if we don't break it up, the watermen will go back on relief for there will be no more oysters. I have seen them on relief before. As it is now, Maryland oystermen can make a bare living with hand tongs in the next two or three years."

Senator Paul J. Bailey of Clements, St. Marys County, said a majority of watermen in his area favored dividing the Potomac, with Virginians taking oysters to a line in the middle of the stream, and Marylanders the same on their side.

Both States would be responsible for patrolling their areas, Bailey said.

Goolrick pointed out that under the 1785 compact between the States which gave Maryland jurisdictional rights over the Potomac, both States had equal fishing rights, and added, "It is my information that Maryland waters contain more oyster beds."

Says Virginia Allows Dredging

Winkler said he believed this was correct.

"The principal reason our people dredge is that they see Virginians allowed to do it, and they are not going to sit by and watch all the oysters go to Virginia," Bailey said. "The present situation is absolutely intolerable, and Virginia is more responsible for this deplorable condition than we are. It is up to you Virginians to establish beds on your side of the river and enforce the laws.

"I think, and know that this question will be solved," Bailey declared, adding he thought a proposal by Goolrick that both States plant oysters and share expenses was "commendable."

Goolrick inquired whether or not the legislators thought the joint commission should be granted powers to act in emergencies to limit fishing and oystering, and it was generally conceded this would be wise.

"The answer is law enforcement," said Joseph A. Mattingly, Leonardtown, a House member from St. Mary's County. "I am unalterably opposed to dredging, and there has been practically no enforcement in the last few years. With strict enforcement of regulations, the river could come back in two years."

Dredging Opinions Conflict

Conflicting opinions on effects of dredging came from Charles Langford, Virginia commissioner of fisheries, and Edwin Warfield, jr., former chairman of the Maryland Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

Langford said close supervision and limited dredging was beneficial, whereas Warfield said damage to the rocks was greater than any benefits from dredging.

"This is a business, and not a question of tonging or dredging," said Warfield's successor, John E. Clark, House member from Bel Air, Harford County.

"We need a management plan and cooperation of the industry, for the oyster industry which once was ours has gotten beyond our borders."

Clark agreed that the joint commission should have power to meet any situation "year by year or month by month, for the legislature is too slow when emergencies arise that must be dealt with quickly."

In this connection, Goolrick and Murphy observed that the Virginia legislature meets in even-numbered years, and Maryland in odd years, thu further delaying any joint legislative program.

Md. Internes In Psychiatry Get Pay Boost

Baltimore, July 8 (AP).—Internes in psychiatry have been granted wage increases of at least 66 per cent, the State Employes Standard Salary Board announced today.

Formerly paid $75 monthly, internes in State mental hospitals now rate from $1500 to $1875 annually.

The board also made public revised salary scales in 49 other classified positions and five unclassified jobs. Included in the classified list were three new posts:

Chief of division of tuberculosis services, to receive from $10,000 to $12,500 annually.

Assistant occupational therapist, $1380 to $1725, and chief of the division of hospital construction and administration, $7500.

Workers in State institutions, which have been having trouble keeping staffs at full strength, will receive most of the increases. Approved by Governor Lane, the new scales were made retroactive to July 1.

Pay hikes also went to practical nurses, whose $1380 annual salary represents an increase of $200 over the previous figure; chief of bureau of communicable diseases, now eligible to earn $6875 to $8000 as compared to the old scale of $5500 to $6400; and the commissioner of board of mental hygiene, able to earn $7000 to $8700 and formerly alloted $6320 to $7900.

The revised unclassified list includes two new posts:

Director of the State aviation commission, $4500 to $5625, and technical consultant to the aviation commission at a flat salary of $4000.

Senate Recount In Md. May Last For Many Months

Baltimore, July 8 (AP).—Francis T. Kelly, in charge of workers recounting ballots in Maryland's senatorial election of last November, said today there was no indication how long it would take to complete the task. The job might continue for many months.

Working under a United States Senate subcommittee investigating the election of Herbert R. O'Conor to the Senate, the group still has to examine the ballots cast in 18 out of the 23 counties in the State.

In addition, they must examine two records, and perhaps more, for each of the 471 precincts of Baltimore City. It may also become necessary to make a second check of the five counties whose ballots have already been recounted.

Headless Body Found By Women

Westminster, Md., July 8 (AP).—Carroll County medical and law enforcement authorities today sought the identity of a decapitated body found in a wooded section near Tannery by two women picking raspberries.

The women, Mrs. Alice Groth and Mrs. Coane Brown, discovered the skull of a man on a farm near the old McGuiness distillery. Returning home, they first told their daughters, Barbara Brown and Arlene Roth, of their gruesome find.

The two girls then searched the area and located a body beneath a pine tree.

County Medical Examiner Dr. James T. Marsh said the body was that of a young man presumably between 18 and 25 years old. After a preliminary examination, he estimated the man had been dead between three and four weeks.

Press Committee Named by Tuck For Virginia Fete

Richmond, Va., July 8 (AP).—Governor Tuck has named a committee for "Freedom of the Press" night at the August 1 playing of "The Common Glory," symphonic-drama written and directed by Paul Green, Pulitzer prize winning author and playwright, and presented by the Jamestown Corporation at Lake Matoaka, Williamsburg.

Designated as chairman was Comdr. Raymond B. Bottom, president of the Daily Press, Inc., Newport News, and past president of the Virginia Press Association.

Named to serve with him were:

Carter Glass, jr., Lynchburg; Junius P. Fishburn, Roanoke; Harry F. Byrd, jr., Winchester; Virginius Dabney, Dr. Douglas S. Freeman, D. Tennant Bryan, E. O. Meyer and Frank H. Fuller, Richmond; Henry S. Lewis and Tom Hanes, Norfolk; Norman R. Hamilton, Portsmouth; J. Curtis Lyon, Petersburg; C. J. Harkrader, Bristol; Robert B. Smith, Newport News; C. E. Md. to List Its Natural Resources

Solomons, Md., July 8 (AP).—Dr. R. V. Truitt, head of the Department of Research and Education, announced today an inventory of Maryland's natural resources would begin September 1.

The announcement was made after a special meeting of the heads of departments related to the Board of Natural Resources, who were visiting the Chesapeake Laboratory here in conection with the board's anual meeting.

Truitt said the department heads pledged full cooperation in the inventory which will be undertaken by a staff of four men.

"This will bea long-range projwant to know what we have, where we have failed and what we've got to do. The inventory will be such as a businessman would undertake to find out what he has."

Resources Board Meeting

He said it was planned to start the survey in either the Patuxent or Monocacy River water shed.

The inventory discussion followed a morning meeting of the board at which William Bayliff, its executive secretary, presented a proposed revision of state licensing and fee systems as they affect fish and game. Bayliff pointed out that the system of privileges and rights under which the public uses the natural resources of the State had just grown and had never been planned. He cautioned, however, in considering a revision of the license system, that it was "doubtful if any system can be devised which is logical throughout."

Among his suggestions were these for oyster licensing—halting licensed dredging and setting up a totally new program for deeper waters of the State: charging $10 for tong boats with ordinary or patent tongs and $2.50 for individual tongers.

He suggested that all fishing nets be licensed regardless of size or kind, that nets be licensed on the basis of effectiveness and size. He urged that owners of inboard motor boats used in hook and line fishing be required to obtain a license.

Virginians Would Need Licenses

He suggested that Virginians oystering in the Potomac River be required to take out Maryland licenses. For crabbers, Bayliff suggested that different gear used in taking crabs be clearly defined in laws, and a separate license be required for each device except a dip net operated by hand, and that all licenses be $10.

For fish packers and dealers, he recommended a special tax on volume of seafood handled. He would raise county hunting license fees from $1 to $2, have a special trapper's license issued, require fur dealers to purchase licenses and report on furs passing through their hands.

He suggested raising State-wide resident anglers' fees from $1.25 to $1.75, a special Potomac River license costing $2 for residents of Virginia, West Virginia and the District of Columbia, and that Marylanders 16 or under be permitted to fish free.

Associated Press Virginia Members Meet Tomorrow

Richmond, Va., July 8 (AP).—Virginia members of the Associated Press will hold their semi-annual meeting in Roanoke at 7 p. m. Thursday, the eve of the opening of the Virginia Press Association's convention. State Chairman W. C. Stouffer, of the Roanoke World News, will preside.

Upwards of 250 publishers and staff members of daily and nondaily newspapers in the state are expected to attend the VPA's sixty-fifth two-day annual meeting. The association's executive committee will meet Thursday at 9 p. m.

The newsmen will compete in the Carl B. Short Memorial golf tournament Friday morning, when a bridge tournament also has been arranged.

A luncheon at 1 p. m. Friday will open the formal convention program with Paul Miller, assistant general manager in charge of the Washington bureau of the Associated Press, the speaker.

Former Delegate Named to Vacant Dorchester Seat

Annapolis, Md., July 8 (AP).—Governor Lane announced the appointment today of Alan Webb of Vienna to the Maryland House of Delegates from Dorchester County, which he represented in a previous term.

Webb assumes the seat vacated last month by Charles E. Edmondson of Cambridge, who resigned to become state's attorney for Dorchester County.

The appointment was recommended by a majority of the Democratic State Central Committee for the county. Webb served in the House in the 1943 and 1945 sessions. He is a merchant and farm manager.

The four-man House delegation from the Eastern Shore county consists of three Democrats and one Republican.

J. B. Clipp, 73, Dies In Berkeley County

Charles Town, W. Va., July 8.—James Boyd Clipp, 73, of the Fairmont section of Berkeley County, historian on area events, died at his home Sunday after a three-month illness. He was a native and lifelong resident of the section of the Blue Ridge Mountains where he died.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Maude Robertson Clipp, and the following children: Ernest A. Clipp and Mrs. Willard White and Mrs. Raymond Furr, this county; and Mrs. Thomas Jenkins and Boyd R. Clipp, of Front Royal, Va. He is survived also by a brother, Joshua Clipp, this county.

Cheltenham School Post Still Vacant

The board of managers of the State School for Negro Boys at Cheltenham, Md., yesterday interviewed four candidates without selecting a new superintendent for the Princes Georges County institution.

They also asked two State agencies for help in determining what can be done to improve the school, which cares for 215 to 235 boys assigned there by juvenile courts.

Governor Lane several weeks ago said his attention had been called to conditions which needed immediate correction.

A joint conference between the board of managers and State Welfare Department officials decided the first steps to be taken was appointment of a new superintendent. The institution has been administered for more than 18 months by Acting Superintendent H. R. Harris.

Crawford Withdraws

The others:

Calvin L. Kiah, a school principal from Cambridge, Md.

Benson C. Tipton, an employe of the National Training School for Boys here.

Garland J. Gilliam, principal of Bel Alton High School in Charles County near La Plata.

Accept Resignation

The board accepted the resignation of James W. Childs, who for less than a year had been director of security and acting assistant superintendent.

After discussing conditions brought to light in the joint conference with the Welfare Department, the managers decided to:

1. Ask the Department of Public Improvements and Chief Engineer John B. Funk to make a survey of the physical plant at Cheltenham and suggest what new construction is needed.

2. Ask Director Walkter Kirkman of the State Department of Budget and Procurement to make a similar survey on the condition of the present facilities.

The board did not indicate when it would decide on the new superintendent, but it probably will not be for at least two weeks.

3-Year Eluder Of Draft Gets Prison Term

Roanoke, Va., July 8 (AP).—A 22-year-old draft dodger who hid out in the mountains of Grayson County and eluded FBI agents for nearly three years was sentenced to 18 months at the Federal prison camp at Mill Point, W. Va., yesterday by Judge A. D. Barksdale at the opening of Federal court in Roanoke.

He was stocky William J. Funk, who entered a plea of guilty in what was described by FBI Agent Von Perry Heatherly as the most aggravated Selective Service case handled by the FBI office at Bristol.

The FBI agent testified officers several times saw Funk at his parents' home by using high-powered field glasses, but when they would get up to the house Funk would be gone.

Funk was apprehended in the Pulaski offce of Acting District Attorney Howard Gilmer when his father and two men came to his office in an effort to find out what punishment Funk would get if he gave himself up.

Gilmer told Judge Barksdale he became suspicious and demanded to know which of the men was "William Funk." His father then pointed out the defendant.

Funk, the FBI agents said, told them he hid out because he was "scared" to go into the Army.

Sanitarium Head Judged Suicide

Crozet, Va., July 8 (AP).—Albemarle County Coroner E. D. Davis, today reported the death of Dr. Pugh Page Newbill, 38-year-old superintendent of Dejarnette State Sanitarium at Staunton, as "suicide," probably due to an overdose of sleeping medicine.

No autopsy was performed, Dr. Davis explained, because the condition of the body was such that it was thought nothing could be learned from an examination. Dr. Newbill's body was discovered at his Albemarle county vacation cabin July 2 investigating authorities said he had been dead more than two weeks.

Rotarians Pick Hanes

Herndon, Va., July 8.—Grayson B. Hanes is the new president of the Herndon Rotary Club. He suceeds John R. Morrison. Other officers are Ara M. Daniels, vice president; the Rev. H. H. Bear, secretary; and George W. Ritter, treasurer.

Md. Trolley, Idle 3 Months, Ordered Back

Baltimore, July 8 (AP).—The Maryland Public Service Commission today ordered the Potomac Edison Co. to repair a damaged trolley car and put it back into operation as soon as possible on its electric line from Frederick to Middletown, Md.

Chairman Charles P. Bosley issued the order after a PSC hearing on the company's petition to abandon the 9.68-mile line between the two communities and a 1 1/3-mile spur to Braddock Heights.

Testimony at the hearing brought out that the trolley was damaged in an accident last August and since March of this year has been in the repair shop. A bus has been used to maintain the trolley schedule.

Bosley said that after the trolley had been back in operation 90 days the commission again would consider the company's petition to abandon the line.

Potomac Edison officers said the line lost $24,000 in 1944, $16,500 in 1945, $15,500 in 1946 and is similarly in the red so far this year. The company said it would run at least six buses a day into the Braddock Heights area if permitted to abandon the trolley operation. The schedule now calls for 10 trolleys.

John H. Conrad, who lives 3 miles from Frederick on Route 5, led a delegation of seven persons who protested the abandonment and presented a petition wth 165 signatures.

One Firm Makes Low Bid on Two Md. Road Jobs

Baltimore, July 8 (AP).—The Eastern Highway Construction Co. of Brooklyn, Md., was low bidder on two road improvement projects for which the State Roads Commission opened proposals today.

Eastern's proposal of $76,053.25 was the only bid received for surfacing five miles of U. S. Route 301 from Sevtern Hill to Glen Burnie in Anne Arundel County. Eastern was low with a bid of $97,482.50 for surfacing 3.3 miles of Maryland Route 151 in Baltimore County.

The project for extending the existing macadam State Route 495 2.6 miles north toward Bittinger in Garrett County drew a low bid of $101,735 from T. E. Russell of Frederick.

Md. Unit to Show Best Timber Use

Annapolis, Md., July 8 (AP).—The Maryland Soil Conservation Committee today adopted a new program to develop new uses for timber in three counties of the Eastern Shore—Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset.

At a meeting aboard the state yacht Potomac, the commission decided that a cooperative job would be done in the three counties with representatives of the Department of Forests and Parks lending a hand.

The new program will be worked out on demonstration farms, to show farmers of the counties how they can use to best advantage the present stands of timber.

'Mushroom City' Ex-Manager Is Awarded Share of Farm

Annapolis, Md., July 8 (AP).—The Maryland Court of Appeals today ordered transfer of a one-third interest in "Mushroom City," a 211-acre farm near Cockeysville, to I. Dale Snodgrass, who formerly managed it.

The action came with the court's reversal of a Baltimore County Circuit Court decree last November that dismissed Snodgrass' claim of a share in the farm assets.

Snodgrass contended he had contributed $5000 to the farm several years ago and thus was guaranteed an interest by the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Stubbs. He is a brother of Mrs. Stubbs.

The land was bought from the University of Maryland by the Stubbses in 1938, the court's opinion observed, for $40,000.

In protesting the appeal, Stubbs said Snodgrass had quit as manager to take a job with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and maintained his contribution was "a loan.'

Snodgrass said the operation had produced a bank balance of $35,000 when his complaint was originally filed in December 1945.

Judge Stephen R. Collins, writing the majority opinion, remanded the case for appointment of a trustee to settle liabilities and transfer to Snodgrass a one-third interest in the farm and its inventory as of June 30, 1945.

Man Charges State Police With Brutality

Salisbury, Md., July 8 (AP).—Circuit Judge Levin Claude Bailey today directed State's Attorney Rex A. Taylor to investigate charges by Charles Foster that he was beaten by Maryland State police while in their custody.

Foster made the accusation when he appeared for trial on charges of stealing three cases of cigarettes and seven boxes of cigars. Judge Bailey postponed the trinal until Saturday when he asked for a report rfom the State's attorney.

Foster, who was arrested June 23 by City Police Captain William J. Chatham, said he was taken from the Wicomico County jail by Trooper G. R. Walter to state police barracks for fingerprinting and photographing.

The defendant told the judge he then was taken to a boiler room in the barracks where "several men showed him an object about eight inches long with a six-penny nail attached."

The defendant testified he then was hit several times on the back of the head and slapped on the face.

State police at the Salisbury barracks declined comment today on Foster's charges.

Court Overrules Md. Landlord on Water Service Fee

Annapolis, Md., July 8 (AP).—An ordinance passed by the Cumberland city council in 1936 to authorize collection of water service charges for each apartment in the same building was upheld by the State Court of Appeals today.

David J. Lewis, a Cumberland apartment house owner, disputed the ordinance. He argued that his building received water through one service line and the supply was measured by one meter. He opposed the city's "minimum service charge" of $4.50 per quarter for each of the 13 apartments in the building.

The disputed ordinance permitted the city to multiply its service charge by the number of units in a building which is served by one meter.

FBI Called to Track Down White House Guests (Invitation Hadn't Reached Them)

By Drew Pearson

"The District Line" by Bill Gold is being suspended during Bill's vacation.

Not many people invited to lunch at the White House fail to show up. Most guests arrive ahead of time. In fact, Toots Shor, New York restaurateur and friend of Bob Hannegan, arrived for dinner at the White House more than 30 minutes early.

Mrs. Thackrey

However, Mrs. Ted Thackrey, owner of the New York Post, failed to show up at the White House for lunch last week under circumstances which even had the FBI searching for her.

When Mrs. Thackrey left New York with her daughter, Sylvia Backer, no word had reached them that they were to be invited to the White House.

So when President Truman told his staff to invite Mrs. Thackrey and daughter to lunch, the problem was to find them. Finally the White House called the FBI, and G-men were given the job of finding Mrs. Thackrey, who happened to be registered at the Statler Hotel here. When G-men called the hotel, however, the Statler, for some reason, did not admit that she was there.

Finally J. Edgar Hoover himself took up the search, resorting to the simple expedient of telephoning Broadway Columnist Leonard Lyons in New York. Lyons reported that Mrs. Thackrey was registered at the Statler. Having a lot to do in Washington, she did not return to her hotel until late.

Meanwhile the President decreed that he couldn't wait, went ahead with lunch.

Tidelands Oil

Now that the Supreme Court has given the Federal Government the priceless ocean bed adjacent to the American coastline, interesting discussions have taken place inside the Truman Cabinet as to what should be done with it.

Prior to the Supreme Court decision, the State of California had let various leases to private oil companies, including Signal Oil, formerly owned by Ed Pauley, former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

If the Federal Government required the oil companies or the State of California to pay back royalties for oil taken from land which actually belonged to the Federal Government, they would be bankrupt. Therefore, it was announced even before the Supreme Court trial that these back royalties would not be collected.

Legislation has to be passed, however, regarding the continuation of present leases and as to how new leases shall be made.

To that end, Secretary of the Interior Krug proposed to Attorney General Tom Clark last week that a bill drawn up by his Interior Department subordinates be sent to Congress continuing the present leases which previously had been made by the States.

Clark Says No

The Attorney General's reaction was immediate.

"Hell, no," he said, "after winning this fight I'm not going to give up what we've won."

Clark, who had a lot of experience with Texas oil leases before he entered the Government, then pointed out that some of the leases already signed by the States ran indefinitely. Therefore, if the Federal Government took them over as is, it couldn't change them in the future; and some oil companies might have big bonanzas which would continue for years.

The Attorney General proposed, therefore, that all leases be examined and a limit be placed on their terms. Where companies had spent large amounts on a less productive well, allowance should be made in favor of the company. But he maintained that leases should not run indefinitely.

Clark also proposed that when it came to new leases signed by the United States Government for new wells, the Federal Government should turn over 37½ per cent of its own royalty income to the States. Clark based this on the Federal Leasing Act already in existence by which the United States Government pays 37½ per cent of any royalty it derives from leasing minerals on public lands to the States in which those public lands are located.

Krug heartily agreed that the whole problem should be studied further.

"We'll get our heads knocked in by Congress, whatever we recommend," he added ruefully.

GOP Senate Chaplain

When the Republicans reorganized the Senate, they ousted the Democratic chaplain, Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, and replaced him with Republican Rev. Peter Marshall. However, it appears that Reverend Marshall does not entirely agree with his Republican friends regarding labor.

For the tall, sedate clergyman delivered a broad-gauged talk at the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church recently on labor, soil conservation, and various problems on which the G.O.P. Congress has frowned.

The Bridge Deck

By Florence Osborn

Today's North-South players got into a shaky three no-trump contract which they might have made except for smart defense, quite overlooking a four-card major. Thrown off from the winning lead at first because of South's opening club bid, West made an opportune switch of suits which developed his partner's cards and set the hand one trick.

Today's Hand

Neither Side Vulnerable
SOUTH DEALER

North:
♠J974
♡KJ9
♢KQ102
♣J3

♠K32
♡108743
♢865
♣96

♠A5
♡652
♢973
♣AQ1082

♠Q1086
♡AQ
♢AJ4
♣K754

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♢	Pass
1NT	Pass	2NT	Pass
3NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: 4♡.

West opened the heart four and South won the ace and returned a low spade, realizing he must develop at least one spade trick for game. West saw that in spite of the club opening bid the chances were that if his partner had any strength it would be in clubs. Also, since South hadn't tried to enter dummy for a spade finesse, it appeared likely that East held the spade ace· so he decided to jump up with the spade king and return a club, saving his partner's spade ace for a re-entry.

He led the club nine, the jack was played from the board, East put on the queen, and declarer won with the king. With East's clubs set up declarer now had to run with eight tricks, and concede another spade and three clubs to East at the end.

If West passes the spade lead, East wins the ace and leads the club queen, South ducks and East continues with the ace and eight of clubs, establishing the suit, but he has no way of getting in to cash it. South sets up the spades and makes game.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

For You and Me

This hour with the warmth and charm . . . Of all its moments free . . . Is like a private palace that . . . Belongs to you and me . . . Its magic walls encircle us . . . So we may be alone . . . And so that all we do or say . . . May always be our own . . . And that is why I take this time . . . To let you know, my dear . . . The happiness that fills my heart . . . Whenever you are near . . . It is the only time that counts . . . Of what is mine to spend . . . And every second, dear, I wish . . . That it would never end . . . Because it holds the promise of . . . A paradise to be . . . And all the joyful moments that . . . Were meant for you and me.

Sale! Spreads Lavishly Coated with 16,632 Inches of Fluffy White Chenille!

From a Nationally Famous Maker . . . Double and Single Sizes 5.99

WE'VE been in business for over half a century! We've been selling spreads since feather-beds were high fashion! But it's hard for us to remember offering so much chenille for a trifling 5.99! Think of it! This spread has 16,632 inches of chenille literally coating it from end to end. It's as soft as a kitten's ear . . . fluffy as a powder puff. So densely tufted you can barely see the sturdy sheeting underneath. Luxuriously heavy, too. Tips the scale at approximately 4¼ pounds. Luxuriously finished . . . with lavish 5-inch fringe . . . hand-knotted to prevent tangling, matting. One of America's topflight manufacturers made it. He gave us the whole lot to sell at a fraction of their value. Every one of these spreads is jumbo size. The double spreads measure 104-inches wiide, 108-inches long, including fringe. The single spreads—83-in. wide, 108-inches long. They're perfect with quaint old-fashioned poster beds . . . with sleek, modern headboard beds. They're smart summer and winter. Practical, besides. Tub like a dream, need no ironing. Get them for every bed in your house. Get them for gifts. Get them now at just 5.99 per spread. White only. Remember . . . no more when these are gone!
